

Carter pardon won't lure evaders back

by PAUL GORES

For about 25 draft evaders from the Northwest suburbs who now live in Canada, Jimmy Carter's presidency will mean a chance to come home.

But most of them won't come home, said Jerry Olsen, staff coordinator of the Midwest Committee for Military Counseling. Their departure from the United States, spurred by the Vietnam war, probably will be permanent.

"Many have made commitments to a new society, families and obviously a new job," Olsen said. Olsen, whose group is in personal contact with many of the draft evaders, said "a full half" of the 4,000 now in exile already have changed their citizenship. He said "80 per cent won't come back."

Olsen's Chicago-based office has not received many calls from draft evaders wanting to know about Jimmy Carter's promise of blanket pardons.

CARTER'S PARDON would apply only to Selective Service violators who objected to the war, not to deserters or those convicted of military crimes. Those would be handled on a case-by-case basis.

Olsen said there are about 82 draft resisters from the Chicago area.

"They may get off without any problem if there's a real pardon," Olsen said. He anticipates the pardon in February or March.

The names of draft resisters are kept confidential by Olsen's office. U.S. attorneys and the FBI protect identities under the Privacy Act.

But Olsen said most of the draft re-

sisters who have returned are "well received."

"Most people now agree that the war in Vietnam was a very bad mistake," Olsen said. "At the very least, people will tolerate them (resisters)."

"MOST OF THE draft evaders were from the middle class — the suburbs," Olsen said. "The lower class people didn't have the options available to the middle class."

"Many of the poor didn't understand the war and just went along with what the government told them,"

Olsen said.

U.S. attorneys are still prosecuting cases and the FBI is still looking for resisters, Olsen said, contrary to a TV network report earlier this week. The report said investigators and prosecutors are waiting to see what Carter will do.

"That's because they (the networks) usually check with the large cities," Olsen said. "By and large the big cities are not particularly interested in draft cases. They usually just go out to his parent's house once a year and say 'Have you seen him around?'"

BUT SMALLER communities are still after draft evaders, Olsen said.

"If I tried to defend a guy in Gary, Ind., he'd have much less of a chance of having his case dismissed than in Chicago," Olsen said.

Olsen's counseling service for draft evaders, has helped many men to have their draft evasion cases dismissed.

Seniors point out transit problems

by LYNN ASINOF

The over-60 group wants wheels. They want to be able to get around town, to Chicago and to the airport. And they don't want to spend a lot of money.

The seniors already have subsidized taxi service in three Northwest suburbs, as well as special bus or minibus service in four townships.

But there are problems, as the seniors pointed out at an all-day seminar on transportation sponsored by Harper College.

TAKE THE CASE of Harold and Mildred Gulbransen, who moved to a senior citizens project in Elk Grove Village a year ago. While their township provides some minibus service to town, they say they can't make connections to get to Chicago.

"We're satisfied with everything except getting downtown," Mrs. Gulbransen said. "We feel like we're fenced in. All our friends live in Chicago."

Most transportation for seniors is provided by the townships and villages, which focus on getting the seniors to shopping centers and local downtown areas.

Only a few provide connections with the Chicago and North Western Ry. or the North Suburban Mass Transit District buses in Des Plaines.

"I guess the idea of the Regional Transportation Authority was to take care of these problems. But I think realistically we are not going to see these things in your lifetime or my (Continued on Page 10)

FOUR TOWNSHIPS in the Northwest suburbs now provide minibus service to senior citizens, enabling them to visit shopping centers and local downtown areas. Three towns subsidize senior citizens' taxi rides, but seniors still have trouble getting into Chicago and to the airport.

Population growth slows, village projections show

by BILL HILL

Revised projections show the population of Arlington Heights will grow to 91,000 by the year 2000, a 28 per cent increase from the 71,012 figure counted this summer in a special census.

The new projections, released Friday by the village's planning department, forecast a population of 75,000 in 1980 and 86,200 by 1990.

The projections are markedly lower than figures estimated by the planning department in 1972 when a population of between 115,000 and 125,000 was predicted for the turn of the century.

"Downturns in the economy and lower birth rates are the major causes for the smaller growth rate, said Village Planner Joseph Kesler.

"THE FERTILITY rate has dropped dramatically, and in Arlington Heights it's 20 per cent lower than the national fertility rate," Kesler said.

The unstable economy has caused a slump in building construction, slowing the migration of families to Arlington Heights, and also has made it difficult for young couples to remain here, he said.

"There are indications that the out-migration from the village is much more than in the past, especially among young married couples who apparently don't feel they can afford to live here," Kesler said.

The economy continues to have its effects on growth, Kesler said, as developers prefer to build single-family housing developments rather than apartment building, which have a higher population density.

THE NEW population projections may be outdated by 1980, he said. "In the kind of world we live in now, any projection beyond five years is like looking through a crystal ball. Too many things change," he said.

Population projections in 1972 were based on more construction of both multi-family and single-family units. The village also assumed it eventually would annex a section of unincorporated Cook County which became part of Prospect Heights when it incorporated in January.

Village officials also had expected a 160-acre site between Buffalo Grove and Schoenbeck roads along Palatine Road to become a large apartment complex, but it now has been designated as the site for a second Harper College campus.

In some ways, the slower growth rate in the village should be welcomed, Kesler said.

"People certainly shouldn't be alarmed, because we aren't stagnating. And this should allow us to catch our breath and take care of our water and flooding situations," he said.

Helping people find 'it'

Crusade for Christ opens

by LYNN ASINOF

The billboards and bumper stickers say "I found it," but they don't tell you what "it" is.

For the past 10 days, Chicagoans have been kept wondering about the cryptic advertising which has appeared in newspapers, on billboards and car signs.

Today they will find out.

Today the massive advertising campaign for Christ enters its second stage. A message will be added to the billboards saying, "You can find it to, and the telephone number is 847-0600."

THOSE WHO call the number will be connected with a telephone center staffed by 100 volunteers who have been training since July. The volunteers will direct them to Christ.

"Each person who accepts Christ as their savior will be directed to a Bible study at a church, not necessarily to join that church, but to find out what the Bible tells them in living their lives," said Lorry Eberhart, a worker with the Here's Life Chicago office in Rolling Meadows.

The same campaign is now underway in 121 cities across the country, and this isn't the first time Christians have used billboards, newspapers, TV and radio to get this message across.

Mrs. Eberhart said the first campaign began in Atlanta two years ago under the name "Agape Atlanta." Campus Crusade for Christ picked up the idea and it was presented in 21 cities last spring.

THE CAMPAIGN is being supported by 350 to 400 churches in the Chicago area and is being funded by contributions. Organization began last summer.

The advertising will continue for two more weeks and will include a TV special from 8 to 9 p.m. Tuesday on Channel 44. The show will feature Dean Jones, Charles Colson and Carol Lawrence.

When the campaign is over, there will be a big praise and prayer rally. No date has been set.

"THE BASIC IDEA is to contact every home in the metropolitan area to give them an opportunity to know how they can have a personal relationship with Jesus Christ," Mrs. Eberhart said. "The ultimate goal is to change lives."

To assure the success of the campaign, people throughout the area have been offering continual prayers since August as part of an organized prayer chain. "There is continual prayer five days a week from 6 in the morning until midnight," Mrs. Eberhart said.

The campaign will run into the beginning of the holiday season.

WONDERING WHAT "IT" IS? This billboard on Northwest Highway just past the Arlington Heights village limits asks the question, and Here's Life, a religious crusade for Christ, is hoping to provide the answers.

Membership for blacks OK'd at Carter's church

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI)—The congregation of the Plains Baptist Church averted a personal and political crisis for Jimmy Carter Sunday by opening its membership to all persons — including blacks — "who want to worship Jesus Christ."

The vote, taken behind closed doors, cleared the way for a new attempt by the Rev. Clennon King, a black minister from Albany, Ga., to seek membership in the all-white church where Carter and his family worship. King said he would make his try next Sunday.

"I was proud of my church, God's church," Carter told reporters after the two hour, 45 minute meeting. "I'm completely satisfied with this church action, and I'm very proud of my church. I believe our church will now be unified."

ASKED IF he had influenced the decision, Carter said: "I was just one of the church members and they all know that."

One congregation member told a reporter there was no bitterness at the meeting. The congregation voted 120 to 66 to abolish a 1965 rule barring "negroes and civil rights agitators" from membership. The assembly also overruled, by a 107-84 vote, a recommendation by the deacons that pastor Bruce Edwards be dismissed for opposing the rule.

Future applicants for church membership will be considered by a "watch care committee" under a new rule, adopted in a third vote, which opens the church to "all persons who want to worship Jesus Christ."

Carter, who supported all three votes, said the committee's actions will be limited to questioning applicants to determine "if their intent is sincere. There is an understanding it will not be based on racial considerations."

CARTER'S FAMILY voted against the antiblack rule in 1965.

Services were canceled Oct. 31 — two days before election day — when King first tried to enter the church. Deacons then voted to enforce the 1965 rule despite its embarrassing consequences for the congregation's most noted member.

After Sunday's vote was announced by Carter's cousin, Hugh Carter, King told reporters: "I'm pleased and satisfied. I'll be back next week with bells on."

He said he would continue to press his application for membership and, if accepted, would attend services regularly and seek to bring other blacks into the church.

King asked Hugh Carter whether the vote meant he would be admitted as a member.

"I can't tell you," Carter responded. "That will depend on two things — what the watch care committee recommends, and how the congregation votes."

ASKED IF THE vote to open the doors of the church vindicated him, King said: "It vindicates the church."

Jilt triggered murder

Utah convict now wants to marry

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The crime spree that put condemned killer Gary Gilmore on death row, where he now wants to die rather than face a lifetime behind bars, was triggered when he was jilted by the woman he now reportedly wants to marry in prison, his uncle said Sunday.

Vern Damico, Gilmore's uncle, said Gilmore "went to hell" after Nicole Baker, a divorcee and mother of two with whom he had settled down and gone to work, left the home they shared.

"He started to booze it up a little," Damico said. "I think he reacted just like, well, shortly after that, you see, he got into this trouble."

NICOLE is visiting Gilmore daily in prison and Gilmore's attorney, Dennis Boaz, said the convict has told him, "I'm considering marrying Nicole. They have married other convicts in prison before. So I don't think they'll stand in my way."

Gilmore already has been denied his wish to die on Monday, the day originally set for his execution by a firing squad for the murder of a motel clerk. His case has been referred to a Wednesday meeting of the Utah Board of Pardons.

It also seemed likely he would be denied his wish to marry.

Warden Samuel Smith said he has not been requested to perform any ceremony, and doesn't know whether the prison would allow a marriage.

"My only thought is that I see no value in it at this time," Smith said.

The divorcee, who has gone into virtual seclusion except for her visits to Gilmore, has said she blames herself for Gilmore's drinking, shoplifting and eventual murder of 25-year-old Bennie Bushnell.

"He flipped out, he just went crazy," she said.

Gilmore was scheduled to be shot at 8 a.m. today, but Gov. Calvin Rampton delayed the execution until the State Board of Pardons, which meets Wednesday, can review the case.

Man charged in hit-and-run fatality

A 24-year-old Bartlett man has been released from jail on bond in connection with the Friday night hit-and-run car accident that killed 15-year-old Raymond V. Bruehler, 714 Rand Grove Ln., Palatine. James L. Marksberry, 112 10th Ave., was charged with leaving the scene of an accident, driving while intoxicated, possession of marijuana and reckless homicide after his pickup truck allegedly struck Bruehler while he was riding a bicycle on Dundee Road near Rand Road shortly after 10 p.m. Marksberry allegedly sped away from the scene on eastbound Dundee Road. He was apprehended by Cook County Sheriff's police at 10:45 p.m. Friday in the parking lot of the Monopoly Rock Club and Dispotheque, 535 E. Rand Rd. Marksberry, released Saturday on a $25,000 bond, is scheduled to appear in the Mount Prospect branch of the Cook County Circuit Court at 1:30 p.m. Dec. 7. Bruehler, taken to Northwest Community Hospital after the accident, died shortly before midnight Friday.

Two 7-Eleven stores robbed

Police are investigating the armed robberies of two Northwest suburban 7-Eleven stores that netted bandits a total of $185. At 12:11 a.m. Friday a man about 20-years-old, entered the 7-Eleven store at 1301 S. Arlington Heights, Rd., Elk Grove Village, and took $50 at knife-point from the only clerk in the store. He reportedly used a knife to cut a telephone wire before fleeing in an older model chevrolet. Shortly after 12:30 a.m. Friday a similar robbery took place as a knife-wielding bandit escaped with $135 in cash from a 7-Eleven at Wise and Roselle roads in Schaumburg. The robber held a knife at the clerk's throat and demanded the money during the Schaumburg holdup.

Sticker tickets to go out today

Wheeling police today will issue about 1,200 $3 tickets to residents who have not bought 1976 village vehicle stickers. Police Chief M. O. Horcher said the tickets will be mailed to residents as part of the village's crackdown. Since the program began Oct. 13, the village has collected more than $12,000 in delinquent revenues. Residents who purchase the stickers before Nov. 30 will be charged $3 late fee and the sticker cost. After Nov. 30, Horcher said, violators will be summoned to court to face a fine of up to $300.

New municipality affordable

Enough tax revenue could be raised to support a new municipality in the Maine Township area, according to a state study. The three-square-mile area of the township could be incorporated as a city or village without placing a strain on taxpayers, the report by the Illinois Dept. of Local Government Affairs shows. Gerald Feldman, president of the Golf-Maine Park District and member of a committee studying incorporation of the area, said his committee originally believed incorporation was impossible because of the lack of business and industry in the area. The committee, however, "was surprised at the kind of money that is available," Feldman said. The population of the area is estimated at 33,100.

Blind unit to file with NLRB

The National Federation of the Blind plans to file a complaint with the National Labor Relations Board Monday charging unfair labor practices were used in the firing of three blind employees who tried to unionize a workshop for the blind, an official said Sunday. Jim Gashel, chief of the federation's Washington office, said the NFB along with local 5050 of the Communications Workers of America will file with the NLRB charges of unfair labor practices against the Chicago Lighthouse. The Lighthouse — a "sheltered workshop" where the blind do "low level unskilled jobs such as assembly and packaging," — according to Gashel, discharged three employees, Charles Ivory, Moser Howard and Mary Lou Winter on Friday. The three have been among the leaders in a union organizing campaign.

Syrian tanks and troops poised for Beirut push

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Columns of Syrian troops and tanks Sunday pierced deep into Christian and Moslem territory, poised to push into the capital at dawn Monday, implementing the Arab peace plan for Lebanon.

The peace-keeping force took positions north and south of Beirut and warned civilians to keep the highways clear for the force's push into Beirut.

"People are asked to avoid using the main roads and highways of Beirut and the suburbs between midnight Sunday and Monday evening to facilitate the implementation of the second phase of the security plan," Beirut radio stations said.

The first phase of the "security plan" came last Wednesday when two Syrian-dominated armored brigades swept down from positions in the central mountains on the outskirts of Beirut.

Sunday more than 100 armored vehicles rolled from positions near the capital on the coastal highway deep into Christian territories. They passed Jounieh, the Casino du Liban and the ancient seaport of Byblos on their way to Arasheet, 27 miles north of Beirut.

A second column rumbled south into the leftist-held Chouf mountains, reaching Beit Ed Dine, site of the ancient stone palace of the Emirs of Lebanon, 18 miles south of the capital.

Another column of vehicles and troops assembled on the city's north-eastern limit in preparation for a move on the port and the gutted international hotels, two of the most heavily fought-over sections of the ravaged city.

At the same time, Syrian reinforcements moved to positions the Arab League army already held at Khalde south of the capital, Galerie Simaane to the southwest and Hazmieh, also to the southwest.

The fresh troops and armor rolled down from the central mountains east of Beirut during the day to reinforce the Arab peace-keeping forces before the expected thrust into the heart of the divided city.

Mamie celebrates 80th birthday

• Mamie Eisenhower turned 80 Sunday and celebrated the day with birthday greetings sung by her church congregation, and a quiet afternoon with her family at the farm she shared with husband, Ike, on the edge of the Gettysburg battlefield. Mrs. Eisenhower — asked during a rare interview what her 80th birthday would mean to her — said: "It's just another day. It's another decade gone by. Another step on my way to Abilene." Mamie makes frequent trips to Abilene, Kans., her husband's boyhood home where Ike's body was returned for burial in 1969 at a chapel named the "Place of Meditation." It is there that Mamie will be buried next to her husband when she dies. The former First Lady relaxes with occasional rides through the rolling Pennsylvania hillsides, but her travel has been restricted since she suffered a painful attack of shingles last New Year's Eve.

• Prince Charles celebrated his 28th birthday Sunday with a royal party aboard his spit-and-polished navy ship. The newest candidate for "future queen" missed the festivities, but her absence did not still the guessing game about Charles' possible marital intentions. The heir to the British throne escorted his mother, Queen Elizabeth, aboard the HMS Brokington, the ship the prince commands. The royal young woman who wasn't there — Princess Marie-Astrid of Luxembourg — is the gossip candidate as his potential bride.

• Officials of the Miss World contest had a puzzle on their hands Sunday. Where is Miss Venezuela? "As far as we know she arrived from Caracas on a flight Saturday," a contest official said in London. "But the cable giving us her flight data arrived three hours after the flight, and by the time we got to the airport she had gone." Gone where? That's what nobody knows. Officials think she may just be staying with friends.

POPE PAUL VI arrives at St. Peter's Basilica Sunday for beatification ceremonies proclaiming 16th century Spanish nun Maria de Jesus a Blessed of the Roman Catholic Church. Sister Maria de Jesus was born in Tartanedo, Spain in 1560 and died 80 years later.

PRESIDENT-ELECT Jimmy Carter announces to a crowd that anyone regardless of race will be allowed to worship at his Plains Baptist Church. Carter attended a 3-hour meeting Sunday.

It vindicates the people of Plains."

A joyful Edwards stood arm-in-arm with his wife on the church steps after the votes were announced. "Our church had a family problem," he said, "and we've settled it in a family manner."

The motion to integrate the congregation was made by Jerome Ethridge, a local man who wants to go to Africa as a missionary.

Jody Powell, Carter's press secretary, said Ethridge made a "very eloquent plea," saying his effectiveness as a missionary would be impaired if his hometown church was known to be segregated.

When the meeting ended only a few hundred persons remained outside because of periodic cold rains which pelted the area.

THE ONLY demonstration while the meeting proceeded inside came from a racially mixed group that occasionally sang hymns on the church steps such as "Love Lifted Me," "He Lives," and "Give Me The Old Time Religion."

Three Ku Klux Klan members also waited outside the church and spoke briefly with reporters during the meeting. They wore business suits until the results were announced, then donned their traditional white robes before leaving.

King, a black nondemonstrational minister from Albany, Ga., 40 miles away, was at Plains for his third Sunday attempt to obtain membership in the congregation that has been all white since the late 1800s.

He was accompanied by two other ministers — the Rev. Elder Thorpe, a Disciples of Christ preacher from Washington, D.C., and the Rev. J. W. Williams, co-founder of King's Albany Mission — and a fourth man, Richard Lopez, of Stockton, Calif.

Temptation for Russians?

Weak spots in NATO defense line cited

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Weak spots in the NATO defense line may tempt the Russians to launch a blitzkrieg in Europe, forcing the United States and its allies to either start nuclear war on their own territory or accept defeat, two senators said Sunday.

Sens. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., reported their discovery of the defense weakness in a joint statement timed for their return from a two-week visit to major North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries.

Nunn and Bartlett said both the United States and the European members of NATO need to invest more heavily in conventional defenses to correct the problems.

Within the past decade, they said, Communist conventional forces have been built up to the point where now they have "an ability to initiate a potentially devastating invasion of Europe with as little as a few days warning."

Present NATO defense plans assume there will be warning signals up to one month before an attack, followed by a war that would last between one and six months and allow time for reinforcements.

But Nunn and Bartlett said that in reality, attacking Communist troops could be on the Rhine River in West Germany within a matter of hours, "compelling the NATO allies to choose between using nuclear weapons on their own territory or accepting defeat at the hands of improved Soviet conventional forces."

They said the failure of NATO to keep pace with the Russians may tempt the Soviet Union to launch an invasion.

"The viability of NATO's current strategy of flexible response in the use of conventional non-nuclear, tactical nuclear and strategic nuclear forces is now open to serious question," they said.

Both senators serve on the Senate Armed Services Committee. Nunn last year successfully pushed legislation to upgrade defenses through Congress. His new NATO recommendations are likely to come up in next year's session.

They said European members should do "much more" than at present, adding: "We, too, must apply the necessary resources."

Saying that firepower — rather than manpower — is the critical item in modern conventional war, the senators recommended that a conference similar to the NATO ministerial meeting planned for December be convened to consider:

- Increasing readiness by moving both major combat units and ammunition to bases closer to the Communist frontier.

- Stepping up the pace at which reinforcements can arrive by providing more airlift capability and repositioning bigger equipment stocks.

- Repairing "serious deficiencies" in existing air defenses to meet threats from upgraded Russian Tactical Airpower.

- Substantially expanding stocks of artillery and other ground force munitions in addition to air-to-air missiles.

Rough sea hampers crewmen search

HONOLULU (UPI)—Rough seas Sunday hampered the search for 19 crewmen missing for three days since a storm sank their freighter, and the Coast Guard said it would be "almost miraculous" if they survived the 10-to-15-foot waves and icy waters.

Fourteen crewmen from the Japanese lumber vessel, Carnelian-1, were rescued by passing merchant ships Thursday midway between Hawaii and the Aleutian Islands in rain, 57-mile winds and 30-foot swells.

On Saturday, the storm that sank the freighter subsided, but Coast Guard spokesman Jim Morris said the renewed rough weather Sunday was making difficult the search for survivors by the 378-foot U.S. cutter Mellon and a large, long-endurance C-130 cargo plane.

The Coast Guard said one person previously reported as dead now was listed as missing, raising the total to 19, because the heavy seas swept his body out of the sight of the cutter and plane, and it was not known if he was dead or alive.

Morris said the Coast Guard doubled the size of the area it was searching Sunday and that it now encompassed 1,000 square miles, with its center about 1,400 miles northwest of Honolulu. But he said it would be "almost miraculous" if there were survivors even if they wore exposure suits.

"That is because of the water temperature and the fact that they have been out there since Thursday," he said. "But we still have hope."

Rescuers tried to use a line of logs from the Carnelian's cargo, spread along an eight-mile line, to lead them to possible survivors. Some of the rescued men had clung to logs that had been torn loose from the ship's deck.

It was still a mystery why the captain of the vessel, half of whose crew was Chinese and half Burmese, failed to sound the alarm to abandon ship. The Carnelian went down three hours after its first mayday messages. The captain, Kwong Hung, 53, was among the missing.

One of the merchant ships that picked up survivors left the scene because the storm was dangerously shifting its own cargo of logs. The other departed in darkness, saying it could find no more seamen. Both vessels headed for Japan with the survivors.

Firefighter leaders start jail terms

SPRINGFIELD, IL. (UPI)—Four leaders of a citywide fire-fighters' strike began serving 30-day jail terms Sunday for refusing to call an end to the four-day-old walkout in compliance with a judge's back-to-work order.

The officers of Local 37 of the International Assn. of Firefighters entered Sangamon County Jail to a singing, shouting sendoff by a crowd of several hundred supporters.

The crowd, including leaders of several other Springfield unions and the families of the firefighters sang "My Country 'Tis of Thee" as the men entered the jail.

SANGAMON COUNTY Circuit Court Judge Richard Cadigan ordered the officials jailed Saturday after they refused to send their 156 firefighters back to work in compliance with his orders. He also imposed a $5,000-a-day fine on the union. Cadigan acted after what appeared to be a negotiated settlement fell apart during all-day bargaining.

Local 37 Pres. Rex McCawley said he will remain in jail "as long as it takes the (city) council to negotiate a binding agreement with us."

"I'm not going to put my men back to work because I'm going to jail," he said. "This is a threat they've made to me."

SEVERAL HUNDRED persons rallied outside the Sangamon county jail in Springfield Sunday as four officers of Firefighters Local 37 entered the building to begin serving their 30-day sentence for contempt of court. The firefighters were jailed for refusing to end their strike.

Open field on plum federal jobs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Government Printing Office bookstore in the State Dept. can't keep the book in stock.

The first order was sold out in hours — a remarkable fact, considering that the little volume contains only 139 pages of lists and has the unexciting title of "Policy and Supporting Positions."

Although its cover is bright yellow, the book is known around the State

Dept. and other federal agencies in Washington as the "Plum Book." It lists all of the jobs — about 2,200 in all — that are the political plums of winning an election.

The State Dept., which includes some of the most glamorous plums including all the ambassadorships around the world, takes up 15 pages in the Plum Book. It offers about 600 positions that would make the juices flow for anyone hungry for power, influence and — not least — money.

AT THE TOP of the State Department list is the position of secretary of state, a level I job that presently pays $63,000 a year. By law that should really be $66,000, but Congress failed to appropriate enough money, the salary has to be cut by $3,000 a year to make ends meet.

Even unimpressive sounding jobs such as "Special Assistant to the Undersecretary for Economic Affairs" pay $36,092 a year.

Ambassadors' pay varies from $44,800 a year for the big posts, such as Japan or Great Britain, down to $37,000 for the smaller posts such as Mauritania.

The job of ambassador provides such amenities as a free limousine, a chauffeur and a free house, usually with a swimming pool, tennis court and servants thrown in. There are, however, some risks, — three U.S. ambassadors have been shot and killed in the past three years.

SOME OF THE jobs, including some ambassadorships, are held by career foreign service officers and will not be up for grabs.

But others in the State Dept. and elsewhere, including the job of driving the administrator of the Agency for International Development's car at a salary of $5.19 an hour, are open as the process of Washington turning over leadership proceeds.

Illinois briefs

Leadership fights loom in legislature

The Illinois General Assembly returns Wednesday to weigh Gov. Daniel Walker's vetoes, but the spotlight is likely to be on leadership fights, not legislation. That is because the most controversial Walker veto, aid to education, was resolved in September at a special session. The legislature finally agreed to his plan to restore $50 million in school spending and pay for it by speeding up $65 million in tax collections.

Furthermore, party caucuses to fill four vacant leadership posts — two each in the House and Senate — probably will coincide with the fall veto session. Hostile leadership struggles began shortly after the Nov. 2 election and are expected to climax sometime in December. At stake in the House are the majority and minority leadership jobs. The Senate must find a president and minority leader.

When lawmakers aren't wrapped up in what promise to be fierce leadership battles, they must deal with Walker's 81 vetoes. Forty-eight are spending cuts totaling about $500 million in a $10.4 billion fiscal 1977 budget sent to him by the legislature. Walker can expect serious attempts to restore at least $45 million of the cuts. Among the bills likely to see override efforts are measures funding higher education. Walker trimmed pay raises for university instructors from 5 per cent to 3 per cent, and legislators from college towns have promised override efforts. If the salary level is restored to 5 per cent, it would cost the state about $10 million.

'State in tough fiscal crisis'

Illinois is going through the toughest part of its fiscal crisis now and better days should come next fiscal year, according to the man Governor-elect James Thompson has chosen to head his budget bureau. But Dr. Robert L. Mandeville said there still are pitfalls in the budget picture — some of them still unassessed and potentially dangerous. Mandeville, currently deputy comptroller and a former assistant budget director, was named to head Thompson's budget bureau even before election returns were complete. He discussed the prospects for Thompson's budget in an interview.

The current fiscal year, which ends June 30, "is the crucial year," Mandeville said. He said this year, fiscal 1977, is critical because it is the year when the state has to stop spending more than it takes in — a pattern that developed during the past two fiscal years. That means, Mandeville said, Illinois this year will have to pay its bills from current income, without drawing down its treasury "savings account" as it has the past two years. So all new revenue derived from normal growth of the economy this year goes, in effect, to replace funds that for the past two years have been taken from savings.

"It's like a family that one year gets a salary of $10,000 and spends it all, plus another $2,000 they get by closing out their savings account," Mandeville said. "Next year they get a $2,000 raise. But they can't raise their standard of living because they're already used to living at the $12,000 level." Next year's revenue growth, however, will be like another $2,000 raise for the mythical family, Mandeville said. And the portion of that hike which is not eaten by inflation will be available for improving the state's standard of living.

There are other favorable signs for the Thompson administration, Mandeville said, including a continuing decrease in the caseload of the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program and the end next year of a five-year push to fund fully the school aid formula.

Firefighter leaders start jail terms

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI)—Four leaders of a citywide fire-fighter's strike began serving 30-day jail terms Sunday for refusing to call an end to the four-day-old walkout in compliance with a judge's back-to-work order.

The officers of Local 37 of the International Assn. of Firefighters entered Sangamon County Jail to a singing, shouting sendoff by a crowd of several hundred supporters.

The crowd, including leaders of several other Springfield unions and the families of the firefighters sang "My Country 'Tis of Thee" as the men entered the jail.

SANGAMON COUNTY Circuit Court Judge Richard Cadigan ordered the officials jailed Saturday after they refused to send their 158 firefighters back to work in compliance with his orders. ## Lutheran synod founding puts turmoil of split behind

by JOHN LAMPINEN

The founding convention of the English Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church took place in a mood of quiet harmony during the weekend.

As Harold DeVries, delegate from Faith Lutheran Church, Mundelein, put it, most of the turmoil that resulted in the split from the Missouri Synod is over.

"It's getting together and saying, 'Hey, we're here,'" he said of the convention at the Arlington Park Hilton, Arlington Heights.

"The issues are over," said the Rev. Carl F. Thrun of Trinity Lutheran Church in Rolling Meadows. "We're moving on in terms of mission and ministry."

TRINITY WAS one of 76 congregations from across the country meeting under a theme of "A New Song" after seven years of conflict over interpretations of the Bible within the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

There were references to the Missouri Synod that the Lutherans were leaving behind, but for the most part, they were references designed to serve as reminders for the delegations' talk of new freedom and increased involvement of the laity in church affairs.

"This day in this place we sing to the Lord a new song as the English Synod begins its new life in Christ," keynote speaker Dr. Martin E. Marty told the convention Friday. "Though members of a little flock within the little flock that is Christ's community on earth, we feel closer to the rest of the church today than ever before."

Saturday's featured speaker, Dr. Martin Kretzmann, tackled the question of the split directly.

"We are not leaving the Missouri Synod," he said. "It has ceased to be what it was meant to be."

"We are unworthy servants," he said. "We have only 'no what was necessary.'"

DISCUSSING HIS observations about the convention, The Rev. Thrun referred to a new sense of fellowship after the years of turmoil within the Missouri Synod.

"I feel for myself a great sense of relief that instead of all the in-fighting, we can really get on with the job that Christ meant us to do," he said.

The years of fighting among themselves instead of concentrating on spreading God's word, was a "great disgrace" among Christians, he said.

Echoing a view that dominated the convention, the Rev. Thrun said he sees the English Synod as being "more inclusive" in its dealings with other Christian organizations than was the Missouri Synod.

But he said he sees the newly formed synod as "transitional." DeVries said a continual issue within the church will be whether it should join forces with another Lutheran organization.

THE REV. THRUN said he didn't know if it would go that far.

"But at least, we want to be in fellowship with them," he said. "I hope it (the English Synod) doesn't become another super church."

The closest the convention came to fighting over issues was during unsuccessful attempts to amend the constitution adopted earlier by the synod's board of directors.

The most volatile debate occurred over a requirement in the constitution that the president, vice presidents and secretary be ministers.

The Rev. Thomas Strieter of Glen Ellyn took exception, saying the requirement "continues what I consider the heresy" of the Missouri Synod.

"One of the beautiful things that is going on here is that two-thirds of the people here are laypersons," he said. "Let's not exclude their involvement."

THE REV. ARLAN Brandt of Aurora said he isn't against striking the phrase but prefers to get the individual congregations involved in considering a possible amendment.

The second point of contention concerned the preamble, which outlined the English Synod's battles within the Missouri Synod.

"This preamble has the danger of setting up exclusivity," he said, adding that it might "set up barriers" to others who might want to affiliate with the synod.

He called for the preamble to be eliminated and replaced with a more positive statement of the synod's beliefs and goals.

For the amendments to have been enacted, the delegates would have had to have voted to direct the board to meet during the convention to make the amendments. After the first convention, power to make amendments passes from the board to subsequent annual conventions.

Both amendment proposals were defeated by voice votes after opponents stressed that congregations will be given a chance to discuss them during the coming year.

Condition of man good after collision

An Arlington Heights man was in good condition Sunday at Northwest Community Hospital following a two-car collision Saturday in Palatine.

Ronald W. Sternberg, 22, of 1315 N. Pine Ave., received minor injuries when his car collided with one driven by 74-year-old Henrietta L. DeBerg, 410 W. Palatine Rd., Palatine, at the intersection of Palatine Road and Northwest Highway.

Police ticketed Sternberg for failure to yield the right of way while turning left. He is scheduled to appear at 9 a.m. Dec. 9 in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Police said the Sternberg auto was southbound on Northwest Highway attempting to turn onto eastbound Palatine Road when it was hit by the DeBerg car traveling north on Northwest Highway.

Model homes bid before village today

A request by Szczesny Builders to build three model homes on the site of the Courts of Russettwood subdivision will be considered by the Arlington Heights Village Board at its regular meeting at 8 p.m. today at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Teachers try value systems plan

Teachers in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 will be learning about personal and social values in a new program sponsored by the Lilly Foundation. The board of education approved the district's participation in the project this week.

Dist. 21 will be one of five model school districts in the country and the only district in Illinois to take part in "Project Impact," which examines value systems and helps teachers clarify their own values and beliefs.

The project will involve about 75 teachers in a series of in-service training seminars beginning in January. The teachers will be selected from each of the 17 Dist. 21 schools and they will serve as specialists within their own schools.

The teachers in this program also will be taught how to improve decision-making for themselves and their students.

The project is underwritten by a grant to the Lilly Foundation and will be conducted at no cost to Dist. 21.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said Dist. 21 was selected for this project because it has already done work in staff development with teachers.

Land gift rule OKd

The Dist. 21 board Thursday approved an agreement with the Village of Wheeling and the park district to pay any legal costs if a proposed land dedication ordinance is challenged in a lawsuit.

The ordinance, which needs village approval, requires developers to make cash or land donations to park and school districts. Developers would be required to donate 5.5 acres for recreational purposes for every 1,000 persons their projects bring into the village. Cash or land donations to the school district would be based on the number of pupils who would live in the new developments.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said the district helped draw up the ordinance and supports its passage by the village board.

The Wheeling park district last week approved the agreement to intervene in any lawsuits concerning the land donation ordinance. Village Atty. John Burke said last week lawsuits could result from the proposed ordinance since a similar law passed by the city of Naperville is being challenged by developers.

The nation Patty lawyers map plan for release

Patricia Hearst's attorneys worked in San Francisco Sunday on plans to protect her from being "rubbed out" in hopes of persuading a judge to release her from prison this week. Attorneys F. Lee Bailey and Albert Johnson, seeking bail for the newspaper heiress who was convicted of taking part in a bank robbery with the Symbionese Liberation Army that had kidnapped her, were told by U.S. District Judge William H. Orrick Jr. to submit plans assuring her safety.

Orrick told Bailey at a hearing Friday to offer a "plan of release" which would remain sealed. He said he would then rule on it. Bailey and Johnson said they hoped to have the plan in Orrick's hands early this week. Bailey, pointing out that Miss Hearst, 22, has cooperated with government authorities by giving information, told a news conference she was a "potential witness in some very serious cases. People have been rubbed out in the past, and for a lot less," he said, adding: his office received a message saying that the next time the terrorist SLA would send her home "in a paper bag."

Transform GOP: Sen. Helms

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., called Sunday for transformation of the GOP into a "broad-based conservative party," and said preparations should be made now for the 1978 elections. Helms also said conservatives should set up a "shadow government" to challenge the actions of President-elect Jimmy Carter. He urged a special convention within the next two years to define the issues and focus national attention on conservative principles.

Helms, who backed Ronald Reagan for the GOP presidential nomination, said conservatives must seize the Republican party machinery from chairmanship of the national committee on down. Consideration also should be given to renaming the party, he said. The American Conservative Union last week made many of the same suggestions that Helms outlined.

Weigh food risks: FDA chief

The government may wind up "banning things right and left" unless a way is found to let some possible cancer-causing substances remain in food and the environment, Food and Drug Administrator Alexander Schmidt said Sunday. "We build highways, we build bridges, we build buildings, knowing full well what the statistical probability of people being killed is in doing those things," Schmidt said in a farewell interview. "So it is not reasonable to believe the use of chemicals in our society can be totally without risk."

Society may have to weigh the risks from some substances, which might cause cancer, against their benefits in the future, he indicated. Schmidt, who will return to the University of Illinois Medical School Dec. 1 after more than three years at the FDA, also said it might be better for the agency to be headed by a "frankly political" chief — who would take the criticism and heat while those under him do the real consumer protection work.

NATO meeting in Williamsburg

Representatives from Western Europe arrived in Williamsburg, Va. Sunday for a week-long meeting of the North Atlantic Assembly, during which they are expected to discuss ways to check expanding Soviet military power. Politicians from across Western Europe also may debate this week how the alliance, created in 1949 in the heat of the cold war, should deal with the possibility of communists gaining cabinet posts in member governments such as Italy or France. Other issues are likely to include the impact of inflation upon NATO's defense capabilities, the status of detente and standardization of weapons among member nations.

Rhodesia compromise urged

African states led by Tanzania urged black Rhodesian leaders in Geneva Sunday to compromise on a date for transition to black majority rule and save the Rhodesia peace talks from a possible breakdown. Nationalist leaders Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe, however, maintained their demands that the transition be completed within one year, a demand to which the white regime will not agree.

Ivor Richard, the British conference chairman, postponed a plenary session Saturday until Monday after the four "front-line" African states around Rhodesia told him they may be able to persuade nationalist leaders to accept a compromise. The leaders of Tanzania, Zambia, Botswana and Mozambique, the four observer nations, met with Nkomo's and Mugabe's delegations through the weekend.

In Salisbury, meantime a government minister said Rhodesian troops met little resistance and got help from civilians during their attack on black guerrilla bases in Mozambique. "Our casualty figures were remarkably low and this is ample evidence of the lack of any sort of serious opposition on the part of the enemy," Information Minister Elly Broomberg said.

Brazil holding city elections

Brazil votes Monday in nationwide mayoral and city council elections that President Ernesto Geisel has tried to turn into a referendum approving his military government. Geisel, making an unprecedented 16-state campaign tour, has asked for a "vote of confidence in the revolution" in the elections. Although the elections involve no parliamentary seats nor federal offices and cannot change the national government, they are considered a test of the increasing strength of the Brazilian Democratic Movement, the only legal opposition party faced by the Alliance for National Renewal, known as Arena.

Israel wants peace talks, but...

JERUSALEM (UPI)—Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said Sunday Israel is more than ready for peace talks with Egypt, but not if it means establishment of a hostile Palestinian state.

He said Israel wants "peace that gives defensible boundaries, a peace that solves the Palestinian issue in a way that will not be a seed that will arouse a lot of trouble and will serve as a time bomb for the future."

"If this is what President Sadat has got in mind, he'll find more than readiness on the part of Israel to do it," Rabin said, referring to Anwar Sadat's statement in Cairo last week to a delegation of visiting U.S. congressmen. One high-ranking source said Sadat's offer to open talks with Israel was "a good public relations play." He said it was not clear whether Sadat wanted the talks to depend on conditions Israel previously rejected — withdrawal from all the territory occupied in the 1967 war and establishment of an independent Palestinian state.

The source said Israeli leaders did not know whether Sadat was referring to "real Peace or peace in the next generation."

"We'd rather — excuse the expression — here it from the horse's mouth," he said.

TOMORROW AT 9A.M. The Largest Grand Opening In Chicago's History Happens WHY? 55 New A&P Stores In 55 Communities Will Open All At Once!

55 new A&P Stores in 55 communities will open all at once! Never before in the history of Chicagoland (to our knowledge) have 55 large, modern, retail outlets of any kind opened their doors all at one time.

The 55 new A&P Stores will service over a half a million people ... more people than 5 times the population of Springfield, Illinois or the entire city of Minneapolis, Minnesota. It's been a tremendous challenge for our people to get ready for this gigantic event ... but we're ready!

That's why the largest Grand Opening Event in Chicago's history happens tomorrow at 9:00 A.M. and every A&P Chicagoland Store is joining in the celebration!

Welcome...

Tomorrow will mark another milestone in the history of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company.

This milestone will take place in the Greater Chicagoland area. In a matter of a few short days we'll have grown in numbers from 82 to 135 Food Stores to better serve you.

We're quick to recognize that numbers alone don't make a food store great. It really gets down to the people in each individual store serving each individual in the community in which they live.

The customer has a right to, and deserves a clean, well managed store that offers wide variety, fresh product, guaranteed quality, and a friendly, pleasant atmosphere in which to shop.

Price, Pride and People is really what A&P is all about. The people of the fifty five new A&P stores will do their very best to make your shopping truly enjoyable. They will serve you with pride, and price will speak for itself.

The entire staff at A&P welcomes you to "Grand Opening" at the A&P store that will be serving your community and we'd also like to take this opportunity to say "Welcome" to all of the new A&P employees who will be serving you.

It's nice to have you at A&P!

draft resister charges dropped as long as I can remember," Olsen said. He said he uses the technicalities of draft law to get a case thrown out.

Seniors seek transit solution

lifetime," said Elk Grove Township Supervisor Richard Hall, noting political squabbling at the 24-year-old RTA.

SOME COMMUNITIES, however, have started to feel the impact of RTA, created to coordinate transportation in a six-county area.

In Mount Prospect, for example, senior citizens program coordinator Kathleen Stoga said many seniors have applied for special RTA reduced fare cards.

Mrs. Stoga said she expects the number of card holders to increase with the new RTA bus service from Wheeling through downtown Mount Prospect to Des Plaines.

That route, beginning Dec. 6, will provide transportation to the Randhurst Shopping Center as well as a connection with Des Plaines buses and the North Western.

"As the systems get better we will get more interest," Mrs. Stoga said. She said even more seniors will take notice when and if the RTA reaches an agreement with the North Western for its commuter service.

IN THE MEANTIME, seniors will have to rely either on the minibus or subsidized taxi service.

The seniors said they favor the taxi service because of its flexibility. They said the major drawback is that subsidized rides must stay within their town limits.

Currently Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Des Plaines offer subsidized taxi service to seniors with special identification cards. In most cases the seniors are charged 50 cents a ride with the local government picking up $1 of the cost.

The service is offered 24-hours every day, except in Des Plaines where the 30 cent fare is only good between 9 a.m. and 11 p.m. At other hours seniors pay a $1 fare.

DES PLAINES uses Martin Cab Co. and Tu-Tone Cab Service for its program, while Mount Prospect uses Prospect Cab Co. The Arlington Heights program is offered through the Arlington Cab Co.

Each of the four townships offering minibus service has a slightly different program. Most are funded with federal revenue-sharing funds, although the Palatine Township bus also gets money from the Village of Palatine and the Suburban Cook County Area Agency on Aging. The services are:

- Elk Grove Township: offers free minibus service from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. On Mondays and Thursdays the minibus provides general service in the township, with trips to the shopping centers scheduled Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Riders should make reservations 24 hours in advance by calling 437-0300. Door-to-door pickup is provided.

- Wheeling Township: offers free bus service from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. On Monday, Wednesday and Friday the bus travels scheduled routes, while on Tuesday and Thursday it provides door-to-door service. Riders should make reservations 24 hours ahead by calling 259-7733. Contributions are accepted.

- Palatine Township: offers minibus service for a 25 cent fare from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Riders should make reservations 24 to 48 hours ahead by calling 691-1112.

- Schaumburg Township: offers minibus service 24 hours every day for a 25 cent fare. Special 10-ride passes also are available. It services a 15-mile radius with door-to-door pickup. Riders should make reservations 24 hours ahead by calling 894-3174.

Information on RTA routes and senior citizens reduced fare cards is available by calling 800-972-7000.

"Draft law is the most complex criminal law in the country," Olsen said. "The draft boards made a lot of mistakes and they made them all the time. I figured if they (the draft board) don't know everything about it, I could find out more."

AND HE DID. Olsen has used such technical points as the draft board's failure to use a draftee's forwarding address, or a failure to notify a man that graduation from college would make him eligible for induction as ways to get an evasion case dismissed.

Olsen began studying draft law when his own induction was pending. He wanted to convince the draft board that he was a conscientious objector. He said during his own interview, a draft member was in error on a technical point, and he was never inducted into the Army.

The most famous draft evader he helped clear is Fritz Eflaw, who spoke and was nominated for vice president at the 1976 Democratic convention.

Olsen said since 1969 there has been "a major counseling effort" for draft resisters in the Chicago area.

The Midwest Committee for Military Counseling is funded by contributions and a number of lawyers have offered their services, Olsen said.

OLSEN CALLED President Ford's clemency program of 1974 an "utter failure." Even government figures show Ford's program, which required alternative civilian service, brought only a handful of draft evaders back to the country.

He said he is not sure what to expect yet from a Carter pardon. But Olsen said he anticipates many inquiries from resisters once Carter announces his plans.

"A lot of guys would like to come back to visit, but that's all," Olsen said. "Many have adjusted to the idea coming back."

Olsen explained what he called the "two extremes" of draft evaders living in Canada — an explanation that supports his claim that few will return under a Carter pardon.

"Some are teaching at colleges, some are working as bankers, some are consultants, just like they would be in the United States," he said.

"The other extreme is made up of the guys who are living on farms, working as artists or even living in the backwoods, trapping. They just wanted to get away from all this bureaucratic nonsense."

Manufacturer's overstocks:

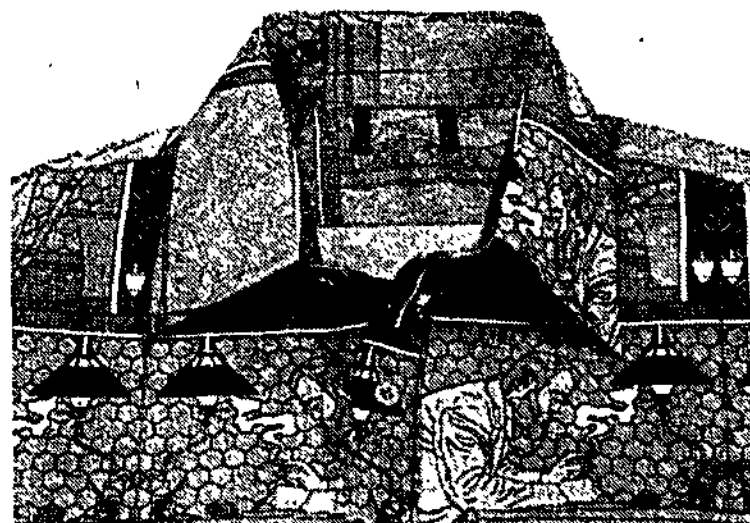

Sometimes famous clothing manufacturers produce too much merchandise and have "overstocks". Because major department stores order merchandise a full season in advance, and Marshalls waits until the season begins, we are able to buy the same merchandise, the overstocks, below wholesale prices ... and pass the savings on to you!

Slight irregulars:

Although selected irregulars are only a small part of our merchandise, they can be an important way for you to save money. Because quality manufacturers strive for perfection, when garments are found that are almost, but not quite up to the very high standards the manufacturer maintains, they are reluctantly marked "irregular" and sold to us at greatly reduced prices. But Marshalls is fussy, we buy only "slight irregulars" which will not affect the fit or wear.

'Stock tie' is easy to make and flattering

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I am enclosing two pictures of scarfs for necklines of blouses that I would very much like to make but cannot find patterns for them. I have a thin neck and think they are flattering. Can you help? — Mrs. H.J.

Dear Mrs. H.J.

The scarf or tie you are referring to is a variation of the classic "stock tie" that was introduced years ago with riding habits. They are very simple to make and extremely flattering, especially if you do have a thin neck or a crinkly one.

The length of the scarf will depend on the way you will tie it. It can be simply tied in a knot with short ends. It can be tied with fold over ties, or it can be worn with a lovely soft bow.

If possible, make your scarf on the bias. It will be much softer and so much nicer. I have found that a strip cut on the bias, about 11 inches wide is perfect. Of course, your bias strips can be pieced, and they really won't show.

For the tie with a knot and short ends, you will need about 48 inches length, for the one with the flip over ends, about 76 inches and for the one with the soft bow, allow about 90 to 95 inches.

Make a paper pattern of your scarf in the length you desire. Place it on a paper the width of your fabric and you will know just how much fabric to purchase depending on the width.

Fold over and stitch one side seams making the tie about 5 inches wide. Finish the ends at an angle. Be sure to leave about 2 inches open at the center of your long seam so that your scarf can be turned to the right side.

The real secret of the scarf is the way it is worn. Fold scarf in half the long way. With the center, place at the front of your neck, winding both ends around the neck to the back, and then to the front again, leaving the first layer extend slightly higher than the new tie.

Now you may proceed to tie the scarf according to the length you made it. You can tie it in a perky knot, a fold over flip tie, or a large soft bow. Hope everyone will try this feminine scarf. Also, they make great gifts and we're all thinking of these today.

Remember, unless you cut your scarf on the bias, it might be too thick and bulky for the effect you wish.

This week's Sew Simple sewing tip winner of the beautiful set of gold blazer buttons is Mrs. Elver C. Bullard, Fieldale, Va.

Sew simple

by Eunice Farmer

"If you have well fitting patterns or those with unusual details, no matter how old, save them. When you place them back into the pattern envelope, be sure each piece is folded with the name of the piece on the outside so that it can be found instantly. By putting patterns together you will be able to do your own styling and will usually be one season ahead of the patterns in the book and right up there with the latest designer fashions."

A tennis racket cover, cover-up poncho, or a bib scarf for a neckline are boutique gifts you can whip up in a hurry for just pennies.

For your instructions on how to make these gifts send for Eunice Farmer's "Boutique Gifts" booklet by enclosing 25 cents and a long, stamped self-addressed envelope with your request for it. Mail to Sew Simple in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 260, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Dear Eunice Farmer,

At this time of year we seem to be besieged with one sewing expert after the other coming through our city with great ballyhoo, claiming miracles for the home-sewer. The entrance fee is small, but before you get out, they have made you feel that everything they sell is necessary and you have spent a fortune. Perhaps they aren't all the same, but since I feel I got burned once, I'm afraid to go to another one of these "two-day stands." I have always taken such stock in your column. Please give us your answer. — Mrs. V. F. Y.

Dear Mrs. V.F.Y.

First, and I can't stress this too strongly, I feel that you can almost always learn something new from any teacher if you keep your eyes and ears open. My students are always surprised when they find me attending these lectures. I must see what is new and what is being taught. I can honestly say that even with my background, I have usually come away with some new trick.

My only suggestion would be this one. If they are going to sell (Continued on Page 13)

The key to survival:

Catch breast cancer early

by BARBARA Ladd

Breast cancer. It's a phrase that prompts women to exchange uneasy glances and a disease that will claim the lives of 33,000 American females by the end of this year.

It is the leading cause of death for all women 40 to 44 years old; in Illinois 1,900 women are expected to die of that cancer in 1976.

"There's a one in 15 chance that you'll get breast cancer," said Geraldine West, registered nurse, to a roomful of Elk Grove Village Newcomers last week. "And you should know that 95 per cent of all tumors are found by women at home — not by their doctors."

Mrs. West was at the meeting to tell women about BSE (Breast Self-Examination) on behalf of the American Cancer Society branch in Palatine.

"A LOT OF WOMEN feel it's terrible to touch their own bodies," she said. "But that's old-fashioned, it's Victorian. You should know everything about your body. We women have an obligation to take care of our breasts."

The American Cancer Society has recently expanded its educational targets to teach high school girls and young women about breast self-examination. The association maintains that BSE should be a regular health habit.

A survey by Gallup in 1973 indicated that one-half of all adult women in this country do not even have an annual breast examination by a physician and older women missed yearly checkups more than younger ones.

"We all know about paying $80 for a physical and getting out without a breast examination," said Mrs. West. "That's why it's so important to practice 'BSE.'"

SHE CONTINUED. "I had an R.N. friend in Denver who recently had a radical mastectomy and I asked her, 'Kathy, did you examine your breasts regularly?' And she said 'no.' I just couldn't believe it."

Detecting breast cancer in its early stages is the key to survival, she said. The chance of recovery is nearly doubled if the cancer is treated before it spreads to other parts of the body.

Besides self-examination, there are two other ways of detecting breast cancer, she said. One is mammography, a low-dose X-ray which pinpoints any abnormality; the other is thermography, which is a photograph showing skin surface heat patterns of the breast.

There has been a controversy surrounding the use of mammograms," said Mrs. West. "But it is an outstanding means of screening breast cancer."

THE CONTROVERSY revolves around some doctors' opinion that any radiation is dangerous. But the American Cancer Association reaffirmed its position last month, saying it will strongly support mammography for all women who should have this procedure.

Mammography is used at the 27 free Breast Cancer Detection Demonstration Projects for 275,000 women nationwide. The program was launched in 1972 and will end in 1980. The Medical College of Wisconsin in Milwaukee is the nearest such project, although Mammograms are routinely given in Evanston for breast screening, said Mrs. West.

BREAST CANCER is one of the easiest cancers to find and diagnose, according to the American Cancer Society. However, many women don't discover their cancers soon enough to treat them successfully. To teach women correct procedures for detecting breast cancer, professionals like Geraldine West, Arlington Heights, use films and demonstration "Batsi" models. These models have tumors that can be felt upon palpitation.

Thermography is a procedure used extensively at George and Anna Portes Cancer Prevention Center in Chicago.

"This process operates on the fact that cancer cells are hotter than normal cells. This shows up on film," Mrs. West explained.

"BUT REMEMBER that the first and best breast cancer detection program is in your own bedroom."

At the end of the program Mrs. West fielded question from women on the relation of breast cancer and breastfeeding, the age of the mother when she had her first baby and occurrence of breast cancer, and the difference between cancer and fibro cystic disease.

"Most women have fibro cystic disease," she said. "It feels like little lumps in the breast. I've got it and it's no concern to me or my doctor."

Of concern is the sudden appearance of a lump, she said. "That's why it's so important for you to be familiar with your own physical makeup."

MOST BREAST tumors are not painful and eight of 10 are benign.

Breast Self-Examination programs can be arranged through the American Cancer Society in Palatine at 358-3965.

"There are cases where women wear bras to bed to hide their lumps," said Mrs. West. "And that's so sad. This is a subject I don't ever want you to feel embarrassed about."

Women must liberate themselves psychiatric nurse tells juniors

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

"True emancipation begins neither in the courts nor at the polls — it begins in a woman's soul." — Emma Goldman

Freeing the suburban woman's soul from the pressures of her traditional role is a tall order, but Denise Benton, a psychiatric nurse and instructor at Harper College, gave it the old college try at last week's meeting of the Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club.

Prefacing her remarks with the warning that "this could be called 'mind rape' because it's an intrusion upon the innermost thoughts and values many women hold," the petite wife and mother of three went on to question the validity of a role that centers around the children's football practice and guitar lessons.

Several years ago, Benton pointed out, there were no alternatives to a home-centered lifestyle. While this clear-cut role may have made some women even more unhappy, it was undoubtedly a source of comfort to many. But today, the options are greater — and the effects are showing up in several ways, she said.

MORE WOMEN are taking a dimmer view of their role as housewives; they're recognizing that the work never ends and that when hubby states "No wife of mine is ever going to work," he's got not only a working wife but one without the dignity of a paycheck.

A recent study of middle-aged women showed that depression was most common in the woman who had defined herself primarily as wife and mother, playing by the rules and unconsciously "expecting a payoff in the end, only to discover that husbands die, children move away and "seldom do the children fight for the privilege of having mother live with them," Benton said with a wry smile.

And currently, 70 per cent of the patients seen in private psychiatric practice in this area are women, reported Benton. The high percentage isn't a suburban phenomenon, she added. Women are socialized to ask for help rather than head for the local bar or beat up on their husbands.

THE PROBLEMS that cause women's depression and anxiety have no respect for city boundaries, Benton said, but what's unique is the suburban tolerance for "differentness" and deviance.

"When the Arlington Heights city planner is quoted saying, 'Arlington Heights is clean and there are no problems here,' what's the person who does have problems to think?" queried Benton.

"The inclination to hide problems in such an atmosphere is understandable," she continued, "but when you do, you set yourself up for a tremendous sense of isolation."

That isolation is compounded by the high number of corporate transfers in the area, she said. The husband has a defined job and work relationships to head into, but women are stuck with packing, unpacking, finding new doctors, schools and friends for the children . . . the list goes on ad infinitum.

THE RESULT, she maintains, is that "we end up pretty lonely . . . many women have told me they no longer attempt anything more than the most superficial friendships after a few painful terminations."

What's the cure to the malaise? Denny Benton, sporting a "Don't bother me, I can't cope" button, is the first to admit that for many women, an outside job would just be a second burden, that going back to school would be another drudgery.

But for starters, women can stop living their lives through their families; can start writing down goals for one, five or 10 years away and can recognize that other women can be great assets.

THE DISCOMFORT of redefining tradition is a real one, says Benton, a wife and mother of three who made a conscious decision to change her life several years ago. Her husband welcomed the change and their marriage has been strengthened as a result, but when a friend tried the same approach, her spouse walked out. There are no guarantees, and if a woman is happy with a role as full-time wife and mother, more power to her.

But for those who aren't, the key is to start planning for the future: "It's time for women to start acting instead of reacting . . . and realizing that no situation is permanent."

Isometric exercise will firm up arms

A year and a half ago I had a fractured hip operation. This prevents me from doing the exercises I used to do. I'm 5 feet 7 and weigh 118 pounds. I know this is a good weight.

My biggest problem is that my arms have become flabby. What I'm looking for is an exercise to firm my upper arms.

I understand that you might have some problems with exercises that require the use of your legs — depending on the amount of damage you sustained and your recovery — but I don't understand how that would keep you from exercising your arms. After all a person paralyzed from the waist down can do exercises on a parallel bars and weight lifting to build up the arms to the level needed to move the body around. Usually people with damage to the legs from any cause develop strong arms.

You can lie on your back and lift weights with the arm extended. Or you can use "bend the elbow" exercises while holding a weight. If you can stand up to a chin-up bar, you could do chin-ups.

A person can develop and maintain muscle mass to a satisfactory degree by simply using modified isometric exercises. Your body is built with opposing muscle groups. As an example, tense the muscles in your arm with your elbow bent. Now keep your muscles tense and straighten, then bend the elbow. The repeated straightening and bending motion with the muscles contracted will work the muscles. You can apply the same principle to almost any part of the body that you want to exercise.

You can tighten and relax the abdominal muscles while lying in bed. Using this technique you can keep your muscles fairly strong even while at bed rest. Of course, no one should exercise a fractured leg or any other part of the body that has been injured without the doctor's o.k.

To give you more information about isometric exercises, stretching exercises, and their relationship to posture, I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-10, Exercise, Posture, Strength. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1531, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Last week when I was in the supermarket, I noticed dandelions for sale to be eaten. Please inform me as to the caloric count and nutritional value of this so-called weed. I would also like to know if they are the very same dandelions that grow wild in my lawn. Any information as to preparation for eating would be appreciated.

You have come to the right source. When I was growing up on the farm my mother used to gather dandelion greens. You should cook them like other greens, such as spinach, or use them in a salad as a spinach substitute.

You may be in for a surprise. From a nutrition standpoint they are better than spinach. A three-and-a-half ounce portion raw contains 45 calories, spinach only 26. The chief difference in calories is that dandelions contain more carbohydrate.

That is not all. The dandelions contain 187 milligrams of calcium and spinach about half with only 93 milligrams. They both have about the same amount of iron. Dandelions have lots more vitamin A — 14,000 units while spinach has only 8,100.

You have a better-than-spinach substitute on your front doorstep.

Only cooked potatoes freeze successfully

Dear Dorothy: A friend has just made me a gift of a good-sized bag of potatoes — much more than we can use in the near future. I planned to freeze them, but a neighbor says they won't freeze. Can this be right? Hurry! — Norma Walczak

Sadly, that's right. Most potatoes turn mushy when frozen. In experiments, they came out black. The one exception is the small, new potato, fresh from the garden. Parboiled and cooled, these tiny potatoes seem to freeze beautifully. Some, however, peel them before the freezing. Potatoes already cooked come out of the freezer perfectly. This includes baked potatoes (with all the fixings), hashed browns, french fries, scalloped, mashed, patties and so on. So your options are (1) cook up a storm of potatoes in various ways for freezing or (2) just store your bag in a dark, cool place.

Dear Dorothy: We live in an old home with steam heat radiators. How does one clean them? My sweeper attachment is too large for the space. I've tried a bottle brush, only to have dust fly everywhere. — Paula Rowh

It's important to get that dust out, or the heat will carry it to the walls and the rest of the rooms. Some vacuum cleaners do have an attachment for radiator cleaning, but in your fix the best way is to put a damp newspaper under the radiator and use a regular radiator brush.

Dear Dorothy: The shoe stretch lotion you've mentioned once or twice has been a blessing for me. Stemming from a broken ankle some time ago, my foot often swells and shoes pinch. The lotion helped so much I've bought a shoe stretcher which makes the spray even more effective. — Mrs. Adam Curtis

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 290, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60004.)

Nancy Fleming-Ralph Cox

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph W. Cox

Pi Beta Phi sorority sisters and Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity brothers swelled the ranks of wedding guests at Community Presbyterian Church, Mount Prospect, Oct. 16 when Nancy Fleming became Mrs. Ralph Walter Cox.

Nancy and Ralph were students at Illinois State University in Bloomington, and Nancy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Fleming of Mount Prospect, is a 1972 Prospect High School graduate. Ralph's parents are Mrs. Betty Cox, New Braunfels, Tex., and Ralph Cox, Rockford.

The bride chose a white knit jersey gown embellished with Alencon lace and pearl. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion fell from a matching fabric headpiece, and her bouquet was a cascade of roses, stephanotis, natural ming foliage, mountain fern and baby's breath.

THE BRIDAL ATTENDANTS wore persimmon matte jersey gowns, softly gathered to one shoulder. They carried orange Tropicana roses with orange-red and ming foliage, dried eucalyptus, baby's breath and bittersweet berries.

Judy Ardella, Mount Prospect, was maid of honor. The bride's two sisters, Kathy and Susan, were bridesmaids, as were Mrs. Joan Ripple, Springfield, and Judy Hove, Belvidere, Ill.

Best man was Bill McNamara, Peoria. Others in the groom's party were Gary Gudovich, Belleville; Michael Richardson, Peoria; Carles Stumpf, Elgin; Ed Martin, Carbondale; Robert Brooks, Lovington, Ill.; and Michael Baird, Rockford.

A reception was held at Hobson House in Long Grove. For their honeymoon, Nancy and Ralph spent a week in New Orleans. They now live in Bloomington where Nancy works for Bloomington Federal Savings and Loan, and Ralph is employed by Atlantic Envelope Co.

Betty Pagels-Robert Blum

A six-year romance between Betty Pagels, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pagels of Mount Prospect, and Robert Blum culminated in their marriage Oct. 17 at 3 p.m. at St. Peter Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights. Robert is the son of the Myron Blums of Arlington Heights.

Wearing an ivory batiste, high-collared gown and baby's breath in her hair, the bride was escorted down the aisle by her brother-in-law, John Maheras of Schaumburg. Her sister, Pam Maheras, preceded her down the aisle as matron of honor while the groom and his brother, Marshall, the best man, waited at the altar.

Betty carried a bouquet of yellow roses, daisies and baby's breath and a handkerchief, gift of the groom's late grandmother. Her sister wore a rust colored, jacketed gown and carried a bouquet of rust colored mums, yellow daisies, and baby's breath.

A BUFFET RECEPTION for 50 guests was held at the home of the groom's parents, 1337 N. Highland Ave. After a brief honeymoon at the Hilton Towers, the newlyweds settled in their new home in Settlers Woods, Mc Henry.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Blum

A graduate of Prospect High, the new Mrs. Blum is employed by Whitehall Nursing Home in Deerfield. The groom, a graduate of Arlington High and a second year student at Harper College, is with the Palatine Post Office.

Auxilians honored

Mrs. Winifred McCall

Mrs. Nancy Perschbacher

Two members of Holy Family Hospital's Auxiliary have been recognized as "Certified Master Auxilians" by the Illinois Hospital Association and received certificates symbolic of the honor.

Recipients of the awards at the association's recent annual meeting in St. Louis, Mo., were Mrs. Winifred McCall, Mount Prospect, president of Holy Family's Auxiliary, and Mrs. Nancy Perschbacher, Arlington Heights, first vice president.

The certificates were presented to the auxilians by the president of the Illinois Hospital Association, Robert O'Leary, for their participation in numerous conferences and workshops designed to fulfill educational requirements of the association for auxilians.

Arrange date with friends for fun of it

Are you still wondering what to give to some favorite friend or relative for Christmas? Perhaps you're drawing a blank because you're only thinking in terms of objects. Think about experiences, as well, and it opens up a whole new world. In other words — make a date to take them somewhere!

For the sports fan, consider tickets to a baseball game next spring — or a football, basketball, hockey game in the more immediate future.

Theater buffs and cinema fans would love tickets to a play or movie (for two, naturally). You might want to make these up yourself, to look like a gift certificate ("to the show of your choice") — so that the recipient can make a date with you at his convenience.

For the gourmet, instead of the usual cookbook or gadget, try a written invitation to dinner (on you) at a favorite restaurant.

For the music fan, get tickets to a rock concert, opera or symphony.

When all else fails, consider giving a subscription to a magazine on some subject of interest — sports, theater, fashion, hobbies, crafts, travel.

Chi Omega

Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter of Chi Omega will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Palatine home of Nancy Hall. Joyce Novak will give a slide and sound presentation, "Women's Concepts." Information 296-2639.

Delta Zeta

Plants from The Amazing Plant Company will be sold Tuesday when Arlington Heights Chapter of Delta Zeta Alumnae and guests meet at 8 p.m. in the Arlington Heights home of Mrs. Richard Leslie. Information, 392-4032.

Elk Grove Nurses

Elk Grove Nurses Club will meet Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Nichoff Pavilion, Elk Grove Village. Speaker will be Mary Ann Marchen, a Nurse Clinician in oncology who will present a program on Hodgkins disease. All area nurses are welcome. Information, 438-3828.

Arlington La Leche

La Leche League of Arlington Heights will meet Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Thomas Freeburg, Arlington Heights. Group leader will be Mrs. Lynn Kunz, who can be contacted for further information and counseling at 537-5805. All babies are welcome.

Mount Prospect Nurses

Wally Preissing of Forest Hospital will be guest speaker at Tuesday's meeting of Mount Prospect Nurses Club meeting. His topic will be "Teenage Alcoholism." All area nurses are invited. The meeting will be in St. Paul Lutheran Church Guild Room, Mount Prospect, at 7:45 p.m. Information, 289-2849.

Friendship Club

St. James Friendship Club meets at noon Tuesday in the Convent Hall, Arlington Heights for a catered luncheon. Reservations are required.

The way we see it

Schools need Yule peace

It's "Season's Greetings" in Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21. This year, as in previous years, the Dist. 21 Board of Education was faced with a policy decision on how to celebrate Christmas and other religious holidays.

It has adopted the policy that states only cultural and historical lessons may be taught for any holiday activity of a religious nature. For example, if a class were to sing a Christmas song, the theory behind that song would have to be taught as well as its cultural and historical value.

The policy appears to be a fair one, but the reaction to it is, as one resident said, "petty."

Some residents are so upset with the issue that they are calling for no religion, others for equal time for Christians and Jews, and still others say the majority should rule and everything connected with Christmas should be honored in the classroom.

One Dist. 21 board member allegedly has received 50 hate telephone calls about the issue. Residents have accused certain special interest groups of trying to run the school district. One resident went on to say that the district was making a "mockery" out of Christmas.

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled on the mixing of church and state in the schools. Residents of Dist. 21 would do well to let the lawmakers continue to objectively rule on such matters and leave the petty neighborhood jealousies out of the local school board.

Residents of Dist. 21 would do well to remember several reasons we celebrate holidays of all faiths — peace, good will and brotherhood.

Public wins with ICC

The Illinois Commerce Commission has finally decided to allow the public to watch the deliberations that affect their lives and pocketbooks.

That is a welcome, if belated, decision.

The ICC voted last week to admit the public to its rate-setting meetings. The rule will not take effect until the commission draws up regulations for open meetings, something it is going to give itself 90 days to do.

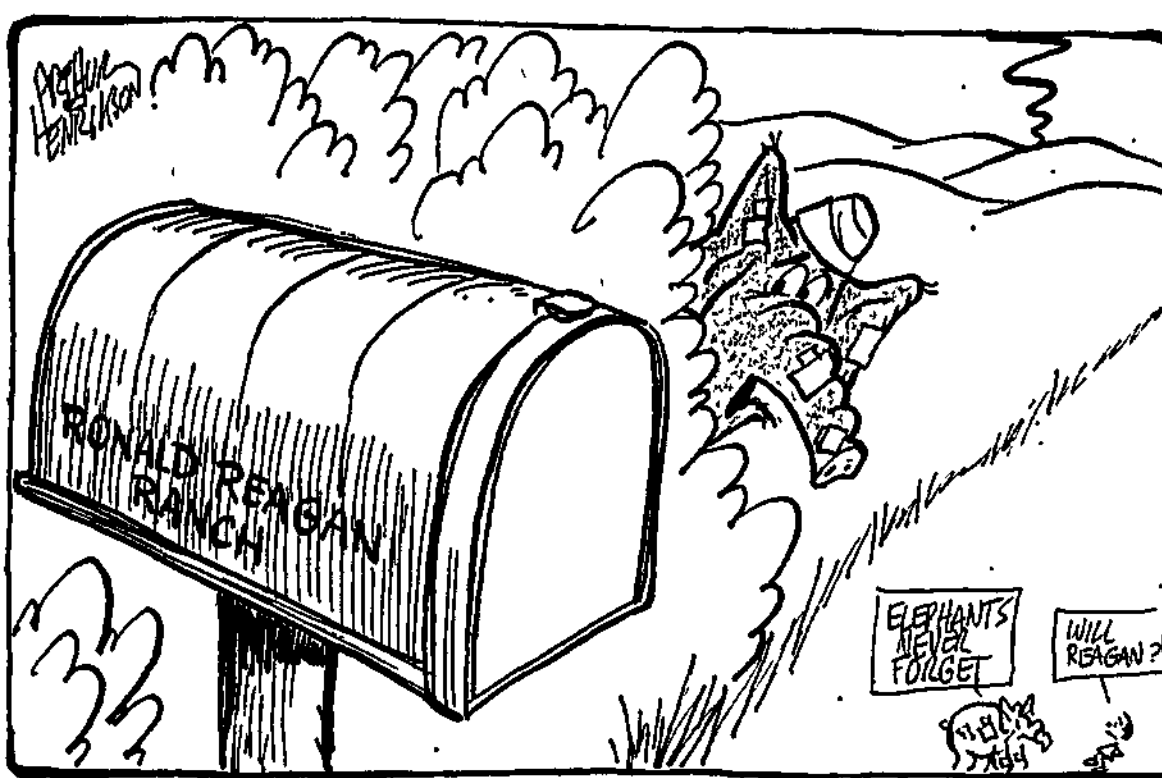

In the past, despite provisions of the Illinois Open Meetings Law requiring public bodies to deliberate in public, the ICC barred press and public alike from decision-making sessions. The public was admitted only during hearings when testimony was being taken.

We hope ICC officials will move quickly to implement the open meetings decision, rather than dillying for 90 days while drawing up rules. The ICC should use the experience of other agencies to develop rules more quickly than that.

Also, we hope that once the meetings are opened, the public will attend them to both observe and judge the commission's actions.

Utility rates are important to all citizens. The ICC decision to open its meetings will give citizens the chance to judge how well their interests are being guarded when rate decisions are made.

Wonder if there are any openings on his ranch

Feds help squirrelly troubles?

(The Lighter Side)

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One of President-elect Jimmy Carter's stated objectives is to make the government more responsive to the needs and concerns of ordinary citizens. It's a tall order. Federal officials, and even journalists, in Washington tend to become preoccupied with national or global policy matters. Thus they have minimal awareness of everyday problems. I'm sometimes guilty myself.

The other day as I was mulling over the election reform issue, my train of thought was suddenly derailed by a phone call from Greenville, Miss. On the line was Jim Thomas of radio station WDDT, who reported that a woman in his city had found a squirrel swimming around in her toilet bowl.

Lacking experience in such situations, the woman, a Mrs. Jill Dill, called the dog pound, which sent an agent to deal with the intruder. Investigators theorized that the squirrel had somehow gotten into a sewer pipe and made its way against frightful odds up into Mrs. Dill's commode.

Here we see a classic example of the disparity between what troubles the people and what the government perceives their needs to be.

The people are concerned about squirrels in their toilet bowls; the government is preparing to give them election reform.

Small wonder that in public opinion polls this year people have expressed a high degree of disenchantment with the government.

Mrs. Dill quite properly called the dog pound for assistance. No one would argue that extracting squirrels from toilet bowls is a federal function. Beyond that, however, the ramifying questions that no local agency has the resources to answer.

If squirrels can gain entrance to one's home through the bathroom plumbing, what else might be capable of similar intrusion? Small alligators? Boa constrictors? Gila monsters?

This would appear to be a matter the Consumer Products Safety Commission should look into. It might conclude that certain modifications in bathroom fixture design were warranted.

I personally called the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to see what its reaction might be. Predictably, it evinced little if any interest. I couldn't even get any firm information on how well squirrels can swim.

Moderate or conservative

GOP can still come back

by RAY CROMLEY
(A commentary)

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A Republican wheel I've known for 30 years passed me in the hall of a government building the day after election. He stopped only long enough to say forcefully "We've got to clean house in the party from top to bottom, get the old group out and a new group in, give the party a new face, a new image." Then he went on his way, with a parting shot: "And we can do it."

Despite the failure of the Republicans to improve their position in the Senate, House and in state governorships after the walloping they took in 1974, there are signs my old friend may be right. The figures, for certain, don't give much comfort to the GOP — hefty Democratic majorities in the Senate and House and in the nation's governorships. Plus, of course, a Democrat, Carter, as president.

Even more discouraging to Republicans is the evidence of what adverse voting drives by the major labor unions and black organizations can do, as well as the surprising turnout of rural voters for Jimmy Carter in many sections of the country.

Nevertheless, the evidence of this election is that when Republicans put up outstanding candidates for Congress or for governorships they were elected more often than not, even in states which gave Carter a majority.

The Republican statisticians calculate too that Carter's 1.7 million vote majority was more than accounted for in nine states — Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, North and South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, West Virginia and the District of Columbia — where Carter piled up a 1.9 million advantage.

The total vote in the other 41 states taken as a whole gave a majority to President Ford. His losses in some were more than compensated for by wins in others.

These same statisticians note that a gain of a few thousand votes in Ohio plus a similar gain in Hawaii, would have put Mr. Ford in the White House for another four years.

But if the election indicated a bastion of Carter-Democratic strength in the South, it gave an equally clear promise of Republican hope in the West and continued strength in most of New England. A north-south line down the center of the United States dramatically illustrates a straight victory for President Ford on the Pacific side, except for Texas and Hawaii — but including Alaska.

These were the same states, conservative Republicans claim, that went so heavily for Ronald Reagan in the primaries.

Not all Republicans won in these Western states by any means, as not all Democrats won in the South or in major cities of the North where labor union and black voting were strong factors. But the feeling among Republican strategists is that the base is there for the building.

The Republicans gained hope too in what they see as the gradual splintering away of chunks of the sizeable Catholic and Jewish vote from traditional allegiance to the Democratic party.

Rightly or wrongly, the Republicans see the Democratic Southern victory as more a victory for Carter the Southerner, than for Carter the Democrat. Some influential GOP strategists believe that Carter would not have won if he had come from a northern state. If area pride did in fact give a major advantage to Carter, they ask themselves if that same factor would be so influential in future elections.

Whether that new Republican face will be more conservative or more middle-of-the-road shapes up as the major battle ahead, as it was in the Reagan-Ford contest for the nomination.

Bosses—let parents visit school

Reasonable persons agree on the potential impact that a formal educational system could have on the children of our country. However, critics of the present system abound and educators are admonished for virtually every sort of student shortcoming.

Programs supported by high amounts of tax dollars are not always the key. There is a body of research which suggests that to improve success in school, there must be involvement and interaction from and with the home. We at Schaumburg Elementary School deeply believe in this need and as a result we have initiated a family involvement program. In response to personal invitations, family adults become temporary members of their child's class.

The response to the program (based on written adult reactions, as well as teacher and student comments) has been very positive. There is one significant flaw: the parent or guardian who cannot get free from work. The specific reason for this letter is derived from that point.

On behalf of all young children, I would like to ask employers everywhere to consider providing employees with an opportunity to visit their children at school as a meaningful way of celebrating American Education Week, Nov. 14-20.

Wherever it is possible, a one-hour visit (or even less) could be a powerful experience for community, home and school. The education of our children should assume status as the highest kind of priority. Young students are more likely to recognize schooling as such if they see its importance reflected in the actions of the adult world.

Teens need moral guide on sex

The articles in The Herald concerning teenage pregnancies were not surprising to me. I don't see why they should surprise anyone. For the past 10 years now, this whole new revelation of sex being OK if it feels good has been rammed down our teenagers' throats. Their heroes on TV do it (in the scripts). I saw this on "Mash," "Baretta," "Mary Tyler Moore" and other shows. "Cosmopolitan" and other magazines advocate it as the "in" thing to do.

Obviously parents aren't condemning this sexual activity. When parents remain silent, children think they must agree.

I have five teenagers of my own and believe me I talk to them clearly. We don't beat around the bush. I tell them sexual intercourse is not for teenagers, and self-control is a very good virtue. Even when married there are times when people must practice self-control.

I will never believe that we are on the level of animals and must succumb to our instincts. I resent the fact that schools do not mention self-control as a means of contraception. Teenagers who turn to God for love and compassion when the world seems against them fare much better. I know a lot of these healthy, normal, happy kids.

I feel very sorry for the teenage children of today who are pressured into being sexually active.

Marx 'honorary Chinese'

Ancient China survives

by DON OAKLEY
(A commentary)

The more things change in post-Mao Tse-tung China, the more they will remain the same. The one constant in 4,000 years of Chinese history is a distrust of all things foreign.

Among the sins which Mao's widow, Chiang Ching, was accused of in the sudden campaign against her and three other high-ranking "enemies of the people" was her un-Chinese penchant for Western finery.

"Nothing is too pretty for her and it must be foreign," read a wall poster at Peking University, criticizing Chiang Ching for having bought a French high-fashion dress — a double sin in a country of drab, unisex pantsuits.

Another poster in Shanghai denounced the former movie actress for having worn a foreign dress for the visit of President Nixon in 1972.

This is all very silly to Westerners and, of course, Chiang Ching was not removed from her former position of influence because of her taste in fashions. But the fact that Mao's successors chose to emphasize it for the edification of the masses as proof of her revolutionary impurity demonstrates anew the basic xenophobic strain in the Chinese character.

The Great Wall that the first Chinese emperor erected to keep out foreign invaders was only a physical manifestation of a wall that already existed in the Chinese mind.

For centuries this national self-isolation worked. Chinese culture was clearly superior to any other the Chinese people encountered, or which encountered them. The Chinese made numerous basic scientific discoveries which could have ushered in what call the modern world hundreds of years ahead of time. Like the ancient Greeks, however, the Chinese had no interest in following them up.

A Chinese Columbus could have discovered America from the East long before 1492. They had the ships capable of making such a journey. The Italian Columbus, we know, was seeking a more direct route to the riches of the Indies, which included China. The Chinese had no desire for more direct contact with the barbarians of the West, nor even any curiosity about what lay beyond the sea that lapped the shores of the celestial Kingdom.

As late as the latter part of the 18th century, a British trade mission to China was rebuffed with the blunt advice that there was nothing the Chinese needed from foreigners.

The paradox in all this is that the most revered name in China today, next to Mao Tse-tung, is that of a foreigner, Karl Marx. But the Chinese are, despite their xenophobia, pragmatists who will adopt a foreign idea if it suits their needs.

The Chinese have made Karl Marx an honorary Chinese somewhat like pragmatic South African businessmen have made the Japanese "honorary whites."

The Chinese will even court those arch capitalists, the Americans, as a counterweight against the modern barbarians on their border, the Russians. Even so, the present foreign policy of China is really nothing but a continuation of its ancient policy of playing off one barbarian against another.

Whatever the twists and turns and internal struggles that may take place in China in the coming years, these basic truths about the Chinese character will remain. What Napoleon called the sleeping giant has awakened and become a world power to be reckoned with. But China is as far from becoming a true member of the international community as that other self-walled-in nation — and its only real ally — Albania.

No easy answer

Legal fees a puzzling problem

Our discussion a few weeks ago about lawyers advertising prompted some inquiries about legal fees. How much for what kind of services and so on.

There is no easy answer, for the ways of the law, the lawyers and the clients can be so perversely diverse that a given matter can cost from high to low, depending on the circumstances. Some kinds of legal matters are handled on a percentage basis. Personal injury cases and real estate transactions are examples. The lawyer's fee is based on an agreed-upon percentage of the total value of the matter at hand. In addition there may be reimbursement for out-of-pocket expenses, such as filing fees, expert witnesses and so on.

Many matters, though, are handled on an hourly basis, and even though the hourly rate is agreed upon in advance, and an estimate of total hours given, two seemingly identical cases can wind up with considerably different costs.

Speaking dollar-wise

by Robert S. Rosefsky

Let's consider, for instance, the drawing of a will — a fairly common and relatively inexpensive legal matter. Two families, A and B, with apparently identical circumstances and desires visit the same lawyer. Case A proceeds smoothly and swiftly. But with case B, the husband and wife start bickering over the specifics of who gets what. Extra hours are needed to explain and reconcile the differences, thus resulting in necessarily higher fees.

Or, A and B visit different lawyers, and there is no bickering. One lawyer may be more adept at this particular matter and can wrap it up much more quickly than the other. Or, the other may dig more deeply into the personal circumstances and thus spend more time, but offers them a better solution. Again, the fees can differ widely. So may the service.

A lawyer may find, after quoting an initial estimate of fees, that the case is much more complicated than it had appeared. Or a case can become more complicated in midstream. Or a complicated matter can be resolved much more swiftly than anticipated, due to a change in circumstances.

The lawyer and client must agree at the outset that the services to be provided will justify the fees involved. This will take time at the initial meeting, and it should be time well spent if enough digging and questioning is done. Sometimes it becomes necessary to incur legal expenses only to learn that you have little or no legal relief on the given matter. (And those are usually cases where the client sought legal help too late — after the matter had already passed a point of no return.)

Other times clients may be willing to spend more on legal fees than they know they can recover, just for the principle of the thing.

If an initial interview is fully open and frank, an experienced lawyer should be able to give you a minimum and maximum fee range that can satisfy both himself and you. If he's not able to do this, you may want to seek another opinion.

Consumer optimism down slightly

Consumer optimism dropped slightly in the past three months among north and Northwest suburban residents included in Continental Bank's Family Financial Survey, to be released today.

The Chicago bank's survey is a quarterly sampling of attitudes among 750 Chicago area families. More than one third of the north suburban families sampled said they are "better off" financially than they were in 1975, and 41 per cent reported increased incomes.

The survey, taken in October, also shows a drop in confidence in the economy. This trend probably will hold consumer holiday gift spending to last year's levels, the survey indicates.

NEARLY ONE quarter of the survey participants said business conditions are worse than a year ago, compared to 10 per cent of the July survey group. The percentage of families indicating improved economic conditions next year dropped 10 points to 34 cent.

The over-all Continental Consumer

Sentiment Index dropped three points to 105 in the fourth quarter, the lowest level in 1976. The average index for the year stands at 108 points, the highest level since the surveys were started in 1972.

Christmas spending plans were affected by the decline in consumer confidence. Although 15 per cent of the north suburban families in the survey plan to increase holiday spending, four out of 10 plan to spend the same as last year and nearly a third plan to spend less money.

"CAUTION IS evident in the ways consumers said they would use credit cards to meet holiday expenses," said Janice Ventura, Continental's personal money management specialist who coordinated the survey. Forty-five per cent of the north suburban survey participants said they plan to use credit cards sparingly for less than half their purchases.

Shopping centers and neighborhood stores are preferred shopping locations. Food and liquor are on top of many gift lists, followed by clothing, toys, games, craft items, cosmetics, perfumes and books. Items such as cars and televisions are included in less than 10 per cent of reported buying plans.

Most north suburban residents said they will send the same number of Christmas cards and contribute as much money to churches and charities as last year.

Computer bank can make you more quotable

NEW YORK (UPI) — Suppose you have the perfect quotation on the tip of your tongue, but can't remember its exact wording or who said it or when or where.

First, you consult the large edition of Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations," but if it isn't all that familiar, how do you find it.

Until recently you could spend days hunting it in the library. Now, you can ask a computerized information bank and get an answer in minutes.

OF COURSE, all information storage banks don't contain quotations but one of the most successful, System Development Corp. of Santa Monica, Calif., has accumulated a vast reservoir of quotations in its bibliographical service introduced a year ago for scholars, writers, government agencies and business firms.

SDC is a firm with $100 million a year in sales that began its career as an Air Force "think tank" doing contract work to help develop warfare technology. It was a sort of captive company receiving contracts from the Air Force on a noncompetitive basis.

In 1966, the Air Force decided to put the contracts for this work up for competitive bidding, so the SDC team either had to quit or form a regular corporation and go after commercial and scholastic as well as military think tank jobs.

"The company lost some money its first year on its own, but we have made money every year since," said Dr. George Mueller, SDC's president. For a think tank, even one with operations all over the globe, sales of $100 million are eminently respectable. The company isn't public yet — although it is considering going public — so earnings are not published. Most of the stock still is held by the founders.

THE AIR FORCE is still one of the firm's biggest customers, perhaps the biggest, but SDC also sells to other government agencies, including the Weather Bureau, to universities, libraries, magazines and newspapers and commercial firms.

Initial OK reached on Continental pact

Talks between striking Continental Airlines pilots and management ended late Saturday with a tentative agreement to resume operations. An agreement on terms was reached earlier, but it was not disclosed when mainland operations would resume.

The pilot's Master Executive Council and management representatives had been discussing the work agreement since reaching tentative agreement on a new contract last week.

An airline spokesman said signatures are needed on the new contract along with a draft of the back-to-work agreement.

Drive-up Hours:

Monday-Friday—8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. Saturday—to 2:00 p.m.

For two years in Niles, we did business with you in a small ranch house. In Mt. Prospect, it was three years in a special trailer unit.

Now First Federal is happy to announce the opening of two spacious new buildings at both locations.

Striking, contemporary architecture characterizes both structures. Glass-walled and topped by an overhanging, open-truss roof, they are a study in simple, clean-lined beauty.

Inside, the decor is comfortable and friendly. With First Federal's familiar deep-blue carpeting, smoked glass privacy partitions between teller stations, and warm wood furniture and paneling.

The new buildings are as functional as they are beautiful. Increased space allows us to expand our services with more tellers and counselors, private counseling rooms, and safety deposit boxes.

Drive-up service has been expanded and improved with an electronic traffic control system that cuts down waiting and directs you to the first open teller. You'll save time on busy days.

Both our Niles and Mt. Prospect branches offer the full range of financial services you get downtown at our main office. Including savings accounts, Saver's Certificates, and mortgage, home improvement and education loans. Plus a world of sound, personal advice about the best way to handle your individual financial situation.

There are now 15 First Federal branches in the city and suburbs with more on the way. And your First Federal passbook is good at every one of them.

So stop in at First Federal's brand-new offices in Niles and Mt. Prospect. You'll be pleased by what you see.

And by the service you'll get. Watch for the grand opening celebrations planned for both new buildings. They'll be coming in a few weeks, with gifts, celebrities and refreshments for everyone.

Harper's reward is Payton's success in 24-13 win

by JIM COOK

Roland Harper had the look of accomplishment on his soiled face.

It was teammate Walter Payton who had just become the first NFL running back to surpass 1,000 yards rushing this season during the Bears' 24-13 victory over Green Bay, but Harper can take special pride in Payton's achievements.

Harper, like Payton, is also listed as a running back. The designation is misleading. Roland is a blocking back, a decoy and a ball carrier — in that order.

BUT PAYTON would not have joined former Bears Gale Sayers, Rick Casares and Beattie Feathers in the magical four-digit rushing club without Harper.

"Roland is to me what the pencil and pad are to you," Payton said, his voice cracking with emotion. "You can't keep everything in your head and I can't run without Roland blocking for me."

Harper was grinning, revealing a gold-crowned front tooth that seemed to symbolize the 14-karat performance he's had for the Bears this year.

"He's a beautiful man," the 5-foot-11½, 201-pound Harper said. "If I had it to do all over again, I'd want it to be the same way. You have to block before you can run and it's my job to block."

PAYTON, WHO entered the game with 889 rushing yards, passed the milestone in the fourth quarter when he turned the corner on a sweep right and scorched the Soldier Field synthetic carpet for 42 yards.

Not ironically, it was Harper, positioned as a wingback on the play, who threw the big blocks that impeded both a Packer linebacker and safety on a "double-bump" that sprung Payton.

"Roland takes pride in his blocking," Bear head coach Jack Pardee said. "I think he's an important part of Walter's offensive achievements and that goes beyond just blocking."

"They have a very close relationship. Roland's got his head on straight and is a stabilizing influence on Walter. Roland's a heckuva team player."

SO MUCH so that Harper won the sixth Brian Piccolo Award that is presented to the Bear rookie who best exemplifies courage, loyalty, teamwork, dedication and sense of humor of the late Chicago running back who died of cancer.

"That is still the biggest moment of my life," Roland said, although being drafted 420th out of 442 in the 1975 collegiate draft and making it in the 'big time has to also rank up there.

Harper was thrust into a ball-carrying role while Payton nursed a neck contusion through the second half and contributed admirably with 13 rushes for 62 yards. Included were a 16-yard touchdown burst and a drive-maintaining 20-yard pass reception and 14-yard jaunt off tackle.

Even more importantly, though, is Harper's reliability in killing the final minutes of a game, when ball possession is so valuable.

HE HASN'T fumbled this season, despite the efforts of opposing tacklers to perform a gridiron striptease during the waning moments.

"It's just praying a lot," Harper grinned again. "Seriously, it's a matter of concentration, cradling the ball properly so it can't get ripped out."

Harper's relatively thankless job is recorded in Payton's statistics and the Bears' success this season.

He's as indispensable as a reporter's pen and pad.

Pardee sees hopes build for playoffs

by BOB GALLAS

The blackboard over in a corner of the Bears' lockerroom carried only the scores of three games, Washington's loss to the Giants, New Orleans' win over Detroit and Atlanta's win over San Francisco.

For all those losses, coupled with the Bears' 24-13 win over Green Bay Sunday, helped to make coach Jack Pardee's prediction that a 9-5 record will earn a playoff spot this year look just a little more believable.

"I was convinced last week that 9-5 would make it and I'm more convinced now," said Pardee after his team had taken advantage of two Packer fumbles to jump out to an early 14-0 lead and win despite some mistakes of their own. "But we're going to have to play more consistent ball than we have," Pardee said.

ONE BEAR WHO doesn't fall into the inconsistent category is Walter Payton, whose 109 yards rushing put him eight over the 1,000 yards season mark, the first time a Chicago back has done that since Gale Sayers in 1969. Payton, playing with a sprained ankle, also equaled Sayers' mark of scoring a touchdown in seven straight games with a two-yard run early in the first quarter.

The Bears added another score the second time they owned the football as Bob Avelinn hit Mike Adamle with a four-yard pass. Both scores followed Bear recoveries of Packer fumbles in their own territory. But just when things started to look like the makings of a Bear rout, the Chicago offense went cold.

A 27-yard pass and a field goal in the last two minutes of the half made it 14-10 at intermission and the Pack had successfully shut off the Bear momentum.

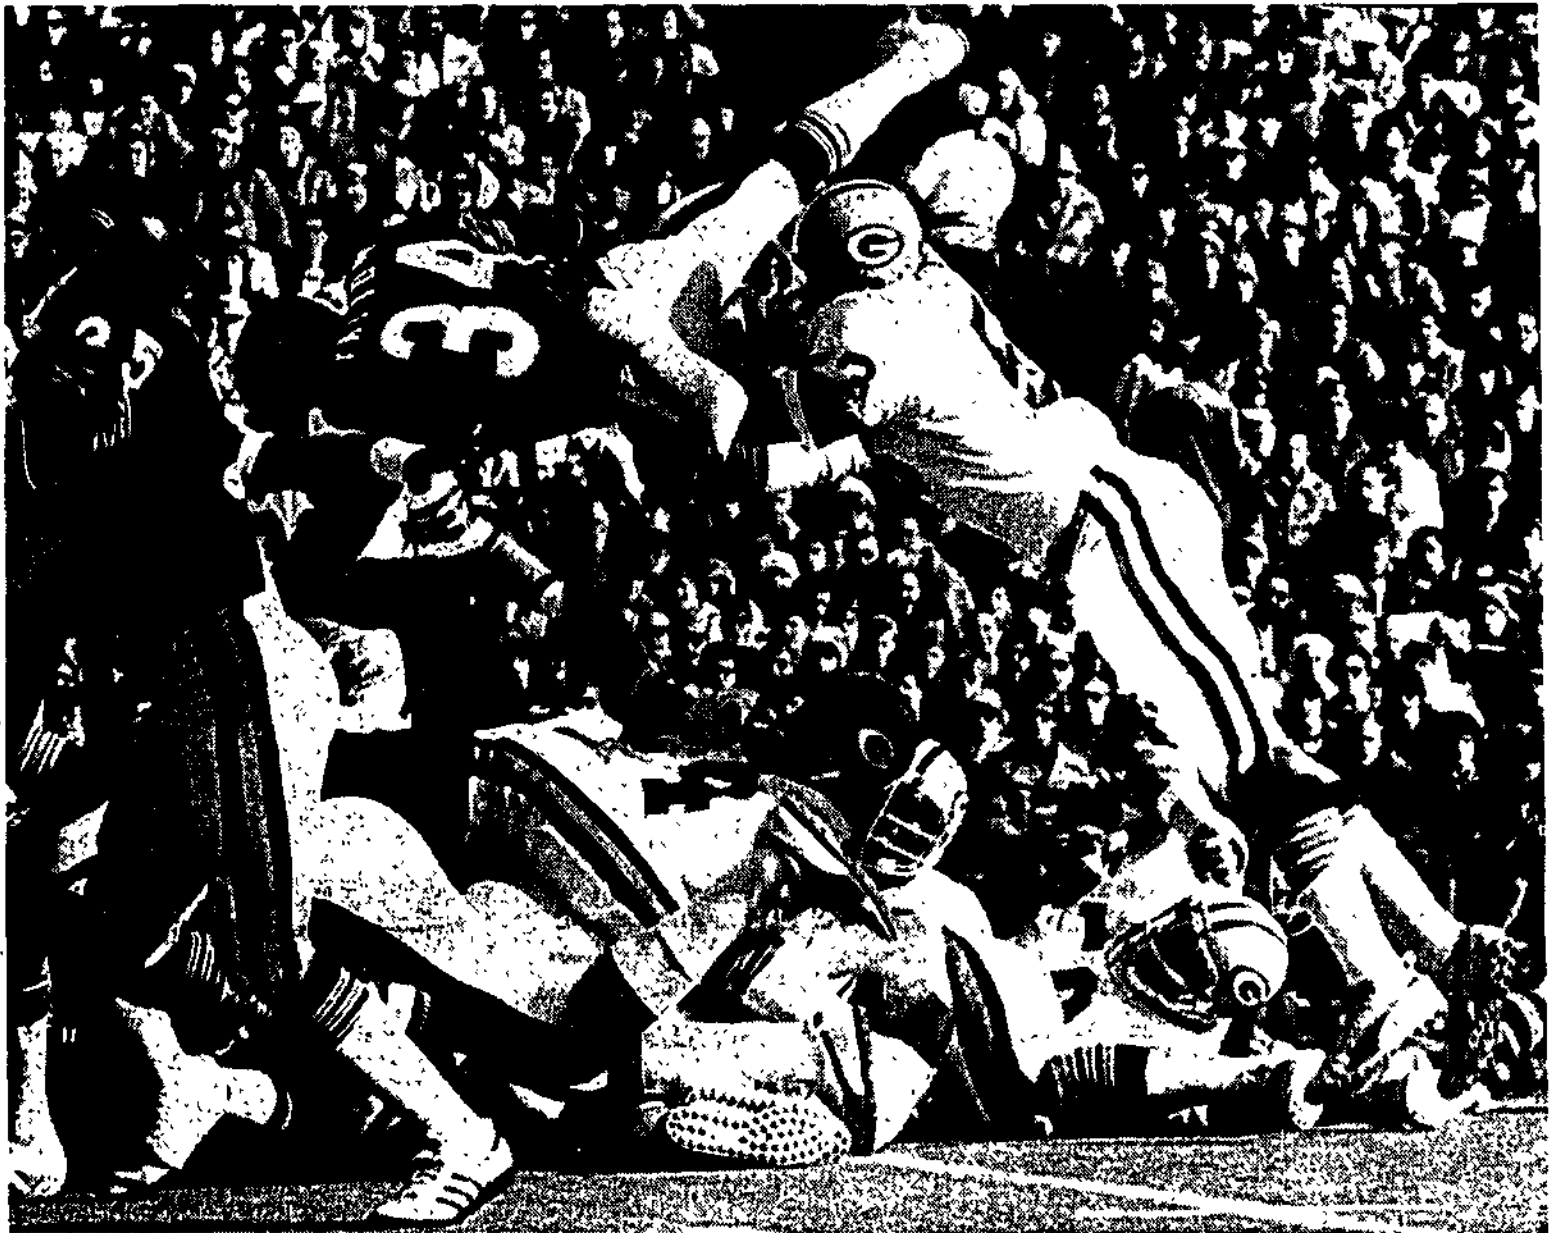

Pardee chalked up the early shift in momentum to the Bears' youth.

"When something comes that easy it can take the edge off," said Pardee. "What's more important to me is that we came back in the third quarter and got the momentum back."

THE PACKERS had pulled within one at 14-13 on a Chester Marcol third quarter field goal before Roland Harper scored on a 16-yard run to give the Bears some breathing room at 21-13 early in the fourth period. Bob Thomas, last week's goat when he missed a field goal in the closing seconds of the Bears' loss to Oakland, booted a 46-yard field goal for the final Bear points of the day.

"I knew I'd get the 'Bobby Douglass welcome' when I walked out on the

Agony of defeat for Elk Grove, Hersey

Grenadiers stunned in final minute

by BOB GALLAS

Elk Grove quarterback David Champa sat slumped over in front of his locker, thinking a little about last summer and a football camp he attended where he learned, among other things, the right way to kick a field goal.

Champa, though he engineered a 65-yard scoring drive that gave the Grenadiers a 21-17 lead with two minutes left in the game, kept thinking about two field goals he missed from 30 yards out in the third quarter. Because a Belleville West touchdown pass with 46 seconds left gave the Mighty Maroons a 24-21 win over Elk Grove Saturday, and those two misses looked mighty big to Champa.

"The first time I hit the ball square and thought it would be perfect," said Champa amid the silence of the Grenadier lockerroom. "Then I looked up

Jim Bakken's third field goal of the game climaxed a 10-point rally in the final 4½ minutes which enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to score a 30-28 victory over the Los Angeles Rams Sunday and move to within a half-game of first place in the Eastern Division of the National Football League's NFC.

The win gave the Cardinals an 8-2 record compared to the 8-1 mark of the Dallas Cowboys, who play the Buffalo Bills in Monday night's TV game of the week.

Jim Hart's 25-yard touchdown pass to J. V. Cain with 4:23 remaining cut the Cardinals' deficit to 28-27 and they moved into a threatening position with 1:39 left when Terry Metcalf returned a Los Angeles punt 29 yards to the Rams' 48. Hart then drove the Cardinals to the eight-yard line before Bakken kicked his game-winning field goal with four seconds left.

THE RAMS, now 6-3-1 in the NFC's Western Division, held leads of 21-6 and 28-20 before suffering the loss. It cost them an opportunity to gain a game on the second-place San Francisco 49ers, who were upset by the Atlanta Falcons 21-16.

The Falcons pulled their upset when Scott Hunter threw fourth-period touchdown passes of 34 and 21 yards to Albert Jenkins. The 49ers made it close when Jim Plunkett threw a 10-yard touchdown pass to Gene Washington with 1:55 remaining.

Other scores were Minnesota Vikings 27 Seattle Seahawks 21, Pittsburgh Steelers 14 Miami Dolphins 3, New England Patriots 21 Baltimore Colts 14, Oakland Raiders 21 Kansas City Chiefs 10, Cincinnati Bengals 31 Houston Oilers 27, Denver Broncos 17 San Diego Chargers 0, New York Giants 12 Washington Redskins 9, New York Jets 34, Tampa Bay Buccaneers 0, New Orleans Saints 17 Detroit Lions 16 and Cleveland Browns 24 Philadelphia Eagles 3.

FRAN TARKENTON threw a five-yard TD pass to Stu Voigt with 4:52 left in the game giving the Vikings their surprisingly difficult victory over the expansion Seahawks. The Seahawks stepped back on a 58-yard pass from Jim Zorn to Sam McCullum which took them to the Minnesota eight but the Vikings' defense held on the one-yard line to preserve the win.

Touchdown runs of 21 yards by Franco Harris and one by Reggie Harrison lifted the Steelers to their win over the Dolphins. Harris, who rushed for 110 yards, scored the first touchdown in the second period while Harrison's came in the fourth with Pittsburgh leading 7-3.

Steve Grogan scored touchdowns on a pair of two-yard plunges and set up a third touchdown with a pass to Al Chandler in the Patriots' upset of the Colts. The loss left the Colts with an 8-2 record compared to the 7-3 mark of the Patriots in the AFC's Eastern Division.

KEN STABLER threw TD passes of 32 and 22 yards to Fred Bleilko and Dave Casper as the Raiders increased their record to 9-1. The two TD passes increased Stabler's season total to 20 — tops in the league. The Chiefs scored on a one-yard pass from Mike Livingston to MacArthur Lane and a 41-yard field goal by Jan Stenerud.

The Bengals pulled out their victory when Ken Anderson connected with Isaac Curtis for a 47-yard touchdown pass on a four-down play and only 42 seconds left in the game. Curtis took the pass on the 35-yard line and weaved his way through the Houston defense. The loss was the fifth straight and sixth in 10 games for the Oilers.

Rick Upchurch caught a 59-yard pass from Steve Ramsey for a touchdown and set up a field goal with a 38-yard punt return in leading the Broncos to their sixth win in 10 games. Upchurch's punt return set up a 42-yard field goal by Jim Turner in the third period. It was the fourth loss in a row for the Chargers.

The Giants scored their first victory after nine losses on field goals of 30, 26, 39 and 50 yards by Joe Danelo. The fourth field goal snapped a 9-9 tie in the third period after field goals of 41, 31 and 32 yards by Mike Moseley had kept the Redskins even.

JOE NAMATH threw a three-yard touchdown pass and set up two other TDs in a 24-point first-half outburst which sent the Jets on their way to an easy triumph over the winless Bucs. Namath entered the game with two minutes left in the first period after Richard Todd failed to move the Jets and handed off to Clark Gaines, who ran 14 yards for a TD on his first call.

The Saints overcame a 6-3 deficit when Bobby Douglass passed 69 yards to Larry Burton in the third period and linebacker Warren Capone scored after recovering a fumble in the fourth period. The actual winning margin for the Saints resulted from a missed extra point try by Benny Ricardo after the Lions' first touchdown.

Brian Sipe threw TD passes of 20 yards to Reggie Rucker and nine yards to Paul Warfield as the Browns scored their fifth victory in their last six games. The Browns are in second place in the AFC's Central Division with a 6-4 record. The loss was the Eagles' seventh in 10 games.

Black Hawks post 5-4 win over Los Angeles

Defenseman Phil Russell took Pit Martin's pass off a facelift and slammed home his third goal of the season to lift the Chicago Black Hawks into a 5-4 triumph over the Los Angeles Kings at the Stadium Sunday night.

It was Martin's third assist of the night and helped the Hawks cap their second comeback over the Kings. Los Angeles scored the first goal of the game and then stormed back in the second period with three straight goals to overcome a temporary 3-1 Chicago advantage.

Gene Carr tallied initially for the Kings. Before the first session ended however Grant Mulvey and Dennis Hull had countered for the Black Hawks and Hull picked up another goal early in period two.

Mike Murphy and Marcel Dionne each chalked up their 13th goals of the year for Los Angeles to forge a 3-3 tie and Tom Williams then hiked the visitors into the lead. Butch Goring assisted on all three goals.

With 17:59 left in the second period Alain Daigle knotted the game at 4-4. Russell came up with the only goal of the third period as the final six minutes of the game ticked away.

It was Chicago's ninth win of the season and moved them into a division lead over idle St. Louis.

Bears handle Packers

field today," said the handsome kicker from Notre Dame who expected some boos. "I told myself I wasn't going to show any emotion but when I made it, I jumped up and down like a maniac anyway."

"All week, everybody talked about the slump I was in but I think that's a copout, an excuse for missing more," said Thomas.

The Bears got plenty of help from the Packers, who gave up the ball on fumbles three times and on an interception once. The Bears, who were intercepted twice, converted two of the Packers' fumbles into early touchdowns, however, and the Pack just never could come back.

"YOU CAN'T GIVE a team like the Bears 14 points and expect to win the game," said Packers' coach Bart Starr, whose team now sports a 4-6 record at the bottom of the NFC Central Division.

For the second straight week, the Bears recovered a fumble and ran it for a touchdown. And for the second straight week, the touchdown was nullified.

Linebacker Don Rives picked up the fumble when the Packers' Willard Harrell bobbled a pitchout. Rives ran it in from 56 yards, but referee Pat Haggerty ruled that the bobble was a muff, which can be recovered, but not returned.

The Bears did get a break on the play when the officials spotted the ball on the Packers' 44, when the muff was recovered on the Bears' 44.

LAST WEEK, Roger Stillwell ran 43 yards after recovering a Ken Stabler fumble but the touchdown was called back because of an inadvertent whistle blown by referee Chuck Horberling.

The win evened the Bears' season record at 5-5.

Sports world Amateur federation bans gold medalist

AMSTERDAM — The International Amateur Athletic Federation Sunday banned French Olympic gold medalist Guy Druet for life because he admitted accepting appearance money at track and field events, IAAF president Adrian Paulen said.

But Paulen said Druet will be allowed to keep his 110 meter hurdles gold medal, won at Montreal, because the offenses took place after the Olympics in July.

"The Druet case is very simple. The French champion indicated in an article published in a French magazine that he received money for taking part in track and field meetings," Paulen said.

The IAAF asked the French Federation to investigate and as a result Druet was found to have broken the International Olympic Committee's Rule 28 on amateurism. "We had only one recourse — to ban Guy Druet from the international federation," Paulen said.

Nastase at his best — or worst

HONG KONG — Top seeded Ilio Nastase of Romania put on one of his worst court performances Sunday and virtually threw away his match against Ken Rosewall of Australia in the $75,000 Hong Kong International Tennis Classic.

Rosewall, playing one of the best games of his career, won 1-6, 6-4, 7-6 and walked away with the $10,500 winner's check.

Nastase lost his temper in the fourth set. Down 0-1 and serving 15-0, he objected to the umpire's call for a let in the first serve.

Nastase hit out both his serves in disgust and the crowd began booing him. Again at 30-40 on his serve, the temperamental Nastase served underhand to give the game to Rosewall at 0-3.

After the end of the set and match, Nastase kicked a television microphone.

Nastase also let loose his temper on other reporters who went to interview him and was later heard abusing the referee in similar obscene language in the locker room.

Cox completes Stockholm surprise

STOCKHOLM — Unranked 33-year-old Briton Mark Cox Sunday earned his place in the tennis record books when he defeated No. 3 seed Manuel Orantes of Spain 4-6, 7-5, 7-6 to capture the $155,000 Stockholm Open.

Cox won the tie-break 7-3, after rallying from 3-5 down in the second and third sets to take the $24,000 singles championship.

"Whatever the word is, I'm more than surprised. I feel very lucky," Cox said. "It must be the top of my career."

In one of the most thrilling matches in the eight-year history of the tournament at Stockholm's Royal Tennis Hall, Cox upset top seed Jimmy Connors of the United States in the semi-finals 7-6, 3-6, 7-6, snatching two tie-breaks from the Forest Hills champion for the first time in three years.

Confused by Hersey defense

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

The season ended for the Hersey Huskies, football team Saturday, 18-7 victims of the Indians of New Trier East.

But underneath the anguish of that final loss was that staunch Hersey pride fueled by tradition and the knowledge they had outplayed a superior team.

"It's always hard to lose the final game of the year," said Hersey coach Joe Gliwa. "You hate to see the seniors end their careers this way, but there is always something good to look forward to."

There is also something good to look back on. Specifically a superb quarterbacking performance by junior Dan Vucovich and a fierce defense that nearly bottled up one of the finest quarterbacks in the state.

VUCOVICH HAS been the Huskies' main man all year and he proved his mettle once again Saturday. Working with style and grace under pressure, secure behind the blocking of linemen Tom Blondell, Bob Schachner, Jeff Jordan, Sandy Dameron and Bob Kapushinski, Vucovich completed 15 of 30 passes for 136 yards.

New Trier's Rich Weiss was a big worry for the Hersey defense and although he broke a touchdown run of 41 yards to seal the game late in the fourth quarter, he never cut loose with the abandon he showed in a first round win over St. Viator.

"We know we didn't play well," Weiss said. "That defense they used was really confusing."

That defense, the brain child of assistant coach Steve Chernicky, used stunting, shifting and just about everything else to contain the Indians.

THE DEFENSIVE secondary of Mike Lococo, Dave Mueller and Joe Pusatera was especially tough, limiting Weiss to only 30 yards in passing.

New Trier coach Gene Cichowski was appreciative of the effort Hersey's defense made, saying, "This is the hardest-hitting team we've played all year."

The Huskies put themselves in a jam right from the opening kickoff when Tony Becker fumbled and New Trier recovered on Hersey's 13 yard line.

Two plays later Pete DiClementi busted over from the seven yard line for the touchdown.

"I DON'T KNOW if the game would have turned out differently if we hadn't fumbled like that," Gliwa said. "So many things happen during a game it's hard to say."

New Trier East threatened again late in the second quarter, thanks in part to a missed call by an official.

The play in question came with the ball on Hersey's 35-yard line when Weiss threw a pass to Dale Estabrook near the sidelines.

ESTABROOK WAS juggling the ball and going out of bounds when Pusatera popped him and knocked the ball loose. The official threw his flag, claiming Pusatera had delivered a late hit on the New Trier receiver.

Three plays later Steve Sullivan bolted into the endzone, had the ball knocked out of his hands and lost it to Hersey's Mueller.

The Indians scored their first legitimate touchdown in the fourth quarter when Weiss guided them 60 yards in 10 plays with Sullivan scoring from the 15-yard line.

Mark Basse scooted in to block the kick and New Trier's lead stood at 12-0.

Hersey's offense promptly went to work.

SOPHOMORE quarterback Curt Roy was inserted for a single play, took a pitch out from Vucovich and drilled a 13-yard pass to Brian Robertson.

Vucovich followed with a 15-yarder to Wally Hommerding and also completed two passes to Dino Capasso, who grabbed five balls for 54 yards, before Hommerding scored from the seven.

"That quarterback really did a nice job," Cichowski complimented. "He was giving our secondary fits all afternoon."

With less than five minutes to play Weiss took the Indians on another 60-yard trip, getting the final 41 himself for the clinching touchdown.

"THIS WAS A tough one all the way," Cichowski said. "Hersey isn't big but they're aggressive as well." Gliwa addressed his team in the silent Hersey lockerroom.

"Although the season is over," he said, "be good citizens wherever you go and remember you are champions."

"You've grown more than you know and you've gotten more out of this year than you realize. I am proud of every one of you."

Elk Grove suffers stunning loss

and saw it go off to the right."

WHETHER IT was the strong crosswind or an incorrectly adjusted kicking teplate, Champa didn't know. But four minutes later, a Belleville fumble set up another Elk Grove field goal and the big senior tried again from 30 yards out. This time, it went off to the left.

"I compensated for the wind," Champa said. At camp this summer Marv Bateman (Buffalo Bills' punter), said always hit it straight through the uprights, but I compensated. I learned the hard way he was right."

Champa may have suffered the agony for Saturday's loss to the new 11-0 Maroons, but he wasn't alone. Playing their third game in eight days, the Grens, who play seven or eight players on both offense and defense, had plenty of trouble in the second half when fatigue just may have caught up with them.

Belleville which scored 17 points in the final seven minutes, tied the score at 14 midway through the fourth quarter when center Steve Lauxon fell on a Maroons' fumble in the Grenadiers' end zone for a touchdown.

THREE PLAYS later, Elk Grove's Jim Meyer tried to pick up his own fumble but lost the ball up on his own nine yard line to the Maroons, who eventually had to settle for a field goal that made it 17-14.

Down by three, Champa then marched his team down the field 65 yards, hitting passes of 36, 14, and 13 yards enroute. Tim Roberts carried the final two yards to give Elk Grove the lead, 21-17, with just 2:13 showing on the clock.

But the Maroons, who had never been behind in a football game this year up until Saturday, had a trump card up the sleeve of quarterback Joe Young.

Passing all the way, Young started at his own 31-yard line. With a minute left in the game, Young hit halfback Bob Carroll for a 24-yard gain that brought the Maroons to the Elk Grove 18. Then Young went to his trump card.

HE HIT END John Pietroburgo over the middle in the endzone to put Belleville ahead for good.

"We tried that same play in the second quarter but I underthrew to another man," said Young. Pietroburgo came back to the huddle and told me he was wide open and that the play would work to him. We didn't use it again til the end, though."

"We've never been behind all year but we felt up until the end that we could score because we'd moved the ball all day against them (Elk Grove)," said Young, who was full of praise for Elk Grove. "For all the guys they have going both ways, they're still the best team we've played all year. They hit hard."

"THE COACH (Maroons' head coach Bruce Arnold) told us all week that if we were within a touchdown in the second half we could win," said Young. "They (Elk Grove) never put anybody away in the fourth quarter all year, and we felt if we just kept plugging, we'd go ahead."

The Grens got the ball back for one last shot with 39 seconds remaining, but four straight Champa passes fell incomplete and the Grens went down to their first loss after nine straight wins to finish the season with a 9-2 record.

For Belleville, their 11th straight win of the season earns them the right to play at home against Glenbard West Saturday in the semifinals of the state playoffs.

Elk Grove coach Don Schnake said he didn't think fatigue on the part of his team entered into the final decision. "I wouldn't use that as an alibi," said Schnake.

"THERE WERE A lot of big plays, but Belleville made the last one," said the Grenadier coach.

Schnake also had some words of encouragement for Champa, who was even pressed into service on defense late in the game. "There's nothing automatic when it comes to field goals," said Schnake. "And even if he'd made both of them, I don't know if that would have nailed them (Belleville) to the cross the way they were going."

DES PLAINES PARK DISTRICT JUNIOR FLAG FOOTBALL
Deans Concrete 13,
Wolowicz 7
Deans defeated its first place honors by downing Wolowicz 13-7. Again it was the strong arm of Mark Ackermann, quarterback, in wide receiver Deans on a post pattern which gave Deans the lead. Gordy Levin's 67 yard run set-up Wolowicz's only score.

Homan's 13, Boomer's 6
A touchdown each by Stony Jackson and Charlie Curran of Homan's gave the team their fourth win against one defeat. Boomer's covered the field on defense but his efforts could not produce another score. Sam Cook, Boomer's Q.B., had his squad within the 20-yard line but failed to get a score.

1st National Bank 13,
Avenge's 6
1st National Bank bounced back into the winning column this week by defeating a tough Avenge's squad 13-0. A good defensive battle saw 1st National score into in the first half and again late in the second half. The Avenge's couldn't get anything going in the air, as relied heavily on their ground game which fell short.

Talcoit Pharm. 6, Wild Bunch 6
The Wild Bunch had the opportunity to win its first game of the season but Tal-coit's defense held them off for the win.
Craig Kintler had his Wild Bunch in Tal-coit's territory but the Pharm's stubborn defense lead by Mike Zimmers and Gary Paschall held off any threat of a score.

New Trier West wins state title in field hockey

New Trier West won the state girls field hockey championship Saturday with a 3-0 victory over Edwardsville in Winnetka.

The state champs had reached the final game with victories over Farm-er City-Mansfield Friday (3-2 in over-time) and then over Barrington, 1-0, in Saturday's semifinals.

Barrington had eliminated Conant Friday afternoon in two overtimes, 7-4.

Edwardsville reached the title game Saturday with 2-1 wins over Galesburg and Woodstock.

Deerfield runs to title; West, Robinson top area

by ART MUGALIAN
Cross-Country Editor

PEORIA—The time for speculation was over. A long cross-country season was at an end, and in 15 short but grueling minutes here Saturday a new IHSA Class AA champion was crowned.

While Deerfield coach Len Kisellus was basking in the glory of a still-unofficial state title Saturday and saying I-told-you-so to anyone who would listen, the coaches and runner from Fremd and Palatine were trying to figure out what went wrong.

When it was finally made official — at Peoria Central High School an hour after the race — Deerfield was proclaimed the champion with 111 points, 31 ahead of second-place Wheaton North and 65 ahead of York.

Fremd was a disappointing sixth and Palatine, unbelievably, was 11th.

Only Maine West's up-and-down Warriors salvaged some of the area pride with a strong fourth-place finish. The winner individually was Sandburg's outstanding junior, Tom Graves, whose 14:08 clocking for three miles was the fifth best time ever at Detweiller Park. Graves out-dueled Fenton's Jim Spivey, another junior who was second in 14:16.

Forest View's Darryl Robinson, the Mid-Suburban and Maine East District champ, placed 11th in 14:28 for the area's best finish.

Kisellus was delighted, although hardly surprised, by his team's performance in literally running away with the 1976 version of the state championship.

"What helped these kids more than anything was seeing Fremd ranked No. 1 in the state," said Kisellus. "We beat them at Illiana and the next week Fremd won at Peoria and they were No. 1. It really irritated our kids."

It was especially irritating for Deerfield since the Warriors had beaten Fremd without junior Keith Hampton, who had been out with an injury at Illiana. Hampton was healthy for the state meet — so healthy in fact, that he led his team into the chute in 15th place.

"Hampton was out for three weeks," said Kisellus. "It was a problem with his knee."

Twins Todd and Mark McCallister — both juniors — ran 21st and 22nd, like twins should, and senior Bruce Gilbert was fourth man for Deerfield in 51st. Another junior, Greg Less, was fifth man for Kisellus, in 61st.

With five underclassmen in Deerfield's top seven, Kisellus can expect more of the same next year.

Picking up the pieces will be the task at Fremd and Palatine. Both teams, too, are dominated by sophomores and juniors.

"We expected greater results but we simply didn't achieve our goals," said Fremd coach Roy Hascup, who took over the Viking reins four weeks ago in the wake of Ron Menely's resignation.

"We expected our No. 1 runner to be up higher," said Hascup, whose first harrier was John Filosa in 48th place. "If he had been up higher I think the rest of them would have been up there too."

Filosa finished 11th as a soph in 1974.

"We were just too far back to do any good," Hascup added. "They were close together but we just didn't have that good Viking pack. Though we are proud to be 6th in the state, we expected to finish higher."

Palatine's 11th-place finish in the field of 28 teams was an utter shock.

"I don't know what happened," said team captain Tony Vargas. "I looked around during the race and I never saw any of the guys."

Vargas was 85th for Palatine, the Pirates' third man. The rest of the team was spread out all over the place.

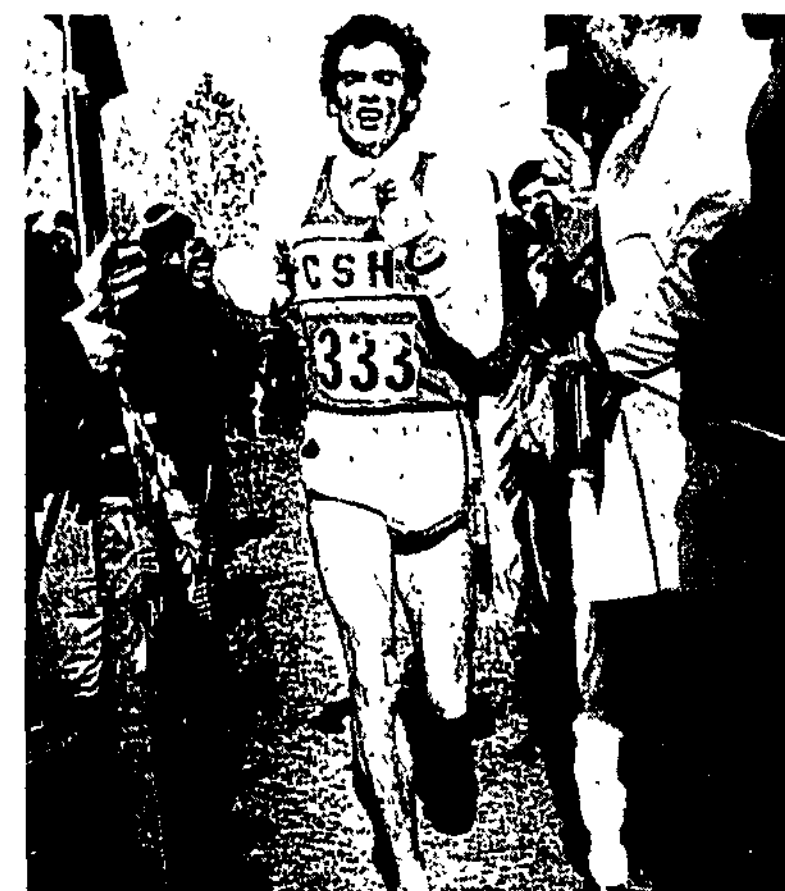

Junior Tom Johnson led the Pirates, finishing 13th in 14:30. But their fifth man was Kevin Nikolai in 153rd. John Dahlgren, usually Palatine's fourth man, was 176th.

Maine West's fourth-place team finish elated coach Bill Barringer, whose team was making its second trip in a row to the state meet.

"This is a pretty darn good team," said Barringer. "There isn't a guy on the team who hasn't been hurting at one time or another, so I think they deserve a lot of credit. They really ran a pressure race."

Jeff Brydges was West's first finisher in 25th place after Gary Paul had taken the lead in the race at the half-mile mark. Paul ended up 46th.

"These are the same kids who were sixth last year so you might expect them to do better than fourth," said Barringer. "But we've had so many

Geegan plays big role, Northwestern skid ends

Pat Geegan, who played his high school football at Rolling Meadows, turned in a key performance Saturday to help Northwestern University up-end Michigan State, 42-21 and snap their 15-game losing streak.

Geegan carried 31 times for 107 yards, scored once on a three-yard run and also picked up a two-point conversion.

The Wildcats, keyed by an all-America performance from quarterback Randy Dean, scored 22 points in the fourth quarter to top Michigan and end their losing streak.

"The monkey is off our backs," said a jubilant Pont during a wild dressing room celebration. A writer for the student newspaper who had demanded Pont's scalp was pitched into the shower.

Dean, 12 of 23 passes for 211 yards, tossed 30- and 5-yard touchdown passes during the final quarter and ran in from the two on an option to nail down the victory, the first against nine losses for the Wildcats this year and their first win since Oct. 11, 1975, when they stopped Indiana, 30-0.

Soccer title to Granite City So.

Granite City South won the state boys soccer championship Saturday night at Maine East.

The St. Louis area school defeated Wheaton Central 4-0 for the title after eliminating Highland Park 2-0 in the semifinals.

Wheaton Central reached the finals by knocking off Wheaton-Warrenville 1-0.

AREA'S BEST. Darryl Robinson of Forest View, running here in Peoria, turned in the best performance by an area runner Saturday at the IHSA cross-country finals. The lithe senior finished 11th in the huge field, clocking a 14:28 for three miles. No area runner has done better since Arnie Jackson of Schaumburg placed fifth in the state championships of 1973.

Ask Andy

Birds' hollow bones helpful in flight

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's Yearbook of Science and the Future to Bonnie Wallace, 11, of Oliver, B.C., Canada, for her question:

IS IT TRUE THAT BIRDS HAVE HOLLOW BONES?

The average flying bird has a streamlined silhouette. As sleek as an airplane, he has no protruding parts such as ears to obstruct the smooth flow of air currents around his body. To get into the air and stay there, he has thrown overboard all excess baggage not concerned with flight. And perhaps his most successful weight reduction program can be found in his skeleton.

A bird's skeleton is much lighter than a mammal's of comparable size. This is surprising when you stop to consider that a bird's bones must be super-strong to withstand the sudden stresses of its daily aerial acrobatics. Looping the loop, sudden turns and power dives could snap weaker bones. But the birds have a secret — their hollow bones are not only lighter, they are also built in such a way that makes them very strong.

Many of the long, round bones in a bird's skeleton are indeed hollow. Not as hollow as the inside of a cardboard tube, but still hollow. Here and there, inside the bones, are special braces that reinforce them like the struts found inside airplane wings. A bird's skull is especially light because of the network of bony braces that support it, and there are no weighty teeth to worry about.

In addition to lighter bones, a bird's skeleton contains fewer bones than a mammal's, and many of their bones are fused together. This helps give a bird a more rigid framework that is necessary for flight. Their ribs are long, thin and flat. They allow plenty of movement for breathing and flying, yet they are light and strong. What's more, each rib overlaps its neighbor, reinforcing its own strength.

Of course, birds have other features that enable them to soar throughout the sky. Wings, feathers, air sacs in its body and naturally very powerful chest muscles all contribute. And to provide the fuel for its mighty muscles, birds concentrate on "high-octane" foods, such as seeds, fruits, insects, nectar and the like.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Brenda Allen, 11, of Visalia, Calif., for her question:

HOW DO TRAPDOOR SPIDERS MAKE THEIR HOMES?

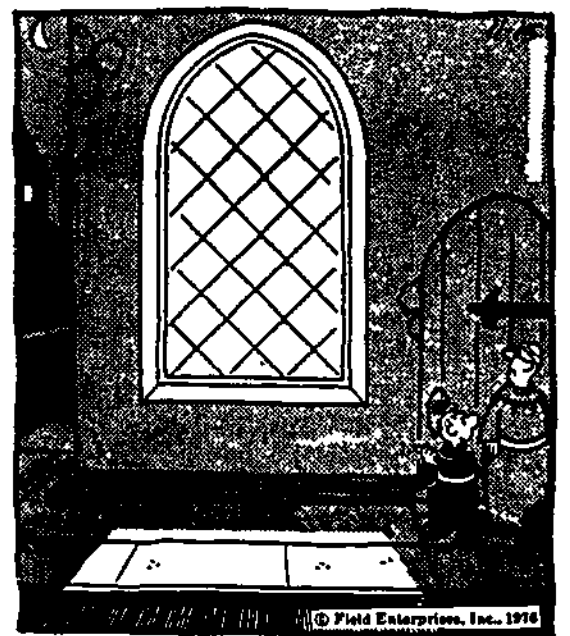

The underground home of the trapdoor spider is an amazing engineering feat. The female begins excavating the burrow by clearing pebbles and other objects away from a circle about an inch and a half wide. Then she digs a tube-like hold, smoothing the sides as it deepens with her chisel-like fangs and coating them with a delicate but strong filmy web. She constructs the "lid" or trapdoor to her home by moistening bits of earth with "web glue," and fusing them together with webbing for extra strength.

When the door is halfway completed, she pushes it upright and weaves a flexible web hinge. Now she pulls the door down again and continues to build until the opening is closed. Beneath this perfectly fitting door, she vigilantly waits for a passing meal. When she senses the vibrations of an insect overhead, she slips the door up, snags her victim and enjoys a tasty meal. She never completely leaves her snug home because even she would have a hard time finding it. Her eyes are on top of her head, making a thorough search almost impossible.

Jim starts at beginning

Jim: "I learned bridge while you were in Korea and I was at Notre Dame. When you got home and took off your uniform, I remember you taught me the importance of learning the single-suit plays."

Oswald: "These are the plays where declarer wants to do the best he can with a single suit. Maybe we should show some of them this week."

Jim: "Let's start with an easy one. South is in a normal three-notrump contract. The key suit is spades and South needs four spade tricks. At some stage of the play he goes to dummy with the ace of hearts to take the spade finesse."

Oswald: "If it loses to the king the contract is doomed to defeat, but there is his majesty perched in the East hand and the finesse will work."

Jim: "Nevertheless he must be careful to start the spades by leading the nine from dummy. If he makes a mistake and leads the jack East can beat him by refusing to cover. He must play the six spot from his hand. Then, when the nine is led next, East holds back again. South must win in his own hand and can't lead through the king for the third time."

A Florida reader says that she averaged just 8.3 high-card points a hand after keeping count for 540 hands. She wants to know if she is unlucky.

The answer is that if her count was accurate she really was in a streak of very bad luck, but somehow or other we doubt if her count was accurate.

1977 HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES

If you are considering college in your future, educational financing is likely one of your major concerns. G. I. Bill education may be one option available to you, but current benefits of this program will be terminated Dec. 31, 1976. Consider this: the Navy has over 40 challenging specialties from nuclear engineering to personnel administration. We can provide you with training and practical experience in your field of interest and eligibility for current G. I. Bill educational benefits by enrolling in the Navy's Delayed Entry Program by Dec. 31, 1976. If this training, experience & financial assistance for your planned education are options you would consider valuable, let's talk about it.

JOE'S SING-SONG observations about life are usually punctuated by the buffing and popping of his cotton shine cloth on fine shoe leather.

Better days ahead

Shine, wax 'n philosophy all available for a buck

HOUSTON (UPI) — Old-Timer Joe's singsong observations about life are punctuated by the buffing and popping of his cotton shine cloth on fine shoe leather.

They're as much a part of his 50-cent shoeshine as the aromatic tins of polish arrayed within reach of his gnarled black hands.

Times have changed for the worse in the shoeshine business most places, but Joe Gims still makes a living among bus drivers, bankers, businessmen and policemen.

He sees better things ahead with Jimmy Carter's election to the presidency.

"I THINK GOD let him win it 'cause he lived right. He's got ways God wanted him to have. He loves all nations," said Joe, bringing his stocky frame up to full height for a moment. "I told people he was going to get it. They think I'm a prophet."

"He (Carter) loves his mother and if a man loves his mother, God will bless him. He's going to be like FDR and John Kennedy."

Joe offers one of the few remaining bargains in the downtown area. A regular shine is 50 cents; a wax job costs a buck. The ultimate — a spit shine — is $1.40. Boots are more.

Joe worries about rainy days and keeps close count on his earnings on a piece of white cardboard.

"I'M STILL MAKING a little something, but it ain't like it used to be. It's up and down pretty good. It used to be real good, but a lot of the people are gone."

Joe shows up to open for business each morning at the Florsheim Shoe Store on Main Street dressed in his finest.

"I dress well. I got 15 hats and many fine suits," he says proudly, then disappears for a moment to change into his gray cotton smock and baggy work trousers.

He lives with a daughter in the 4th Ward, near downtown, and goes to church regularly. He reads the Bible and preaches to anyone who will listen.

"I preach to people pretty often. I like to talk to people about God."

"You have to stay busy to stay happy," he chatters at a businessman in a gray suit. "I'm 66 and still holding up. Some people 50 don't hold up and sit around in wheel chairs. We keep in good shape."

'God will protect'

4 accused in boy's death to represent themselves

YAKIMA, Wash. (UPI) — Saying God will protect them, four members of a Christian religious cult spurned attorneys Sunday and prepared to begin their own defense Monday against charges they beat to death a 3-year-old boy in exorcist rites because they believed he was possessed by the devil.

The defendants, who have cited biblical guidance for their acts, are among five persons charged with killing David Wellbacher, whose decaying body was found in a sealed bedroom of a Yakima home in September. The boy had been dead for about two months before his body was found.

The four who will offer their own defense have refused attorneys, saying they believe God will guide and protect them.

THE PROSECUTION rested its case Saturday after Oregon State Medical Examiner William Brady testified he found bruises on the arms, legs, bottom of the feet and lower back of the boy's body.

Brady said the child must have been hit with considerable force for the bruises to remain on the body that far into decomposition.

The charges include first-degree manslaughter and second-degree assault. But only Velma Cunningham, 51, has hired an attorney.

Her attorney, Wiley Hurst, contends the boy died not because of beatings but because his mother threw him across a room.

Mrs. Cunningham's husband, Edward Leon Cunningham, 51; their daughter, Carolyn, 27; Debra Marie Wellbacher, 20, David's mother; and Lorraine Edwards, 20, are representing themselves, although the court has appointed lawyers to serve them in an advisory role only.

CUNNINGHAM, called "the minister" by members of the group, is its leader. Despite objections by him and other defendants, the jury has heard tape-recordings made by police shortly after the defendants were arrested.

In the tapes, the defendants said David was beaten with sticks to exorcise the devil from him. But the defendants allegedly continued the beatings even after the exorcism, based on proverbs 23:13 and 23:14 from the King James version of the bible:

"Withhold not correction from the child: for if thou beatest him with the rod, he shall not die.

"Thou shalt beat him with the rod, and shalt deliver his soul from hell."

On Saturday, Dr. Richard Muzall, Yakima County coroner, testified there was no question in his mind why David died.

"I think he died because he was beaten repeatedly," he said.

Carter pardon won't lure evaders back

by PAUL GORES

For about 25 draft evaders from the Northwest suburbs who now live in Canada, Jimmy Carter's presidency will mean a chance to come home.

But most of them won't come home, said Jerry Olsen, staff coordinator of the Midwest Committee for Military Counseling. Their departure from the United States, spurred by the Vietnam war, probably will be permanent.

"Many have made commitments to a new society, families and obviously a new job," Olsen said. Olsen, whose group is in personal contact with many of the draft evaders, said "a full half" of the 4,000 now in exile already have changed their citizenship. He said "80 per cent won't come back."

Olsen's Chicago-based office has not received many calls from draft evaders wanting to know about Jimmy Carter's promise of blanket pardons.

CARTER'S PARDON would apply only to Selective Service violators who objected to the war, not to deserters or those convicted of military crimes. Those would be handled on a case-by-case basis.

Olsen said there are about 82 draft resisters from the Chicago area.

"They may get off without any problem if there's a real pardon," Olsen said. He anticipates the pardon in February or March.

The names of draft resisters are kept confidential by Olsen's office. U.S. attorneys and the FBI protect identities under the Privacy Act.

But Olsen said most of the draft resisters who have returned are "well received."

"Most people now agree that the war in Vietnam was a very bad mistake," Olsen said. "At the very least, people will tolerate them (resisters)."

"MOST OF THE draft evaders were from the middle class — the suburbs," Olsen said. "The lower class people didn't have the options available to the middle class."

"Many of the poor didn't understand the war and just went along with what the government told them,"

Olsen said.

U.S. attorneys are still prosecuting cases and the FBI is still looking for resisters, Olsen said, contrary to a TV network report earlier this week. The report said investigators and prosecutors are waiting to see what Carter will do.

"That's because they (the networks) usually check with the large cities," Olsen said. "By and large the big cities are not particularly interested in draft cases. They usually just go out to his parent's house once a year and say 'Have you seen him around?'"

Seniors point out transit problems

by LYNN ASINOF

The over-60 group wants wheels. They want to be able to get around town, to Chicago and to the airport. And they don't want to spend a lot of money.

The seniors already have subsidized taxi service in three Northwest suburbs, as well as special bus or minibus service in four townships.

But there are problems, as the seniors pointed out at an all-day seminar on transportation sponsored by Harper College.

TAKE THE CASE of Harold and Mildred Gulbransen, who moved to a senior citizens project in Elk Grove Village a year ago. While their township provides some minibus service to town, they say they can't make connections to get to Chicago.

"We're satisfied with everything except getting downtown," Mrs. Gulbransen said. "We feel like we're fenced in. All our friends live in Chicago."

Most transportation for seniors is provided by the townships and villages, which focus on getting the seniors to shopping centers and local downtown areas.

Only a few provide connections with the Chicago and North Western Ry. or the North Suburban Mass Transit District buses in Des Plaines.

"I guess the idea of the Regional Transportation Authority was to take care of these problems. But I think realistically we are not going to see these things in your lifetime or my

FOUR TOWNSHIPS in the Northwest suburbs now provide minibus service to senior citizens, enabling them to visit shopping centers and local downtown areas. Three towns subsidize senior citizens' taxi rides, but seniors still have trouble getting into Chicago and to the airport.

Part of township could support new village: study

by JOE FRANZ

Enough tax revenue could be raised in Maine Township to support a new municipality, a study shows.

Gerald Feldman, president of the Golf-Maine Park District, said a report prepared by the Illinois Dept. of Local Government Affairs shows a three-square-mile area of the township could be incorporated as a city or village without placing a strain on taxpayers.

Feldman is a member of a committee studying the feasibility of forming a municipality in the unincorporated area.

"The committee originally thought incorporation was impossible because of the lack of business and industry in the area," he said. "The committee, however, was surprised at the kind of money that is available and believe that not all of it would be required."

THE UNINCORPORATED area from which the revenue estimates were taken is bounded by Central Road, Dempster Street, Greenwood Avenue and the Tri-State Tollway.

The report estimates the predominantly residential area, which has an estimated population of 33,100, is valued at $275.6 million and would have an equalized assessed valuation of $109.7 million.

It also estimates that revenue from property taxes, sales taxes, motor fuel taxes, state income taxes, federal revenue sharing and all other taxes and fees would be about $2,350,979 a year.

The estimated $486,285 that could be derived from property taxes is based on a tax rate to homeowners of 43.5 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

The rate is based on the maximum amount that can be levied under state law, and could be adjusted downward to meet the budget should a municipality be formed.

THE MAXIMUM property tax rate that can be levied in the unincorporated area would be lower than the rate in three of four neighboring municipalities, according to the report. Those rates in 1975 were as follows:

Des Plaines, $1.04 cents per $100 of assessed valuation; Park Ridge, $1.12 per $100 of assessed valuation; Niles, 36 cents per $100 of assessed valuation; and Glenview, 99.8 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Although a complete estimate on the cost of establishing and operating a new municipality are not available, the report said administrative costs would be about $128,600 a year.

The figures do not include the cost of operating a police department or providing other municipal services.

FELDMAN SAID the committee will meet in about a month to discuss the possible boundaries and budget of a new municipality in the unincorporated area of the township.

Residents are considering incorporating, he said, because they want more control over what happens in the community.

"Incorporation is our last resort," he said. "The existing communities have made it clear that we will not be incorporated by them and we want some way of improving the area."

Helping people find 'it' Crusade for Christ opens

by LYNN ASINOF

The billboards and bumper stickers say "I found it," but they don't tell you what "it" is.

For the past 10 days, Chicagoans have been kept wondering about the cryptic advertising which has appeared in newspapers, on billboards and car signs.

Today they will find out.

Today the massive advertising campaign for Christ enters its second stage. A message will be added to the billboards saying, "You can find it to, and the telephone number is 843-0600."

THOSE WHO call the number will be connected with a telephone center staffed by 100 volunteers who have been training since July. The volunteers will direct them to Christ.

"Each person who accepts Christ as their saviour will be directed to a Bible study at a church, not necessarily to join that church, but to find out what the Bible tells them in living their lives," said Larry Eberhart, a worker with the Here's Life Chicago office in Rolling Meadows.

The same campaign is now underway in 121 cities across the country, and this isn't the first time Christians have used billboards, newspapers, TV and radio to get this message across.

Mrs. Eberhart said the first campaign began in Atlanta two years ago under the name "Agape Atlanta." Campus Crusade for Christ picked up the idea and it was presented in 21 cities last spring.

THE CAMPAIGN is being supported by 350 to 400 churches in the Chicago area and is being funded by contributions. Organization began last summer.

The advertising will continue for two more weeks and will include a TV special from 8 to 9 p.m. Tuesday on Channel 44. The show will feature Dean Jones, Charles Colson and Carol Lawrence.

When the campaign is over, there will be a big praise and prayer rally. No date has been set.

"THE BASIC IDEA is to contact every home in the metropolitan area to give them an opportunity to know how they can have a personal relationship with Jesus Christ," Mrs. Eberhart said. "The ultimate goal is to change lives."

To assure the success of the campaign, people throughout the area have been offering continual prayers since August as part of an organized prayer chain. "There is continual prayer five days a week from 6 in the morning until midnight," Mrs. Eberhart said.

The campaign will run into the beginning of the holiday season.

WONDERING WHAT "it" is? This billboard on Northwest Highway just past the Arlington Heights village limits asks the question, and Here's Life, a religious crusade for Christ, is hoping to provide the answers.

Membership for blacks OK'd at Carter's church

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI)—The congregation of the Plains Baptist Church averted a personal and political crisis for Jimmy Carter Sunday by opening its membership to all persons — including blacks — "who want to worship Jesus Christ."

The vote, taken behind closed doors, cleared the way for a new attempt by the Rev. Clennon King, a black minister from Albany, Ga., to seek membership in the all-white church where Carter and his family worship. King said he would make his try next Sunday.

"I was proud of my church," God's church," Carter told reporters after the two hour, 45 minute meeting. "I'm completely satisfied with this church action, and I'm very proud of my church. I believe our church will now be unified."

ASKED IF he had influenced the decision, Carter said: "I was just one of the church members and they all know that."

One congregation member told a reporter there was no bitterness at the meeting.

The congregation voted 120 to 66 to abolish a 1965 rule barring "negroes and civil rights agitators" from membership. The assembly also overruled, by a 107-84 vote, a recommendation by the deacons that pastor Bruce Edwards be dismissed for opposing the rule.

Future applicants for church membership will be considered by a "watch care committee" under a new rule, adopted in a third vote, which opens the church to "all persons who want to worship Jesus Christ."

Carter, who supported all three votes, said the committee's actions will be limited to questioning applicants to determine "if their intent is sincere. There is an understanding it will not be based on racial considerations."

CARTER'S FAMILY voted against the antiblack rule in 1965.

Services were canceled Oct. 31 — two days before election day — when King first tried to enter the church. Deacons then voted to enforce the 1965 rule despite its embarrassing consequences for the congregation's most noted member.

After Sunday's vote was announced by Carter's cousin, Hugh Carter, King told reporters: "I'm pleased and satisfied. I'll be back next week with bells on."

He said he would continue to press his application for membership and, if accepted, would attend services regularly and seek to bring other blacks into the church.

King asked Hugh Carter whether the vote meant he would be admitted as a member.

"I can't tell you," Carter responded. "That will depend on two things — what the watch care committee recommends, and how the congregation votes."

ASKED IF THE vote to open the doors of the church vindicated him, King said: "It vindicates the church."

Harmony prevails at founding of Lutheran synod

by JOHN LAMPINEN

The founding convention of the English Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church took place in a mood of quiet harmony during the weekend.

As Harold DeVries, delegate from Faith Lutheran Church, Mundeloin, put it, most of the turmoil that resulted in the split from the Missouri Synod is over.

"It's getting together and saying, 'Hey, we're here,'" he said of the convention at the Arlington Park Hilton, Arlington Heights.

"The issues are over," said the Rev. Carl F. Thrun of Trinity Lutheran Church in Rolling Meadows. "We're moving on in terms of mission and ministry."

TRINITY WAS one of 76 congregations from across the country meeting under a theme of "A New Song" after seven years of conflict over interpretations of the Bible within the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

There were references to the Missouri Synod that the Lutherans were leaving behind, but for the most part, they were references designed to serve as reminders for the delegations' talk of new freedom and increased involvement of the laity in church affairs.

"This day in this place we sing to the Lord a new song as the English Synod begins its new life in Christ," keynote speaker Dr. Martin E. Marly told the convention Friday. "Though members of a little flock within the little flock that is Christ's community on earth, we feel closer to the rest of the church today than ever before."

Saturday's featured speaker, Dr. Martin Kretzmann, tackled the question of the split directly.

"We are not leaving the Missouri Synod," he said. "It has ceased to be what it was meant to be."

"We are unworthy servants," he said. "We have only done what was necessary."

DISCUSSING HIS observations about the convention, The Rev. Thrun referred to a new sense of fellowship after the years of turmoil within the Missouri Synod.

"I feel for myself a great sense of relief that instead of all the in-fighting, we can really get on with the job that Christ meant us to do," he said.

"The years of fighting among themselves instead of concentrating on spreading God's word, was a 'great disgrace' among Christians, he said.

Echoing a view that dominated the convention, the Rev. Thrun said he sees the English Synod as being "more inclusive" in its dealings with other Christian organizations than was the Missouri Synod.

But he said he sees the newly formed synod as "transitional." DeVries said a continual issue within the church will be whether it should join forces with another Lutheran organization.

THE REV. THRUN said he didn't know if it would go that far.

"But at least, we want to be in fellowship with them," he said. "I hope it (the English Synod) doesn't become another super church."

The closest the convention came to fighting over issues was during unsuccessful attempts to amend the constitution adopted earlier by the synod's board of directors.

The most volatile debate occurred over a requirement in the constitution that the president, vice presidents and secretary be ministers.

The Rev. Thomas Strieter of Glen Ellyn took exception, saying the requirement "continues what I consider the heresy" of the Missouri Synod.

"One of the beautiful things that is going on here is that two-thirds of the people here are laypersons," he said. "Let's not exclude their involvement."

THE REV. ARLAN Brandt of Aurora said he isn't against striking the phrase but prefers to get the individual congregations involved in considering a possible amendment.

The second point of contention concerned the preamble, which outlined the English Synod's battles within the Missouri Synod.

"This preamble has the danger of setting up exclusivity," he said, adding that it might "set up barriers" to others who might want to affiliate with the synod.

He called for the preamble to be eliminated and replaced with a more positive statement of the synod's beliefs and goals.

'Exiled' seminary chief gets ovation

by JOHN LAMPINEN

Quiet conversation penetrated the air as the Rev. John Tietjen stepped to the microphone.

There was no pause on Tietjen's part.

He began immediately into his short address, and soon the competing voices at the founding convention of the English Synod stilled.

"What a really moving personal experience this is for me," he said, jutting his right hand out in frequent, rapid gestures.

He is a thin graying man. He also had been the catalyst for the new branch of Lutheranism that met in Arlington Heights during the weekend.

THE CONFLICT between factions of the Missouri Synod had been brewing long before his suspension two years ago as president of Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., for questioning the liberal interpretation of the Bible.

But the Rev. Tietjen's suspension brought the conflict to a head, with dissident students and faculty members establishing a seminary-in-exile, called Seminex.

When four Missouri Synod district presidents were ousted earlier this year for ordaining Seminex graduates, formation of the English Synod by dissidents was all but taken for granted.

But as he spoke Saturday, the Rev. Tietjen issued no regrets over the split. He talked instead optimistically about the future.

"We think that there are exciting possibilities ahead for us all," he said.

HE TALKED of a "partnership" between Seminex and the newly formed synod, a partnership that he hopes will be functional as well as structural.

"We can have a church home in which we are grounded and rooted," he said. "We want the partnership with you in that you see our work as part of your own."

A few camera bulbs flashed, and the Rev. Tietjen continued, pointing out that the English Synod and other Lutheran church organizations alone will not absorb all of Seminex's graduates.

Some have told him, he said, gesturing with both hands now, that to meet the situation, Seminex should curb the number of students it graduates.

"We think that's the institutional way of solving what some may view as a problem," the Rev. Tietjen said.

HE SAID it is not Seminex's answer. Concepts of the ministry are being reevaluated, and ministers are doing other work, he said.

The pitch in his voice increased.

"It's wild to see what Seminex graduates are doing," he said, and referring to the Missouri Synod split, he added, "It never would have been so apart from this crisis."

His address completed, the Rev. Tietjen moved quickly to his seat on the convention floor.

There was a smattering of applause. Then one person stood as he cheered. Then another and another.

As the Rev. Tietjen got to his seat, all of the convention delegates were on their feet.

enacted, the delegates would have had to have voted to direct the board to meet during the convention to make the amendments. After the first convention, power to make amendments passes from the board to subsequent annual conventions.

Both amendment proposals were defeated by voice votes after opponents stressed that congregations will be given a chance to discuss them during the coming year.

Design and construction of artificial food items will be taught Nov. 23 at a workshop sponsored by the Des Plaines Historical Society.

The session will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the museum, 777 Lee St., Des Plaines.

To register for the class, call 297-4912 by Friday.

Panel members to be disclosed today: Dist. 62

Members of a new citizens' advisory committee in Des Plaines Dist. 62 will be announced by the board of education at its meeting today at 7:30 p.m. in the administration center, 777 Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines, district officials said.

The board already has met in executive session to review 23 membership applications, said Robert Birchfield, chairman of the board's long-range planning committee.

Tonight it will select 12 persons to serve as at-large members of the committee with 13 persons selected by the district's 13 parent-teacher organizations, Birchfield said.

The committee will make recommendations to the board regarding future use of district facilities, assignment and distribution of district personnel and measures needed to assure adequate finances.

The board's long-range planning committee will meet with representatives of the Des Plaines Education Assn. at 7 p.m. to discuss what role district teachers can play in long-range planning, said Robert Reinke, assistant to the superintendent.

Teachers have suggested a teachers' advisory committee be formed to look into the same areas on which the citizens committee will report.

Variety show slated at Maine West High

"After Dark," Maine West High School's variety show, will be presented at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Nov. 20, in the school auditorium, 1755 S. Wolf Rd., Des Plaines.

Tickets for main floor seats are $3, balcony seats are $2. The show will feature comedy acts, a barbershop quartet, song and dance routines, guitar groups and mime.

Carter pardon won't lure evaders back

by PAUL GORES

For about 25 draft evaders from the Northwest suburbs who now live in Canada, Jimmy Carter's presidency will mean a chance to come home.

But most of them won't come home, said Jerry Olsen, staff coordinator of the Midwest Committee for Military Counseling. Their departure from the United States, spurred by the Vietnam war, probably will be permanent.

"Many have made commitments to a new society, families and obviously a new job," Olsen said. Olsen, whose group is in personal contact with many of the draft evaders, said "a full half" of the 4,000 now in exile already have changed their citizenship. He said "80 per cent won't come back."

Olsen's Chicago-based office has not received many calls from draft evaders wanting to know about Jimmy Carter's promise of blanket pardons.

CARTER'S PARDON would apply only to Selective Service violators who objected to the war, not to deserters or those convicted of military crimes. Those would be handled on a case-by-case basis.

Olsen said there are about 82 draft resisters from the Chicago area.

"They may get off without any problem if there's a real pardon," Olsen said. He anticipates the pardon in February or March.

The names of draft resisters are kept confidential by Olsen's office. U.S. attorneys and the FBI protect identities under the Privacy Act.

But Olsen said most of the draft resisters who have returned are "well received."

"Most people now agree that the war in Vietnam was a very bad mistake," Olsen said. "At the very least, people will tolerate them (resisters)."

"MOST OF THE draft evaders were from the middle class — the suburbs," Olsen said. "The lower class people didn't have the options available to the middle class."

"Many of the poor didn't understand the war and just went along with what the government told them,"

Olsen said.

U.S. attorneys are still prosecuting cases and the FBI is still looking for resisters, Olsen said, contrary to a TV network report earlier this week. The report said investigators and prosecutors are waiting to see what Carter will do.

"That's because they (the networks) usually check with the large cities," Olsen said. "By and large the big cities are not particularly interested in draft cases. They usually just go out to his parent's house once a year and say 'Have you seen him around?'"

BUT SMALLER communities are still after draft evaders, Olsen said.

"If I tried to defend a guy in Gary, Ind., he'd have much less of a chance of having his case dismissed than in Chicago," Olsen said.

Olsen's counseling service for draft evaders, has helped many men to have their draft evasion cases dismissed.

Seniors point out transit problems

by LYNN ASINOF

The over-60 group wants wheels. They want to be able to get around town, to Chicago and to the airport. And they don't want to spend a lot of money.

The seniors already have subsidized taxi service in three Northwest suburbs, as well as special bus or minibus service in four townships.

But there are problems, as the seniors pointed out at an all-day seminar on transportation sponsored by Harper College.

TAKE THE CASE of Harold and Mildred Gulbransen, who moved to a senior citizens project in Elk Grove Village a year ago. While their township provides some minibus service to town, they say they can't make connections to get to Chicago.

"We're satisfied with everything except getting downtown," Mrs. Gulbransen said. "We feel like we're fenced in. All our friends live in Chicago."

Most transportation for seniors is provided by the townships and villages, which focus on getting the seniors to shopping centers and local downtown areas.

Only a few provide connections with the Chicago and North Western Ry. or the North Suburban Mass Transit District buses in Des Plaines.

"I guess the idea of the Regional Transportation Authority was to take care of these problems. But I think realistically we are not going to see these things in your lifetime or my (Continued on Page 10)

FOUR TOWNSHIPS in the Northwest suburbs now provide minibus service to senior citizens, enabling them to visit shopping centers and local downtown areas. Three towns subsidize senior citizens' taxi rides, but seniors still have trouble getting into Chicago and to the airport.

Village to start ticketing cars without stickers

About 1,200 residents who failed to purchase a village vehicle sticker, will be issued tickets today by Wheeling police, Police Chief M. O. Horcher said.

Horcher said the tickets will be mailed to residents as part of the village crackdown on motorists who failed to buy the stickers. The program, which began Oct. 13, has brought in more than $12,000 in previously uncollected revenues.

Residents who purchase the sticker before Nov. 30 will be charged a $5 fine in addition to the $5 late fee and sticker cost, Horcher said.

"Anyone who fails to purchase the sticker by Nov. 30 will be summoned to appear in court," he said. Violators face a fine of up to $500. The 1976 stickers should have been displayed on all village vehicles in January.

Horcher said the 1,200 delinquent notices do not include those issued to large trucking firms in the village.

"The big trucking firms are negotiating with the village attorney and the administration. In a lot of cases, their trucks are registered in Wheeling but don't operate in the state of Illinois," he said.

Horcher said residents who receive the delinquent notices can purchase the vehicle stickers at the village clerk's office, 235 W. Dundee Rd.

Wheeling village officials estimate they will collect "in excess of $20,000" in the vehicle sticker crackdown. Cost of the enforcement program is estimated at $2,068.

Stickers must be purchased for all vehicles, including automobiles, motorcycles, trailers and recreational vehicles. Fees range from $5 for recreational vehicles to $35 for large trucks. Automobile fees are $10. All vehicle stickers not purchased within 30 days of vehicle purchase will be subject to a $5 late charge.

Village Mgr. Terry L. Zerkle said residents who have purchased a vehicle sticker may have received a notice of delinquency because of a computer error. In those cases, Zerkle said, residents should fill out the notice citing their vehicle sticker number and return the form to the village.

Crusade for Christ opens

by LYNN ASINOF

The billboards and bumper stickers say "I found it," but they don't tell you what "it" is.

For the past 10 days, Chicagoans have been kept wondering about the cryptic advertising which has appeared in newspapers, on billboards and car signs.

Today they will find out.

Today the massive advertising campaign for Christ enters its second stage. A message will be added to the billboards saying, "You can find it to, and the telephone number is 843-0600."

THOSE WHO call the number will be connected with a telephone center staffed by 100 volunteers who have been training since July. The volunteers will direct them to Christ.

"Each person who accepts Christ as their savior will be directed to a Bible study at a church, not necessarily to join that church, but to find out what the Bible tells them in living their lives," said Larry Eberhart, a worker with the Here's Life Chicago office in Rolling Meadows.

The same campaign is now underway in 121 cities across the country, and this isn't the first time Christians have used billboards, newspapers, TV and radio to get this message across.

Mrs. Eberhart said the first campaign began in Atlanta two years ago under the name "Agape Atlanta." Campus Crusade for Christ picked up the idea and it was presented in 21 cities last spring.

THE CAMPAIGN is being supported by 350 to 400 churches in the Chicago area and is being funded by contributions. Organization began last summer.

The advertising will continue for two more weeks and will include a TV special from 8 to 9 p.m. Tuesday on Channel 44. The show will feature Dean Jones, Charles Colson and Carol Lawrence.

When the campaign is over, there will be a big praise and prayer rally. No date has been set.

"THE BASIC IDEA is to contact every home in the metropolitan area to give them an opportunity to know how they can have a personal relationship with Jesus Christ," Mrs. Eberhart said. "The ultimate goal is to change lives."

To assure the success of the campaign, people throughout the area have been offering continual prayers since August as part of an organized prayer chain. "There is continual prayer five days a week from 6 in the morning until midnight," Mrs. Eberhart said.

The campaign will run into the beginning of the holiday season.

Membership for blacks OK'd at Carter's church

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI)—The congregation of the Plains Baptist Church averted a personal and political crisis for Jimmy Carter Sunday by opening its membership to all persons — including blacks — "who want to worship Jesus Christ."

The vote, taken behind closed doors, cleared the way for a new attempt by the Rev. Clennon King, a black minister from Albany, Ga., to seek membership in the all-white church where Carter and his family worship. King said he would make his try next Sunday.

"I was proud of my church, God's church," Carter told reporters after the two hour, 45 minute meeting. "I'm completely satisfied with this church action, and I'm very proud of my church. I believe our church will now be unified."

ASKED IF he had influenced the decision, Carter said: "I was just one of the church members and they all know that."

One congregation member told a reporter there was no bitterness at the meeting.

The congregation voted 120 to 66 to abolish a 1965 rule barring "negroes and civil rights agitators" from membership. The assembly also overruled, by a 107-84 vote, a recommendation by the deacons that pastor Bruce Edwards be dismissed for opposing the rule.

Future applicants for church membership will be considered by a "watch care committee" under a new rule, adopted in a third vote, which opens the church to "all persons who want to worship Jesus Christ."

Carter, who supported all three votes, said the committee's actions will be limited to questioning applicants to determine "if their intent is sincere. There is an understanding it will not be based on racial considerations."

CARTER'S FAMILY voted against the antiblack rule in 1965.

Services were canceled Oct. 31 — two days before election day — when King first tried to enter the church. Deacons then voted to enforce the 1965 rule despite its embarrassing consequences for the congregation's most noted member.

After Sunday's vote was announced by Carter's cousin, Hugh Carter, King told reporters: "I'm pleased and satisfied. I'll be back next week with bells on."

He said he would continue to press his application for membership and, if accepted, would attend services regularly and seek to bring other blacks into the church.

King asked Hugh Carter whether the vote meant he would be admitted as a member.

"I can't tell you," Carter responded. "That will depend on two things — what the watch care committee recommends, and how the congregation votes."

ASKED IF THE vote to open the doors of the church vindicated him, King said: "It vindicates the church."

Dist. 21 wrapup

Teachers try value systems plan

Teachers in Wheeling-Buffer Grove Dist. 21 will be learning about personal and social values in a new program sponsored by the Lilly Foundation. The board of education approved the district's participation in the project this week.

Dist. 21 will be one of five model school districts in the country and the only district in Illinois to take part in "Project Impact," which examines value systems and helps teachers clarify their own values and beliefs.

The project will involve about 75 teachers in a series of in-service training seminars beginning in January. The teachers will be selected from each of the 17 Dist. 21 schools and they will serve as specialists within their own schools.

The teachers in this program also will be taught how to improve decision-making for themselves and their students.

The project is underwritten by a grant to the Lilly Foundation and will be conducted at no cost to Dist. 21.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said Dist. 21 was selected for this project because it has already done work in staff development with teachers.

Land gift rule OK'd

The Dist. 21 board Thursday approved an agreement with the Village of Wheeling and the park district to pay any legal costs if a proposed land dedication ordinance is challenged in a lawsuit.

The ordinance, which needs village approval, requires developers to make cash or land donations to park and school districts. Developers would be required to donate 5.5 acres for recreational purposes for every 1,000 persons their projects bring into the village. Cash or land donations to the school district would be based on the number of pupils who would live in the new developments.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said the district helped draw up the ordinance and supports its passage by the village board.

The Wheeling park district last week approved the agreement to intervene in any lawsuits concerning the land donation ordinance. Village Atty. John Burke said last week lawsuits could result from the proposed ordinance since a similar law passed by the city of Naperville is being challenged by developers.

Funds bid for Rob Roy studied

A plan to seek state and federal funds to purchase the Rob Roy Golf Course for recreational open space is being formulated by several Northwest suburbs and park districts.

John Gilligan, a member of the Wheeling Township Board, was named during the weekend to head a steering committee that will develop the plan.

One possibility suggested at a meeting of state, county and municipal officials Saturday would use the 100-acre golf course as site for a senior citizens' complex, golf course and other recreational facilities.

THE STEERING committee will meet Dec. 11 to put together details of a tentative proposal.

Prospect Heights Mayor Richard E. Wolf, who has led the fight to preserve the golf course, was optimistic about chances for the purchase.

"It'll get off the ground," he said.

Centex Homes Corp. has been seeking county rezoning of the parcel at Wheeling Road and Euclid Avenue in unincorporated Wheeling Township to build 551 homes.

But representatives of Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights and Wheeling, tracts, the county board and county forest preserve district, Wheeling the Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights and River Trails park district, the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, the Illinois Dept. of Local Government Affairs, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, as well as several state legislators met Saturday to consider ways of preserving the property.

"IT WAS A GOOD meeting, and I expect something to come out of it," Wolf said.

He said Wheeling Township likely will be the agency to apply for the state and federal funds.

While Centex officials have estimated the site would be worth $5.7 million if developed according to its plan, Wolf said the joint-governmental purchase would buy the property for $3 million, the fair market value of the land as it is presently zoned.

Definit plans for the property have not been determined, he said, but it was the "general consensus" of officials at Saturday's meeting that the land be preserved with a multiuse concept rather than as a golf course only.

NIPC, A REGIONAL land and transportation consultant for the area that sponsored the meeting, has designated the golf course on its planning maps as first priority for open space.

Because of that, Wolf said, he is confident the agency, which reviews federal grant applications, would look on the purchase request "favorably."

"We are trying to do this as a regional effort and not just as a local community with a self-serving interest," he said.

Turmoil over split ends

Lutheran synod starts in harmony

by JOHN LAMPINEN

The founding convention of the English Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church took place in a mood of quiet harmony during the weekend.

As Harold DeVries, delegate from Faith Lutheran Church, Mundelein, put it, most of the turmoil that resulted in the split from the Missouri Synod is over.

"It's getting together and saying, 'Hey, we're here,'" he said of the convention at the Arlington Park Hilton, Arlington Heights.

"The issues are over," said the Rev. Carl F. Thrun of Trinity Lutheran Church in Rolling Meadows. "We're moving on in terms of mission and ministry."

TRINITY WAS one of 76 congregations from across the country meeting under a theme of "A New Song" after seven years of conflict over interpretations of the Bible within the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

There were references to the Missouri Synod that the Lutherans were leaving behind, but for the most part, they were references designed to serve as reminders for the delegations' talk of new freedom and increased involvement of the laity in church affairs.

"This day in this place we sing to the Lord a new song as the English Synod begins its new life in Christ," keynote speaker Dr. Martin E. Marty told the convention Friday. "Though members of a little flock within the little flock that is Christ's community on earth, we feel closer to the rest of the church today than ever before."

Saturday's featured speaker, Dr. Martin Kretzmann, tackled the question of the split directly.

"We are not leaving the Missouri Synod," he said. "It has ceased to be what it was meant to be."

"We are unworthy servants," he said. "We have only done what was necessary."

DISCUSSING HIS observations about the convention, The Rev. Thrun referred to a new sense of fellowship after the years of turmoil within the Missouri Synod.

"I feel for myself a great sense of relief that instead of all the in-fighting, we can really get on with the job that Christ meant us to do," he said.

The years of fighting among themselves instead of concentrating on spreading God's word, was a "great disgrace" among Christians, he said.

Echoing a view that dominated the convention, the Rev. Thrun said he sees the English Synod as being "more inclusive" in its dealings with other Christian organizations than was the Missouri Synod.

But he said he sees the newly formed synod as "transitional." DeVries said a continual issue within the church will be whether it should join forces with another Lutheran organization.

THE REV. THRUN said he didn't know if it would go that far.

"But at least, we want to be in fellowship with them," he said. "I hope it (the English Synod) doesn't become another super church."

The closest the convention came to fighting over issues was during unsuccessful attempts to amend the constitution adopted earlier by the synod's board of directors.

The most volatile debate occurred over a requirement in the constitution that the president, vice presidents and secretary be ministers.

The Rev. Thomas Strieter of Glen Ellyn took exception, saying the requirement "continues what I consider the heresy" of the Missouri Synod.

"One of the beautiful things that is going on here is that two-thirds of the people here are laypersons," he said. "Let's not exclude their involvement."

THE REV. ARLAN Brandt of Aurora said he isn't against striking the phrase but prefers to get the individual congregations involved in considering a possible amendment.

The second point of contention concerned the preamble, which outlined the English Synod's battles within the Missouri Synod.

"This preamble has the danger of setting up exclusivity," he said, adding that it might "set up barriers" to others who might want to affiliate with the synod.

He called for the preamble to be eliminated and replaced with a more positive statement of the synod's beliefs and goals.

For the amendments to have been enacted, the delegates would have had to have voted to direct the board to meet during the convention to make the amendments. After the first convention, power to make amendments passes from the board to subsequent annual conventions.

Both amendment proposals were defeated by voice votes after opponents stressed that congregations will be given a chance to discuss them during the coming year.

Seminary chief gets ovation

by JOHN LAMPINEN

Quiet conversation penetrated the air as the Rev. John Tietjen stepped to the microphone.

There was no pause on Tietjen's part.

He began immediately into his short address, and soon the competing voices at the founding convention of the English Synod stilled.

"What a really moving personal experience this is for me," he said, jutting his right hand out in frequent, rapid gestures.

He is a thin graying man. He also had been the catalyst for the new branch of Lutheranism that met in Arlington Heights during the weekend.

THE CONFLICT between factions of the Missouri Synod had been brewing long before his suspension two years ago as president of Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., for questioning the literal interpretation of the Bible.

But the Rev. Tietjen's suspension brought the conflict to a head, with dissident students and faculty members establishing a seminary-in-exile, called Seminec.

When four Missouri Synod district presidents were ousted earlier this year for ordaining Seminec graduates, formation of the English Synod by dissidents was all but taken for granted.

But as he spoke Saturday, the Rev. Tietjen issued no regrets over the split. He talked instead optimistically about the future.

"We think that there are exciting possibilities ahead for us all," he said.

HE TALKED of a "partnership" between Seminec and the newly formed synod, a partnership that he hopes will be functional as well as structural.

A few camera bulbs flashed, and the Rev. Tietjen continued, pointing out that the English Synod and other Lutheran church organizations alone will not absorb all of Seminec's graduates.

Some have told him, he said, gesturing with both hands now, that to meet the situation, Seminec should curb the number of students if graduates.

"We think that's the institutional way of solving what some may view as a problem," the Rev. Tietjen said.

HE SAID it is not Seminec's answer. Concepts of the ministry are being reevaluated, and ministers are doing other work, he said.

The pitch in his voice increased.

"It's wild to see what Seminec graduates are doing," he said, and referring to the Missouri Synod split, he added, "It never would have been so apart from this crisis."

His address completed, the Rev. Tietjen moved quickly to his seat on the convention floor.

There was a smattering of applause. Then one person stood as he cheered. Then another and another.

As the Rev. Tietjen got to his seat, all of the convention delegates were on their feet.

Carter pardon won't lure evaders back

by PAUL GORES

For about 25 draft evaders from the Northwest suburbs who now live in Canada, Jimmy Carter's presidency will mean a chance to come home.

But most of them won't come home, said Jerry Olsen, staff coordinator of the Midwest Committee for Military Counseling. Their departure from the United States, spurred by the Vietnam war, probably will be permanent.

"Many have made commitments to a new society, families and obviously a new job," Olsen said. Olsen, whose group is in personal contact with many of the draft evaders, said "a full half" of the 4,000 now in exile already have changed their citizenship. He said "80 per cent won't come back."

Olsen's Chicago-based office has not received many calls from draft evaders wanting to know about Jimmy Carter's promise of blanket pardons.

CARTER'S PARDON would apply only to Selective Service violators who objected to the war, not to deserters or those convicted of military crimes. Those would be handled on a case-by-case basis.

Olsen said there are about 82 draft resisters from the Chicago area.

"They may get off without any problem if there's a real pardon," Olsen said. He anticipates the pardon in February or March.

The names of draft resisters are kept confidential by Olsen's office. U.S. attorneys and the FBI protect identities under the Privacy Act.

But Olsen said most of the draft re-

sisters who have returned are "well received."

"Most people now agree that the war in Vietnam was a very bad mistake," Olsen said. "At the very least, people will tolerate them (resisters)."

"MOST OF THE draft evaders were from the middle class — the suburbs," Olsen said. "The lower class people didn't have the options available to the middle class."

"Many of the poor didn't understand the war and just went along with what the government told them,"

Olsen said.

U.S. attorneys are still prosecuting cases and the FBI is still looking for resisters, Olsen said, contrary to a TV network report earlier this week. The report said investigators and prosecutors are waiting to see what Carter will do.

"That's because they (the networks) usually check with the large cities," Olsen said. "By and large the big cities are not particularly interested in draft cases. They usually just go out to his parent's house once a year and say 'Have you seen him around?'"

BUT SMALLER communities are still after draft evaders, Olsen said. "If I tried to defend a guy in Gary, Ind., he'd have much less of a chance of having his case dismissed than in Chicago," Olsen said.

Olsen's counseling service for draft evaders, has helped many men to have their draft evasion cases dismissed.

Seniors point out transit problems

by LYNN ASINOF

The over-60 group wants wheels. They want to be able to get around town, to Chicago and to the airport. And they don't want to spend a lot of money.

The seniors already have subsidized taxi service in three Northwest suburbs, as well as special bus or minibus service in four townships.

But there are problems, as the seniors pointed out at an all-day seminar on transportation sponsored by Harper College.

TAKE THE CASE of Harold and Mildred Gulbransen, who moved to a senior citizens project in Elk Grove Village a year ago. While their township provides some minibus service to town, they say they can't make connections to get to Chicago.

"We're satisfied with everything except getting downtown," Mrs. Gulbransen said. "We feel like we're fenced in. All our friends live in Chicago."

Most transportation for seniors is provided by the townships and villages, which focus on getting the seniors to shopping centers and local downtown areas.

Only a few provide connections with the Chicago and North Western Ry. or the North Suburban Mass Transit District buses in Des Plaines.

"I guess the idea of the Regional Transportation Authority was to take care of these problems. But I think realistically we are not going to see these things in your lifetime or my (Continued on Page 10)

FOUR TOWNSHIPS in the Northwest suburbs now provide minibus service to senior citizens, enabling them to visit shopping centers and local downtown areas. Three towns subsidize senior citizens' taxi rides, but seniors still have trouble getting into Chicago and to the airport.

Commuter bus service set Dec. 6 on south side

Commuter bus service similar to that being operated on Buffalo Grove's west side will be available to residents on the southeast side of the village beginning Dec. 6.

Buses on the expanded Wheeling bus service will travel west on Dundee Road to Buffalo Grove Road, turn left to Hinz Road and east to Elmhurst Road. Buses then will go to the Randhurst shopping center in Mount Prospect and the train stations in Mount Prospect and Des Plaines.

The route will connect with three Chicago and North Western Ry. commuter trains in Mount Prospect during the rush hours and operate at two-hour intervals mid-day. It will return on its reversed route on most runs. It is scheduled to operate five days a week.

Fares will be 30 cents each way, with a 30-cent transfer available for use on any bus or rapid transit system under Regional Transportation Authority jurisdiction.

The service will connect with Chicago and North Western train service to Chicago's Loop and with North Suburban Mass Transit District routes to the Golf Mill Shopping Center in Niles and to other areas.

The service, operated by NORTRAN, is patterned after the successful route between Buffalo Grove and the Arlington Heights train station which began last summer.

RTA officials estimate a subsidy of $31,860 will be needed to operate the new service for the 30 weeks left in this fiscal year.

Hearing on development proposal tonight

A public hearing on the proposed development of 150 single-family homes near Busch Road and Ill. Rte. 83 will be heard tonight by the Buffalo Grove Village Board.

Albert Frank, of Albert Frank & Associates Ltd., Northbrook, and independent developer Salvatore Balsamo are seeking approval to change plans from those approved for the site in 1974.

Previous plans called for construction of 242 townhouses and were approved as part of a package allowing developer Harold Friedman special building privileges in return for a lease-purchase agreement on the Buffalo Grove Golf Course. Friedman since has sold 32 acres to Frank and Balsamo.

The plan commission is recommending the board turn down the single-family plans because of high density and poor conformity with zoning standards. It voted 3 to 2 against the plans last month.

Frank has said he will build the approved townhouses if the single-family plans are denied. Village staff and plan commissioners have criticized the townhouse plans for inadequate open space, narrow roads, poor traffic patterns and poor sidewalk construction.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. at village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd.

Today the massive advertising campaign for Christ enters its second stage. A message will be added to the

billboards saying, "You can find it to, and the telephone number is 843-0600."

THOSE WHO call the number will be connected with a telephone center staffed by 100 volunteers who have been training since July. The volunteers will direct them to Christ.

"Each person who accepts Christ as their savior will be directed to a Bible study at a church, not necessarily to join that church, but to find out what the Bible tells them in living their lives," said Lorry Eberhart, a worker with the Here's Life Chicago office in Rolling Meadows.

The same campaign is now underway in 121 cities across the country, and this isn't the first time Christians have used billboards, newspapers, TV and radio to get this message across.

Mrs. Eberhart said the first campaign began in Atlanta two years ago under the name "Agape Atlanta." Campus Crusade for Christ picked up the idea and it was presented in 21 cities last spring.

THE CAMPAIGN is being supported by 350 to 400 churches in the Chicago area and is being funded by contributions. Organization began last summer.

The advertising will continue for two more weeks and will include a TV special from 8 to 9 p.m. Tuesday on Channel 44. The show will feature Dean Jones, Charles Colson and Carol Lawrence.

When the campaign is over, there will be a big praise and prayer rally. No date has been set.

"THE BASIC IDEA is to contact every home in the metropolitan area to give them an opportunity to know how they can have a personal relationship with Jesus Christ," Mrs. Eberhart said. "The ultimate goal is to change lives."

To assure the success of the campaign, people throughout the area have been offering continual prayers since August as part of an organized prayer chain. "There is continual prayer five days a week from 6 in the morning until midnight," Mrs. Eberhart said.

The campaign will run into the beginning of the holiday season.

WONDERING WHAT "it" is? This billboard on Northwest Highway just past the Arlington Heights village limits asks the question, and Here's Life, a religious crusade for Christ, is hoping to provide the answers.

Membership for blacks OK'd at Carter's church

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI)—The congregation of the Plains Baptist Church averted a personal and political crisis for Jimmy Carter Sunday by opening its membership to all persons — including blacks — "who want to worship Jesus Christ."

The vote, taken behind closed doors, cleared the way for a new attempt by the Rev. Clennon King, a black minister from Albany, Ga., to seek membership in the all-white church where Carter and his family worship. King said he would make his try next Sunday.

"I was proud of my church, God's church," Carter told reporters after the two hour, 45 minute meeting. "I'm completely satisfied with this church action, and I'm very proud of my church. I believe our church will now be unified."

ASKED IF he had influenced the decision, Carter said: "I was just one of the church members and they all know that."

One congregation member told a reporter there was no bitterness at the meeting.

The congregation voted 120 to 66 to abolish a 1965 rule barring "negroes and civil rights agitators" from membership. The assembly also overruled, by a 107-84 vote, a recommendation by the deacons that pastor Bruce Edwards be dismissed for opposing the rule.

Future applicants for church membership will be considered by a "watch care committee" under a new rule, adopted in a third vote, which opens the church to "all persons who want to worship Jesus Christ."

Carter, who supported all three votes, said the committee's actions will be limited to questioning applicants to determine "if their intent is sincere. There is an understanding it will not be based on racial considerations."

CARTER'S FAMILY voted against the antiblack rule in 1965.

Services were canceled Oct. 31 — two days before election day — when King first tried to enter the church. Deacons then voted to enforce the 1965 rule despite its embarrassing consequences for the congregation's most noted member.

After Sunday's vote was announced by Carter's cousin, Hugh Carter, King told reporters: "I'm pleased and satisfied. I'll be back next week with bells on."

He said he would continue to press his application for membership and, if accepted, would attend services regularly and seek to bring other blacks into the church.

King asked Hugh Carter whether the vote meant he would be admitted as a member.

"I can't tell you," Carter responded. "That will depend on two things — what the watch care committee recommends, and how the congregation votes."

ASKED IF THE vote, to open the doors of the church vindicated him, King said: "It vindicates the church."

Harmony prevails at founding of Lutheran synod

by JOHN LAMPINEN

The founding convention of the English Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church took place in a mood of quiet harmony during the weekend.

As Harold DeVries, delegate from Faith Lutheran Church, Mundelein, put it, most of the turmoil that resulted in the split from the Missouri Synod is over.

"It's getting together and saying, 'Hey, we're here,'" he said of the convention at the Arlington Park Hilton, Arlington Heights.

"The issues are over," said the Rev. Carl F. Thrun of Trinity Lutheran Church in Rolling Meadows. "We're moving on in terms of mission and ministry."

TRINITY WAS one of 76 congregations from across the country meeting under a theme of "A New Song" after seven years of conflict over interpretations of the Bible within the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

There were references to the Missouri Synod that the Lutherans were leaving behind, but for the most part, they were references designed to serve as reminders for the delegations' talk of new freedom and increased involvement of the laity in church affairs.

"This day in this place we sing to the Lord a new song as the English Synod begins its new life in Christ," keynote speaker Dr. Martin E. Marly told the convention Friday. "Though members of a little flock within the little flock that is Christ's community on earth, we feel closer to the rest of the church today than ever before."

Saturday's featured speaker, Dr. Martin Kretzmann, tackled the question of the split directly.

"We are not leaving the Missouri Synod," he said. "It has ceased to be what it was meant to be."

"We are unworthy servants," he said. "We have only done what was necessary."

DISCUSSING HIS observations about the convention, The Rev. Thrun referred to a new sense of fellowship after the years of turmoil within the Missouri Synod.

"I feel for myself a great sense of relief that instead of all the fighting, we can really get on with the job that Christ meant us to do," he said.

The years of fighting among themselves instead of concentrating on spreading God's word, was a "great disgrace" among Christians, he said.

Echoing a view that dominated the convention, the Rev. Thrun said he sees the English Synod as being "more inclusive" in its dealings with other Christian organizations than was the Missouri Synod.

But he said he sees the newly formed synod as "transitional." DeVries said a continual issue within the church will be whether it should join forces with another Lutheran organization.

THE REV. THRUN said he didn't know if it would go that far.

"But at least, we want to be in fellowship with them," he said. "I hope it (the English Synod) doesn't become another super church."

The closest the convention came to fighting over issues was during unsuccessful attempts to amend the constitution adopted earlier by the synod's board of directors.

The most volatile debate occurred over a requirement in the constitution that the president, vice presidents and secretary be ministers.

The Rev. Thomas Strieter of Glen Ellyn took exception, saying the requirement "continues what I consider the heresy" of the Missouri Synod.

"One of the beautiful things that is going on here is that two-thirds of the people here are laypersons," he said. "Let's not exclude their involvement."

THE REV. ARLAN Brandt of Aurora said he isn't against striking the phrase, but prefers to get the individual congregations involved in considering a possible amendment.

The second point of contention concerned the preamble, which outlined the English Synod's battles within the Missouri Synod.

"This preamble has the danger of setting up exclusivity," he said, adding that it might "set up barriers" to others who might want to affiliate with the synod.

He called for the preamble to be eliminated and replaced with a more positive statement of the synod's beliefs and goals.

For the amendments to have been

'Exiled' seminary chief gets ovation

by JOHN LAMPINEN

Quiet conversation penetrated the air as the Rev. John Tietjen stepped to the microphone.

There was no pause on Tietjen's part.

He began immediately into his short address, and soon the competing voices at the founding convention of the English Synod stilled.

"What a really moving personal experience this is for me," he said, fidgeting his right hand out in frequent, rapid gestures.

He is a thin graying man. He also had been the catalyst for the new branch of Lutheranism that met in Arlington Heights during the weekend.

THE CONFLICT between factions of the Missouri Synod had been brewing long before his suspension two years ago as president of Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., for questioning the liberal interpretation of the Bible.

But the Rev. Tietjen's suspension brought the conflict to a head, with dissident students and faculty members establishing a seminary-in-exile, called Seminex.

When four Missouri Synod district presidents were ousted earlier this year for ordaining Seminex graduates, formation of the English Synod by dissidents was all but taken for granted.

But as he spoke Saturday, the Rev. Tietjen issued no regrets over the split. He talked instead optimistically about the future.

"We think that there are exciting possibilities ahead for us all," he said.

HE TALKED of a "partnership" between Seminex and the newly formed synod, a partnership that he hopes will be functional as well as structural.

A few camera bulbs flashed, and the Rev. Tietjen continued, pointing out that the English Synod and other Lutheran church organizations alone will not absorb all of Seminex's graduates.

Some have told him, he said, gesturing with both hands now, that to meet the situation, Seminex should curb the number of students it graduates.

"We think that's the institutional way of solving what some may view as a problem," the Rev. Tietjen said.

HE SAID it is not Seminex's answer. Concepts of the ministry are being reevaluated, and ministers are doing other work, he said.

The pitch in his voice increased.

"It's wild to see what Seminex graduates are doing," he said, referring to the Missouri Synod split, he added. "It never would have been so apart from this crisis."

His address completed, the Rev. Tietjen moved quickly to his seat on the convention floor.

There was a smattering of applause. Then one person stood as he cheered. Then another and another.

As the Rev. Tietjen got to his seat, all of the convention delegates were on their feet.

enacted, the delegates would have had to have voted to direct the board to meet during the convention to make the amendments. After the first convention, power to make amendments passes from the board to subsequent annual conventions.

Both amendment proposals were defeated by voice votes after opponents stressed that congregations will be given a chance to discuss them during the coming year.

Indiana judge believes in spanking

Rod isn't spared on 'spoiled' kids

by JOHN LAMPINEN

There were six youngsters in the courtroom when the woman approached the bench.

She wanted to speak on behalf of her son, who was charged with vandalism. But when she started to speak, the boy interrupted.

Judge William J. Obermiller looked down from the bench of his Whiting, Ind., court.

"WHEN WAS THE last time your boy has been spanked?" he asked the woman.

She glanced toward her boy and explained that she is both mother and father to him.

"He's bigger than me," she said.

Obermiller asked if the court could spank him. The woman replied that that would be fine with her.

IT'S BEEN A long time since that incident in 1962, but Obermiller, who will speak in Hoffman Estates Wednesday, still is nationally known as "the spanking judge."

"That was a landmark. I had several of them at that time," Obermiller recalls. "My theory is to make the kid remember what he did, and one way to make them remember is to embarrass them."

He was invited to speak in Hoffman Estates after Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter proposed that one way to curb vandalism would be to make offenders work off their crimes.

It has been an Obermiller philosophy for a number of years.

He was one of the first judges to order vandals to work. In Whiting, some have cleaned up the beaches. Many have been required to write 1,000 times that they were wrong.

Lifting an idea from Mark Twain, he has even had youngsters wash the local library's fence.

"I SAID, 'HECK, I don't want your money,' he explains. "And jail, that's not the answer. They've got to remember the error of their ways."

He concedes that some of the punishment he hands out was never taught at the University of Notre Dame school of law.

But it's a common sense that has served the 53-year-old jurist well through five terms as judge of the city court in Whiting.

It also has served him as the former deputy prosecuting attorney for Lake County, Ind., and as a lawyer before the Illinois and Indiana courts, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, the U.S. Tax Court of Appeals and the U.S. Federal Court.

"Somehow, you get the gut feeling of what a kid's going to understand," Obermiller says. "Once the law has been met, then you close the law book and you open God's book."

HE ALSO AGREES with a proposal getting wide consideration throughout the Northwest suburbs these days: holding parents responsible for the vandalism of their children.

Parents must be involved, Obermiller says, and one way to get them involved is through the pocketbook.

"But," he adds, "it's tough that you have to legislate parental love and involvement."

He does have other suggestions to curb vandalism.

For example, he believes that publicity helps provide the embarrassment, and he advocates it for repeat offenders.

"I don't think anonymity is the answer," Obermiller says.

He also thinks neighborhood courts that can act quickly are important.

"Most kids are going to step over the line once or twice," he points out. "We've got to come down hard when they do."

MEANWHILE, Obermiller thinks his philosophy has shown results in the Whiting area. He does get flack from some persons who are concerned that he is stepping on rights.

But, he says, he also is getting feedback from a number of those who have stood in his courtroom and received his unique sentences.

One person called recently to thank him, he remembers. He'll never forget having to clean the beaches and it put him on the straight and narrow, he told the judge.

And Obermiller will never forget his sentence in 1962 that resulted in a

Carter pardon won't lure evaders back

by PAUL GORES

For about 25 draft evaders from the Northwest suburbs who now live in Canada, Jimmy Carter's presidency will mean a chance to come home.

But most of them won't come home, said Jerry Olsen, staff coordinator of the Midwest Committee for Military Counseling. Their departure from the United States, spurred by the Vietnam war, probably will be permanent.

"Many have made commitments to a new society, families and obviously a new job," Olsen said. Olsen, whose group is in personal contact with many of the draft evaders, said "a full half" of the 4,000 now in exile already have changed their citizenship. He said "80 per cent won't come back."

Olsen's Chicago-based office has not received many calls from draft evaders wanting to know about Jimmy Carter's promise of blanket pardons.

CARTER'S PARDON would apply only to Selective Service violators who objected to the war, not to deserters or those convicted of military crimes. Those would be handled on a case-by-case basis.

Olsen said there are about 82 draft resisters from the Chicago area.

"They may get off without any problem if there's a real pardon," Olsen said. He anticipates the pardon in February or March.

The names of draft resisters are kept confidential by Olsen's office. U.S. attorneys and the FBI protect identities under the Privacy Act.

But Olsen said most of the draft re-

sisters who have returned are "well received."

"Most people now agree that the war in Vietnam was a very bad mistake," Olsen said. "At the very least, people will tolerate them (resisters)."

"MOST OF THE draft evaders were from the middle class — the suburbs," Olsen said. "The lower class people didn't have the options available to the middle class."

"Many of the poor didn't understand the war and just went along with what the government told them,"

Olsen said.

U.S. attorneys are still prosecuting cases and the FBI is still looking for resisters, Olsen said, contrary to a TV network report earlier this week. The report said investigators and prosecutors are waiting to see what Carter will do.

"That's because they (the networks) usually check with the large cities," Olsen said. "By and large the big cities are not particularly interested in draft cases. They usually just go out to his parent's house once a year and say 'Have you seen him around?'"

BUT SMALLER communities are still after draft evaders, Olsen said.

"If I tried to defend a guy in Gary, Ind., he'd have much less of a chance of having his case dismissed than in Chicago," Olsen said.

Olsen's counseling service for draft evaders, has helped many men to have their draft evasion cases dismissed.

"I haven't lost an argument to get

Seniors point out transit problems

by LYNN ASINOF

The over-60 group wants wheels. They want to be able to get around town, to Chicago and to the airport. And they don't want to spend a lot of money.

The seniors already have subsidized taxi service in three Northwest suburbs, as well as special bus or minibus service in four townships.

But there are problems, as the seniors pointed out at an all-day seminar on transportation sponsored by Harper College.

TAKE THE CASE of Harold and Mildred Gulbransen, who moved to a senior citizens project in Elk Grove Village a year ago. While their township provides some minibus service to town, they say they can't make connections to get to Chicago.

"We're satisfied with everything except getting downtown," Mrs. Gulbransen said. "We feel like we're fenced in. All our friends live in Chicago."

Most transportation for seniors is provided by the townships and villages, which focus on getting the seniors to shopping centers and local downtown areas.

Only a few provide connections with the Chicago and North Western Ry. or the North Suburban Mass Transit District buses in Des Plaines.

"I guess the idea of the Regional Transportation Authority was to take care of these problems. But I think realistically we are not going to see these things in your lifetime or my

Helping people find 'it' Crusade for Christ opens

by LYNN ASINOF

The billboards and bumper stickers say "I found it," but they don't tell you what "it" is.

For the past 10 days, Chicagoans have been kept wondering about the cryptic advertising which has appeared in newspapers, on billboards and car signs.

Today they will find out. Today the massive advertising campaign for Christ enters its second stage. A message will be added to the billboards saying, "You can find it to, and the telephone number is 843-0600."

THOSE WHO call the number will be connected with a telephone center staffed by 100 volunteers who have been training since July. The volunteers will direct them to Christ.

Membership for blacks OK'd at Carter's church

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI)—The congregation of the Plains Baptist Church averted a personal and political crisis for Jimmy Carter Sunday by opening its membership to all persons — including blacks — "who want to worship Jesus Christ."

The vote, taken behind closed doors, cleared the way for a new attempt by the Rev. Clennon King, a black minister from Albany, Ga., to seek membership in the all-white church where Carter and his family worship. King said he would make his try next Sunday.

"I was proud of my church, God's church," Carter told reporters after the two hour, 45 minute meeting. "I'm completely satisfied with this church action, and I'm very proud of my church. I believe our church will now be unified."

ASKED IF he had influenced the decision, Carter said: "I was just one of the church members and they all know that."

One congregation member told a reporter there was no bitterness at the meeting.

The congregation voted 120 to 66 to abolish a 1965 rule barring "negroes" and civil rights agitators from membership. The assembly also overruled, by a 107-94 vote, a recommendation by the deacons that pastor Bruce Edwards be dismissed for opposing the rule.

Future applicants for church membership will be considered by a "watch care committee" under a new rule, adopted in a third vote, which opens the church to "all persons who want to worship Jesus Christ."

Carter, who supported all three votes, said the committee's actions will be limited to questioning applicants to determine "if their intent is sincere. There is an understanding it will not be based on racial considerations."

CARTER'S FAMILY voted against the antiblack rule in 1965.

Services were canceled Oct. 31 — two days before election day — when King first tried to enter the church. Deacons then voted to enforce the 1965 rule despite its embarrassing consequences for the congregation's most noted member.

After Sunday's vote was announced by Carter's cousin, Hugh Carter, King told reporters: "I'm pleased and satisfied. I'll be back next week with bells on."

He said he would continue to press his application for membership and, if accepted, would attend services regularly and seek to bring other blacks into the church.

King asked Hugh Carter whether the vote meant he would be admitted as a member.

"I can't tell you," Carter responded. "That will depend on two things — what the watch care committee recommends, and how the congregation votes."

ASKED IF THE vote to open the doors of the church vindicated him, King said: "It vindicates the church."

Harmony prevails at founding of Lutheran synod

fighting over issues was during unsuccessful attempts to amend the constitution adopted earlier by the synod's board of directors.

The most volatile debate occurred over a requirement in the constitution that the president, vice presidents and secretary be ministers.

The Rev. Thomas Strieter of Glen Ellyn took exception, saying the requirement "continues what I consider the heresy" of the Missouri Synod.

"One of the beautiful things that is going on here is that two-thirds of the people here are laypersons," he said.

"Let's not exclude their involvement."

THE REV. ARLAN Brandt of Aurora said he isn't against striking the phrase but prefers to get the individual congregations involved in considering a possible amendment.

The second point of contention concerned the preamble, which outlined the English Synod's battles within the Missouri Synod.

"This preamble has the danger of setting up exclusivity," he said, adding that it might "set up barriers" to others who might want to affiliate with the synod.

He called for the preamble to be eliminated and replaced with a more positive statement of the synod's beliefs and goals.

For the amendments to have been enacted, the delegates would have had to vote to direct the board to meet during the convention to make the amendments. After the first convention, power to make amendments passes from the board to subsequent annual conventions.

Both amendment proposals were defeated by voice votes after opponents stressed that congregations will be given a chance to discuss them during the coming year.

Part of township could support new village: study

by JOE FRANZ

Enough tax revenue could be raised in Maine Township to support a new municipality, a study shows.

Gerald Feldman, president of the Golf-Maine Park District, said a report prepared by the Illinois Dept. of Local Government Affairs shows a three-square-mile area of the township could be incorporated as a city or village without placing a strain on taxpayers.

Feldman is a member of a committee studying the feasibility of forming a municipality in the unincorporated area.

"The committee originally thought incorporation was impossible because of the lack of business and industry in the area," he said. "The committee, however, was surprised at the kind of money that is available and believe that not all of it would be required."

THE UNINCORPORATED area from which the revenue estimates were taken is bounded by Central Road, Dempster Street, Greenwood Avenue and the Tri-State Tollway.

The report estimates the predominantly residential area, which has an estimated population of 33,100, is valued at $275.6 million and would have an equalized assessed valuation of $109.7 million.

It also estimates that revenue from property taxes, sales taxes, motor fuel taxes, state income taxes, federal revenue sharing and all other taxes and fees would be about $2,350,979 a year.

The estimated $486,285 that could be derived from property taxes is based on a tax rate to homeowners of 43.5 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

The rate is based on the maximum amount that can be levied under state law, and could be adjusted downward to meet the budget should a municipality be formed.

THE MAXIMUM property tax rate that can be levied in the unincorporated area would be lower than the rate in three of four neighboring municipalities, according to the report. Those rates in 1975 were as follows: Des Plaines, $1.04 cents per $100 of assessed valuation; Park Ridge, $1.12 per $100 of assessed valuation; Niles, 36 cents per $100 of assessed valuation; and Glenview, 99.8 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Although a complete estimate on the cost of establishing and operating a new municipality is not available, the report said administrative costs would be about $128,600 a year.

The figures do not include the cost of operating a police department or providing other municipal services.

FELDMAN SAID the committee will meet in about a month to discuss the possible boundaries and budget of a new municipality in the unincorporated area of the township.

Residents are considering incorporating, he said, because they want more control over what happens in the community.

"Incorporation is our last resort," he said. "The existing communities have made it clear that we will not be incorporated by them and we want some way of improving the area."

'Exiled' seminary chief gets ovation

by JOHN LAMPINEN

Quiet conversation penetrated the air as the Rev. John Tietjen stepped to the microphone.

There was no pause on Tietjen's part.

He began immediately into his short address, and soon the competing voices at the founding convention of the English Synod stilled.

"What a really moving personal experience this is for me," he said, jutting his right hand out in frequent, rapid gestures.

He is a thin graying man. He also had been the catalyst for the new branch of Lutheranism that met in Arlington Heights during the weekend.

THE CONFLICT between factions of the Missouri Synod had been brewing long before his suspension two years ago as president of Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., for questioning the literal interpretation of the Bible.

But the Rev. Tietjen's suspension brought the conflict to a head, with dissident students and faculty members establishing a seminary-in-exile, called Seminex.

When four Missouri Synod district presidents were ousted earlier this year for ordaining Seminex graduates, formation of the English Synod by dissidents was all but taken for granted.

But as he spoke Saturday, the Rev. Tietjen issued no regrets over the split. He talked instead optimistically about the future.

"We think that there are exciting possibilities ahead for us all," he said.

HE TALKED of a "partnership" between Seminex and the newly formed synod, a partnership that he hopes will be functional as well as structural.

A few camera bulbs flashed, and the Rev. Tietjen continued, pointing out that the English Synod and other Lutheran church organizations alone will not absorb all of Seminex's graduates.

Some have told him, he said, gesturing with both hands now, that to meet the situation, Seminex should curb the number of students it graduates.

"We think that's the institutional way of solving what some may view as a problem," the Rev. Tietjen said.

HE SAID it is not Seminex's answer. Concepts of the ministry are being reevaluated, and ministers are doing other work, he said.

The pitch in his voice increased.

"It's wild to see what Seminex graduates are doing," he said, and referring to the Missouri Synod split, he added, "It never would have been so apart from this crisis."

His address completed, the Rev. Tietjen moved quickly to his seat on the convention floor.

There was a smattering of applause. Then one person stood as he cheered. Then another and another.

As the Rev. Tietjen got to his seat, all of the convention delegates were on their feet.

Judge doesn't spare rods to discipline 'spoiled' kids

by JOHN LAMPINEN

There were six youngsters in the courtroom when the woman approached the bench.

She wanted to speak on behalf of her son, who was charged with vandalism. But when she started to speak, the boy interrupted.

Judge William J. Obermiller looked down from the bench of his Whiting, Ind., court.

"WHEN WAS THE last time your boy has been spanked?" he asked the woman.

She glanced toward her boy and explained that she is both mother and father to him.

"He's bigger than me," she said. Obermiller asked if the court could spank him. The woman replied that that would be fine with her.

IT'S BEEN A long time since that incident in 1962, but Obermiller, who will speak in Hoffman Estates Wednesday, still is nationally known as "the spanking judge."

"That was a landmark. I had several of them at that time," Obermiller recalls. "My theory is to make the kid remember what he did, and one way to make them remember is to embarrass them."

He was invited to speak in Hoffman Estates after Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter proposed that one way to curb vandalism would be to make offenders work off their crimes.

It has been an Obermiller philosophy for a number of years.

He was one of the first judges to order vandals to work. In Whiting, some have cleaned up the beaches. Many have been required to write 1,000 times that they were wrong. Lifting an idea from Mark Twain, he has even had youngsters wash the local library's fence.

"I SAID, 'HECK, I don't want your money,' he explains. "And jail, that's not the answer. They've got to remember the error of their ways."

He concedes that some of the punishment he hands out was never taught at the University of Notre Dame school of law.

But it's a common sense that has served the 53-year-old jurist well through five terms as judge of the city court in Whiting.

It also has served him as the former deputy prosecuting attorney for Lake County, Ind., and as a lawyer before the Illinois and Indiana courts, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, the U.S. Tax Court of Appeals and the U.S. Federal Court.

"Somehow, you get the gut feeling of what a kid's going to understand," Obermiller says. "Once the law has been met, then you close the law book and you open God's book."

HE ALSO AGREES with a proposal getting wide consideration throughout the Northwest suburbs these days: holding parents responsible for the vandalism of their children.

Parents must be involved, Obermiller says, and one way to get them involved is through the pocketbook.

"But," he adds, "it's tough that you have to legislate parental love and involvement."

He does have other suggestions to curb vandalism.

For example, he believes that publicity helps provide the embarrassment, and he advocates it for repeat offenders.

"I don't think anonymity is the answer," Obermiller says.

He also thinks neighborhood courts that can act quickly are important.

MEANWHILE, Obermiller thinks his philosophy has shown results in the Whiting area. He does get flack from some persons who are concerned that he is stepping on rights.

But, he says, he also is getting feedback from a number of those who have stood in his courtroom and received his unique sentences.

One person called, recently to thank him, he remembers. He'll never forget having to clean the beaches and it put him on the straight and narrow, he told the judge.

And Obermiller will never forget his sentence in 1962 that resulted in a spanking for a boy too big to spank.

"That night," he recalls, "I think I was acting more as a daddy."

Carter pardon won't lure evaders back

by PAUL GORES

For about 25 draft evaders from the Northwest suburbs who now live in Canada, Jimmy Carter's presidency will mean a chance to come home.

But most of them won't come home, said Jerry Olsen, staff coordinator of the Midwest Committee for Military Counseling. Their departure from the United States, spurred by the Vietnam war, probably will be permanent.

"Many have made commitments to a new society, families and obviously a new job," Olsen said. Olsen, whose group is in personal contact with many of the draft evaders, said "a full half" of the 4,000 now in exile already have changed their citizenship. He said "80 per cent won't come back."

Olsen's Chicago-based office has not received many calls from draft evaders wanting to know about Jimmy Carter's promise of blanket pardons.

CARTER'S PARDON would apply only to Selective Service violators who objected to the war, not to deserters or those convicted of military crimes. Those would be handled on a case-by-case basis.

Olsen said there are about 82 draft resisters from the Chicago area.

"They may get off without any problem if there's a real pardon," Olsen said. He anticipates the pardon in February or March.

The names of draft resisters are kept confidential by Olsen's office. U.S. attorneys and the FBI protect identities under the Privacy Act.

But Olsen said most of the draft re-

sisters who have returned are "well received."

"Most people now agree that the war in Vietnam was a very bad mistake," Olsen said. "At the very least, people will tolerate them (resisters)."

"MOST OF THE draft evaders were from the middle class — the suburbs," Olsen said. "The lower class people didn't have the options available to the middle class."

"Many of the poor didn't understand the war and just went along with what the government told them,"

Olsen said.

U.S. attorneys are still prosecuting cases and the FBI is still looking for resisters, Olsen said, contrary to a TV network report earlier this week. The report said investigators and prosecutors are waiting to see what Carter will do.

"That's because they (the networks) usually check with the large cities," Olsen said. "By and large the big cities are not particularly interested in draft cases. They usually just go out to his parent's house once a year and say 'Have you seen' him around?'"

BUT SMALLER communities are still after draft evaders, Olsen said.

"If I tried to defend a guy in Gary, Ind., he'd have much less of a chance of having his case dismissed than in Chicago," Olsen said.

Olsen's counseling service for draft evaders, has helped many men to have their draft evasion cases dismissed.

Seniors point out transit problems

by LYNN ASINOF

The over-60 group wants wheels. They want to be able to get around town, to Chicago and to the airport. And they don't want to spend a lot of money.

The seniors already have subsidized taxi service in three Northwest suburbs, as well as special bus or minibus service in four townships.

But there are problems, as the seniors pointed out at an all-day seminar on transportation sponsored by Harper College.

TAKE THE CASE of Harold and Mildred Gulbransen, who moved to a senior citizens project in Elk Grove Village a year ago. While their township provides some minibus service to town, they say they can't make connections to get to Chicago.

"We're satisfied with everything except getting downtown," Mrs. Gulbransen said. "We feel like we're fenced in. All our friends live in Chicago."

Most transportation for seniors is provided by the townships and villages, which focus on getting the seniors to shopping centers and local downtown areas.

Only a few provide connections with the Chicago and North Western Ry. or the North Suburban Mass Transit District buses in Des Plaines.

"I guess the idea of the Regional Transportation Authority was to take care of these problems. But I think realistically we are not going to see these things in your lifetime or my (Continued on Page 10)

Helping people find 'it'

Crusade for Christ opens

by LYNN ASINOF

The billboards and bumper stickers say "I found it," but they don't tell you what "it" is.

For the past 10 days, Chicagoans have been kept wondering about the cryptic advertising which has appeared in newspapers, on billboards and car signs.

Today they will find out.

Today the massive advertising campaign for Christ enters its second stage. A message will be added to the billboards saying, "You can find it to, and the telephone number is 843-0600."

THOSE WHO call the number will be connected with a telephone center staffed by 100 volunteers who have been training since July. The volunteers will direct them to Christ.

"Each person who accepts Christ as their saviour will be directed to a Bible study at a church, not necessarily to join that church, but to find out what the Bible tells them in living their lives," said Lorry Eberhart, a worker with the Here's Life Chicago office in Rolling Meadows.

The same campaign is now underway in 121 cities across the country, and this isn't the first time Christians have used billboards, newspapers, TV and radio to get this message across.

Mrs. Eberhart said the first campaign began in Atlanta two years ago under the name "Agape Atlanta." Campus Crusade for Christ picked up the idea and it was presented in 21 cities last spring.

THE CAMPAIGN is being supported by 350 to 400 churches in the Chicago area and is being funded by contributions. Organization began last summer.

The advertising will continue for two more weeks and will include a TV special from 8 to 9 p.m. Tuesday on Channel 44. The show will feature Dean Jones, Charles Colson and Carol Lawrence.

When the campaign is over, there will be a big praise and prayer rally. No date has been set.

"THE BASIC IDEA is to contact every home in the metropolitan area to give them an opportunity to know how they can have a personal relationship with Jesus Christ," Mrs. Eberhart said. "The ultimate goal is to change lives."

To assure the success of the campaign, people throughout the area have been offering continual prayers since August as part of an organized prayer chain. "There is continual prayer five days a week from 8 in the morning until midnight," Mrs. Eberhart said.

The campaign will run into the beginning of the holiday season.

WONDERING WHAT "it" is? This billboard on Northwest Highway just past the Arlington Heights village limits asks the question, and Here's Life, a religious crusade for Christ, is hoping to provide the answers.

Membership for blacks OK'd at Carter's church

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI)—The congregation of the Plains Baptist Church averted a personal and political crisis for Jimmy Carter Sunday by opening its membership to all persons — including blacks — "who want to worship Jesus Christ."

The vote, taken behind closed doors, cleared the way for a new attempt by the Rev. Clennon King, a black minister from Albany, Ga., to seek membership in the all-white church where Carter and his family worship. King said he would make his try next Sunday.

"I was proud of my church, God's church," Carter told reporters after the two hour, 45 minute meeting. "I'm completely satisfied with this church action, and I'm very proud of my church. I believe our church will now be unified."

ASKED IF he had influenced the decision, Carter said: "I was just one of the church members and they all know that."

One congregation member told a reporter there was no bitterness at the meeting. The congregation voted 120 to 66 to abolish a 1965 rule barring "negroes and civil rights agitators" from membership. The assembly also overruled, by a 107-84 vote, a recommendation by the deacons that pastor Bruce Edwards be dismissed for opposing the rule.

Future applicants for church membership will be considered by a "watch care committee" under a new rule, adopted in a third vote, which opens the church to "all persons who want to worship Jesus Christ."

Carter, who supported all three votes, said the committee's actions will be limited to questioning applicants to determine "if their intent is sincere. There is an understanding it will not be based on racial considerations."

CARTER'S FAMILY voted against the antiblack rule in 1965.

Services were canceled Oct. 31 — two days before election day — when King first tried to enter the church. Deacons then voted to enforce the 1965 rule despite its embarrassing consequences for the congregation's most noted member.

After Sunday's vote was announced by Carter's cousin, Hugh Carter, King told reporters: "I'm pleased and satisfied. I'll be back next week with bells on."

He said he would continue to press his application for membership and, if accepted, would attend services regularly and seek to bring other blacks into the church.

King asked Hugh Carter whether the vote meant he would be admitted as a member. "I can't tell you," Carter responded. "That will depend on two things — what the watch care committee recommends, and how the congregation votes."

ASKED IF THE vote to open the doors of the church vindicated him, King said: "It vindicates the church."

Harmony prevails at founding of Lutheran synod

by JOHN LAMPINEN

The founding convention of the English Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church took place in a mood of quiet harmony during the weekend.

As Harold DeVries, delegate from Faith Lutheran Church, Mundelein, put it, most of the turmoil that resulted in the split from the Missouri Synod is over.

"It's getting together and saying, 'Hey, we're here,'" he said of the convention at the Arlington Park Hilton, Arlington Heights.

"The issues are over," said the Rev. Carl F. Thrun of Trinity Lutheran Church in Rolling Meadows. "We're moving on in terms of mission and ministry."

TRINITY WAS one of 76 congregations from across the country meeting under a theme of "A New Song" after seven years of conflict over interpretations of the Bible within the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

There were references to the Missouri Synod that the Lutherans were leaving behind, but for the most part, they were references designed to serve as reminders for the delegates' talk of new freedom and increased involvement of the laity in church affairs.

"This day in this place we sing to the Lord a new song as the English Synod begins its new life in Christ," keynote speaker Dr. Martin E. Marty told the convention Friday. "Though members of a little flock within the little flock that is Christ's community on earth, we feel closer to the rest of the church today than ever before."

Saturday's featured speaker, Dr. Martin Kretzmann, tackled the question of the split directly.

"We are not leaving the Missouri Synod," he said. "It has ceased to be what it was meant to be.

DISCUSSING HIS observations about the convention, The Rev. Thrun referred to a new sense of fellowship after the years of turmoil within the Missouri Synod.

"I feel for myself a great sense of relief that instead of all the in-fighting, we can really get on with the job that Christ meant us to do," he said.

The years of fighting among themselves instead of concentrating on spreading God's word, was a "great disgrace" among Christians, he said.

Echoing a view that dominated the convention, the Rev. Thrun said he sees the English Synod as being "more inclusive" in its dealings with other Christian organizations than was the Missouri Synod.

But he said he sees the newly formed synod as "transitional." DeVries said a continual issue within the church will be whether it should join forces with another Lutheran organization.

THE REV. THRUN said he didn't know if it would go that far.

"But at least, we want to be in fellowship with them," he said. "I hope it (the English Synod) doesn't become another super church."

The closest the convention came to fighting over issues was during unsuccessful attempts to amend the constitution adopted earlier by the synod's board of directors.

The most volatile debate occurred over a requirement in the constitution that the president, vice presidents and secretary be ministers.

The Rev. Thomas Strieter of Glen Ellyn took exception, saying the requirement "continues what I consider the heresy" of the Missouri Synod.

"One of the beautiful things that is going on here is that two-thirds of the people here are laypersons," he said. "Let's not exclude their involvement."

THE REV. ARLAN Brandt of Aurora said he isn't against striking the phrase but prefers to get the individual congregations involved in considering a possible amendment.

The second point of contention concerned the preamble, which outlined the English Synod's battles within the Missouri Synod.

"This preamble has the danger of setting up exclusivity," he said, adding that it might "set up barriers" to others who might want to affiliate with the synod.

He called for the preamble to be eliminated and replaced with a more positive statement of the synod's beliefs and goals.

For the amendments to have been enacted, the delegates would have had to have voted to direct the board to meet during the convention to make the amendments. After the first convention, power to make amendments passes from the board to subsequent annual conventions.

Both amendment proposals were defeated by voice votes after opponents stressed that congregations will be given a chance to discuss them during the coming year.

'Exiled' seminary chief gets ovation

by JOHN LAMPINEN

Quiet conversation penetrated the air as the Rev. John Tietjen stepped to the microphone.

There was no pause on Tietjen's part.

He began immediately into his short address, and soon the competing voices at the founding convention of the English Synod stilled.

"What a really moving personal experience this is for me," he said, jutting his right hand out in frequent, rapid gestures.

He is a thin gray-haired man. He also had been the catalyst for the new branch of Lutheranism that met in Arlington Heights during the weekend.

THE CONFLICT between factions of the Missouri Synod had been brewing long before his suspension two years ago as president of Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., for questioning the literal interpretation of the Bible.

But the Rev. Tietjen's suspension brought the conflict to a head, with dissident students and faculty members establishing a seminary-in-exile, called Seminex.

When four Missouri Synod district presidents were ousted earlier this year for ordaining Seminex graduates, formation of the English Synod by dissidents was all but taken for granted.

But as he spoke Saturday, the Rev. Tietjen issued no regrets over the split. He talked instead optimistically about the future.

"We think that there are exciting possibilities ahead for us all," he said.

HE TALKED of a "partnership" between Seminex and the newly formed synod, a partnership that he hopes will be functional as well as structural.

A few camera bulbs flashed, and the Rev. Tietjen continued, pointing out that the English Synod and other Lutheran church organizations alone will not absorb all of Seminex's graduates.

Some have told him, he said, gesturing with both hands now, that to meet the situation, Seminex should curb the number of students it graduates.

"We think that's the institutional way of solving what some may view as a problem," the Rev. Tietjen said.

HE SAID it is not Seminex's answer. Concepts of the ministry are being reevaluated, and ministers are doing other work, he said.

The pitch in his voice increased.

"It's wild to see what Seminex graduates are doing," he said, and referring to the Missouri Synod split, he added, "It never would have been so apart from this crisis."

His address completed, the Rev. Tietjen moved quickly to his seat on the convention floor.

There was a smattering of applause. Then one person stood as he cheered. Then another and another.

As the Rev. Tietjen got to his seat, all of the convention delegates were on their feet.

of what a kid's going to understand," Obermiller says. "Once the law has been met, then you close the law book and you open God's book."

HE ALSO AGREES with a proposal getting wide consideration throughout the Northwest suburbs these days: holding parents responsible for the vandalism of their children.

Parents must be involved, Obermiller says, and one way to get them involved is through the pocketbook.

"But," he adds, "it's tough that you have to legislate parental love and involvement."

He does have other suggestions to curb vandalism.

For example, he believes that publicity helps provide the embarrassment, and he advocates it for repeat offenders.

"I don't think anonymity is the answer," Obermiller says.

He also thinks neighborhood courts that can act quickly are important.

MEANWHILE, Obermiller thinks his philosophy has shown results in the Whiting area. He does get flack from some persons who are concerned that he is stepping on rights.

But, he says, he also is getting feedback from a number of those who have stood in his courtroom and received his unique sentences.

One person called recently to thank him, he remembers. He'll never forget having to clean the beaches and it put him on the straight and narrow, he told the judge.

And Obermiller will never forget his sentence in 1962 that resulted in a spanking for a boy too big to spank.

"That night," he recalls, "I think I was acting more as a daddy."

Obermiller to speak here Wednesday

"The Spanking Judge," William J. Obermiller, 53, of Whiting, Ind., Wednesday will speak at Hoffman Estates High School, 1100 W. Higgins Rd.

Obermiller has appeared on national and Chicago area television programs, written articles for Readers' Digest, Guide Post, Lions International and Hoosier magazines and has given a number of lectures.

His appearance here will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Carter pardon won't lure evaders back

by PAUL GORES

For about 25 draft evaders from the Northwest suburbs who now live in Canada, Jimmy Carter's presidency will mean a chance to come home.

But most of them won't come home, said Jerry Olsen, staff coordinator of the Midwest Committee for Military Counseling. Their departure from the United States, spurred by the Vietnam war, probably will be permanent.

"Many have made commitments to a new society, families and obviously a new job," Olsen said. Olsen, whose group is in personal contact with many of the draft evaders, said "a full half" of the 4,000 now in exile already have changed their citizenship. He said "80 per cent won't come back."

Olsen's Chicago-based office has not received many calls from draft evaders wanting to know about Jimmy Carter's promise of blanket pardons.

CARTER'S PARDON would apply only to Selective Service violators who objected to the war, not to deserters or those convicted of military crimes. Those would be handled on a case-by-case basis.

Olsen said there are about 82 draft resisters from the Chicago area.

"They may get off without any problem if there's a real pardon," Olsen said. He anticipates the pardon in February or March.

The names of draft resisters are kept confidential by Olsen's office. U.S. attorneys and the FBI protect identities under the Privacy Act.

But Olsen said most of the draft re-

sisters who have returned are "well received."

"Most people now agree that the war in Vietnam was a very bad mistake," Olsen said. "At the very least, people will tolerate them (resisters)."

"MOST OF THE draft evaders were from the middle class — the suburbs," Olsen said. "The lower class people didn't have the options available to the middle class."

"Many of the poor didn't understand the war and just went along with what the government told them,"

Olsen said.

U.S. attorneys are still prosecuting cases and the FBI is still looking for resisters, Olsen said, contrary to a TV network report earlier this week. The report said investigators and prosecutors are waiting to see what Carter will do.

"That's because they (the networks) usually check with the large cities," Olsen said. "By and large the big cities are not particularly interested in draft cases. They usually just go out to his parent's house once a year and say 'Have you seen him around?'"

BUT SMALLER communities are still after draft evaders, Olsen said.

"If I tried to defend a guy in Gary, Ind., he'd have much less of a chance of having his case dismissed than in Chicago," Olsen said.

Olsen's counseling service for draft evaders, has helped many men to have their draft evasion cases dismissed.

"I haven't lost an argument to get

Seniors point out transit problems

by LYNN ASINOF

The over-60 group wants wheels. They want to be able to get around town, to Chicago and to the airport. And they don't want to spend a lot of money.

The seniors already have subsidized taxi service in three Northwest suburbs, as well as special bus or minibus service in four townships.

But there are problems, as the seniors pointed out at an all-day seminar on transportation sponsored by Harper College.

TAKE THE CASE of Harold and Mildred Gulbransen, who moved to a senior citizens project in Elk Grove Village a year ago. While their township provides some minibus service to town, they say they can't make connections to get to Chicago.

"We're satisfied with everything except getting downtown," Mrs. Gulbransen said. "We feel like we're fenced in. All our friends live in Chicago."

Most transportation for seniors is provided by the townships and villages, which focus on getting the seniors to shopping centers and local downtown areas.

Only a few provide connections with the Chicago and North Western Ry. or the North Suburban Mass Transit District buses in Des Plaines.

"I guess the idea of the Regional Transportation Authority was to take care of these problems. But I think realistically we are not going to see these things in your lifetime or my

Helping people find 'it' Crusade for Christ opens

by LYNN ASINOF

The billboards and bumper stickers say "I found it," but they don't tell you what "it" is.

For the past 10 days, Chicagoans have been kept wondering about the cryptic advertising which has appeared in newspapers, on billboards and car signs.

Today they will find out.

Today the massive advertising campaign for Christ enters its second stage. A message will be added to the billboards saying, "You can find it, and the telephone number is 843-0600."

THOSE WHO call the number will be connected with a telephone center staffed by 100 volunteers who have been training since July. The volunteers will direct them to Christ.

"Each person who accepts Christ as their savior will be directed to a Bible study at a church, not necessarily to join that church, but to find out what the Bible tells them in living their lives," said Larry Eberhart, a worker with the Here's Life Chicago office in Rolling Meadows.

The same campaign is now underway in 121 cities across the country, and this isn't the first time Christians have used billboards, newspapers, TV and radio to get this message across.

Mrs. Eberhart said the first campaign began in Atlanta two years ago under the name "Agape Atlanta." Campus Crusade for Christ picked up the idea and it was presented in 21 cities last spring.

THE CAMPAIGN is being supported by 350 to 400 churches in the Chicago area and is being funded by contributions. Organization began last summer.

The advertising will continue for two more weeks and will include a TV special from 8 to 9 p.m. Tuesday on Channel 44. The show will feature Dean Jones, Charles Colson and Carol Lawrence.

When the campaign is over, there will be a big praise and prayer rally. No date has been set.

"THE BASIC IDEA is to contact every home in the metropolitan area to give them an opportunity to know how they can have a personal relationship with Jesus Christ," Mrs. Eberhart said. "The ultimate goal is to change lives."

To assure the success of the campaign, people throughout the area have been offering continual prayers since August as part of an organized prayer chain. "There is continual prayer five days a week from 6 in the morning until midnight," Mrs. Eberhart said.

The campaign will run into the beginning of the holiday season.

WONDERING WHAT "IT" IS? This billboard on Northwest Highway just past the Arlington Heights village limits asks the question, and Here's Life, a religious crusade for Christ, is hoping to provide the answers.

Membership for blacks OK'd at Carter's church

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI)—The congregation of the Plains Baptist Church averted a personal and political crisis for Jimmy Carter Sunday by opening its membership to all persons — including blacks — "who want to worship Jesus Christ."

The vote, taken behind closed doors, cleared the way for a new attempt by the Rev. Clennon King, a black minister from Albany, Ga., to seek membership in the all-white church where Carter and his family worship. King said he would make his try next Sunday.

"I was proud of my church, God's church," Carter told reporters after the two-hour, 45-minute meeting. "I'm completely satisfied with this church action, and I'm very proud of my church. I believe our church will now be unified."

ASKED IF he had influenced the decision, Carter said: "I was just one of the church members and they all know that."

One congregation member told a reporter there was no bitterness at the meeting.

The congregation voted 120 to 66 to abolish a 1965 rule barring "negroes and civil rights agitators" from membership. The assembly also overruled, by a 107-84 vote, a recommendation by the deacons that pastor Bruce Edwards be dismissed for opposing the rule.

Future applicants for church membership will be considered by a "watch care committee" under a new rule, adopted in a third vote, which opens the church to "all persons who want to worship Jesus Christ."

Carter, who supported all three votes, said the committee's actions will be limited to questioning applicants to determine "if their intent is sincere. There is an understanding it will not be based on racial considerations."

CARTER'S FAMILY voted against the antiblack rule in 1965.

Services were canceled Oct. 31 — two days before election day — when King first tried to enter the church. Deacons then voted to enforce the 1965 rule despite its embarrassing consequences for the congregation's most noted member.

After Sunday's vote was announced by Carter's cousin, Hugh Carter, King told reporters: "I'm pleased and satisfied. I'll be back next week with bells on."

He said he would continue to press his application for membership and, if accepted, would attend services regularly and seek to bring other blacks into the church.

King asked Hugh Carter whether the vote meant he would be admitted as a member.

"I can't tell you," Carter responded. "That will depend on two things — what the watch care committee recommends, and how the congregation votes."

ASKED IF THE vote to open the doors of the church vindicated him, King said: "It vindicates the church."

Harmony prevails at founding of Lutheran synod

fighting over issues was during unsuccessful attempts to amend the constitution adopted earlier by the synod's board of directors.

The most volatile debate occurred over a requirement in the constitution that the president, vice presidents and secretary be ministers.

The Rev. Thomas Strieter of Glen Ellyn took exception, saying the requirement "continues what I consider the heresy" of the Missouri Synod.

"One of the beautiful things that is going on here is that two-thirds of the people here are laypersons," he said.

Manager candidates' tests today

Psychological tests will be administered to the approximately 10 persons expected to be selected today by a three-member committee seeking a Rolling Meadows City manager.

Joseph Kiszka, committee chairman, said the tests will be administered

"Let's not exclude their involvement."

THE REV. ARLAN Brandt of Aurora said he isn't against striking the phrase but prefers to get the individual congregations involved in considering a possible amendment.

The second point of contention concerned the preamble, which outlined the English Synod's battles within the Missouri Synod.

"This preamble has the danger of setting up exclusivity," he said, adding that it might "set up barriers" to others who might want to affiliate with the synod.

He called for the preamble to be eliminated and replaced with a more positive statement of the synod's beliefs and goals.

For the amendments to have been enacted, the delegates would have had to have voted to direct the board to meet during the convention to make the amendments. After the first convention, power to make amendments passes from the board to subsequent annual conventions.

Both amendment proposals were defeated by voice votes after opponents stressed that congregations will be given a chance to discuss them during the coming year.

'Exiled' seminary chief gets ovation

by JOHN LAMPINEN

Quiet conversation penetrated the air as the Rev. John Tietjen stepped to the microphone.

There was no pause on Tietjen's part.

He began immediately into his short address, and soon the competing voices of the founding convention of the English Synod stilled.

"What a really moving personal experience this is for me," he said, jutting his right hand out in frequent, rapid gestures.

He is a thin graying man. He also had been the catalyst for the new branch of Lutheranism that met in Arlington Heights during the week-end.

THE CONFLICT between factions of the Missouri Synod had been brewing long before his suspension two years ago as president of Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., for questioning the literal interpretation of the Bible.

But the Rev. Tietjen's suspension brought the conflict to a head, with dissident students and faculty members establishing a seminary-in-exile, called Seminex.

When four Missouri Synod district presidents were ousted earlier this year for ordaining Seminex graduates, formation of the English Synod by dissidents was all but taken for granted.

But as he spoke Saturday, the Rev. Tietjen issued no regrets over the split. He talked instead optimistically about the future.

"We think that there are exciting possibilities ahead for us all," he said.

HE TALKED of a "partnership" between Seminex and the newly formed synod, a partnership that he hopes will be functional as well as structural.

A few camera bulbs flashed, and the Rev. Tietjen continued, pointing out that the English Synod and other Lutheran church organizations alone will not absorb all of Seminex's graduates.

Some have told him, he said, gesturing with both hands now, that to meet the situation, Seminex should curb the number of students it graduates.

"We think that's the institutional way of solving what some may view as a problem," the Rev. Tietjen said.

HE SAID it is not Seminex's answer. Concepts of the ministry are being reevaluated, and ministers are doing other work, he said.

The pitch in his voice increased.

"It's wild to see what Seminex graduates are doing," he said, and referring to the Missouri Synod split, he added, "It never would have been so apart from this crisis."

His address completed, the Rev. Tietjen moved quickly to his seat on the convention floor.

There was a smattering of applause. Then one person stood as he cheered. Then another and another.

As the Rev. Tietjen got to his seat, all of the convention delegates were on their feet.

New municipality possible: study

by JOE FRANZ

Enough tax revenue could be raised in Maine Township to support a new municipality, a study shows.

Gerald Feldman, president of the Golf-Maine Park District, said a report prepared by the Illinois Dept. of Local Government Affairs shows a three-square-mile area of the township could be incorporated as a city or village without placing a strain on taxpayers.

Feldman is a member of a committee studying the feasibility of forming a municipality in the unincorporated area.

"The committee originally thought incorporation was impossible because of the lack of business and industry in the area," he said. "The committee, however, was surprised at the kind of money that is available and believe that not all of it would be required."

THE UNINCORPORATED area from which the revenue estimates were taken is bounded by Central Road, Dempster Street, Greenwood Avenue and the Tri-State Tollway.

The report estimates the predominantly residential area, which has an estimated population of 33,100, is valued at $275.8 million and would have an equalized assessed valuation of $109.7 million.

It also estimates that revenue from property taxes, sales taxes, motor fuel taxes, state income taxes, federal revenue sharing and all other taxes and fees would be about $2,350,979 a year.

The estimated $486,285 that could be derived from property taxes is based on a tax rate to homeowners of 43.5 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

The rate is based on the maximum amount that can be levied under state law, and could be adjusted downward to meet the budget should a municipality be formed.

THE MAXIMUM property tax rate that can be levied in the unincorporated area would be lower than the rate in three of four neighboring municipalities, according to the report. Those rates in 1975 were as follows: Des Plaines, $1.04 cents per $100 of assessed valuation; Park Ridge, $1.12 per $100 of assessed valuation; Niles, 36 cents per $100 of assessed valuation; and Glenview, 99.8 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Although a complete estimate on the cost of establishing and operating a new municipality are not available, the report said administrative costs would be about $128,800 a year.

The figures do not include the cost of operating a police department or providing other municipal services.

EACH CANDIDATE will spend at least a half day with the committee members, but they will not be introduced to the city council or department heads, Kiszka said.

The committee will select three top candidates and recommend them to the city council for its review, Kiszka says.

"At that point we will also give extensive in person and written reports on those three finalists to the full council and then it's out of our hands," Kiszka said.

KISZKA SAID the committee still hopes to meet its January deadline and is working as fast as possible to screen the more than 70 applications that came in.

The psychological rating and more intensive background testing will aid the committee in its final selection, Kiszka said.

A psychologist working with Psychological Testing Center of Arlington Heights, said general tests are usually administered to high level executives as "a way of finding out what kind of people they are intellectually and personally-wise."

"IT'S NOT going to be the same type of test you would give a policeman or fireman and because the field of city manager is so unique, the test would, I suppose, be general," Ken Deal said.

Main points in such a test would be whether the candidate knows how to carry and delegate responsibility and how well he works with people, Deal said.

Kiszka said the committee will use private psychological testing services to test the finalists in their hometowns.

The committee has reviewed applicants from the area and 23 other states.

Others on the committee are the Rev. William E. Harman and Thomas Rife.

The city manager post has been vacant since October 1975 when James Watson resigned.

Charles Green, a former city administrative aide and a contender for the post of permanent city manager, is acting city manager.

Students cited for achievement during summer

Western Illinois University cited three Rolling Meadows students for scholastic achievement during the summer quarter. They are Curtis B. Anderson, Theresa Ann Hoffman and Joyce L. Simon.

Carol Lynn Alf has earned the master's degree in art from Eastern Illinois University . . . Gary Pickett and Robert Reynolds completed bachelor degree requirements at Illinois State University . . . Joan Backoff was graduated from Purdue University.

City residents on active duty for U.S. military

Rolling Meadows servicemen on active duty include: Lt. Joseph A. Conroy has returned to Miami Beach, Fla., after a three-week patrol in the Caribbean Sea as a crewmember aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Dauntless . . . Marine Warrant Officer William E. Manginen has reported for duty at the Memphis Naval Air Station, Millington, Tenn.

Cadet Peter M. Buckley attended ROTC military leadership training camp at Fort Riley, Kan. . . . Cpl. Leonard E. McKenzie has reported for duty with the 3rd Marine Division on Okinawa. . . . Navy Tech. 2nd Class Randall E. Hagman is serving aboard the frigate USS Paul.

Judge doesn't spare rods to discipline 'spoiled' kids

by JOHN LAMPINEN

There were six youngsters in the courtroom when the woman approached the bench.

She wanted to speak on behalf of her son, who was charged with vandalism. But when she started to speak, the boy interrupted.

Judge William J. Obermiller looked down from the bench of his Whiting, Ind., court.

"WHEN WAS THE last time your boy has been spanked?" he asked the woman.

She glanced toward her boy and explained that she is both mother and father to him.

"He's bigger than me," she said.

Obermiller asked if the court could spank him. The woman replied that that would be fine with her.

IT'S BEEN A long time since that incident in 1962, but Obermiller, who will speak in Hoffman Estates Wednesday, still is nationally known as "the spanking judge."

"That was a landmark. I had several of them at that time," Obermiller recalls. "My theory is to make the kid remember what he did, and one way to make them remember is to embarrass them."

He was invited to speak in Hoffman Estates after Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter proposed that one way to curb vandalism would be to make offenders work off their crimes.

It has been an Obermiller philosophy for a number of years.

He was one of the first judges to order vandals to work. In Whiting, some have cleaned up the beaches. Many have been required to write 1,000 times that they were wrong. Lifting an idea from Mark Twain, he has even had youngsters wash the local library's fence.

"I SAID, 'HECK, I don't want your money,' he explains. "And jail, that's not the answer. They've got to remember the error of their ways."

He concedes that some of the punishment he hands out was never Dame school of law.

But it's a common sense that has served the 53-year-old jurist well through five terms as judge of the city court in Whiting.

Condition of man good after collision

An Arlington Heights man was in good condition Sunday at Northwest Community Hospital following a two-car collision Saturday in Palatine.

Ronald W. Sternberg, 22, of 1315 N. Pine Ave., received minor injuries when his car collided with one driven by 74-year-old Henrietta L. DeBerg, 410 W. Palatine Rd., Palatine, at the intersection of Palatine Road and Northwest Highway.

Police ticketed Sternberg for failure to yield the right of way while turning left. He is scheduled to appear at 9 a.m. Dec. 9 in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Police said the Sternberg auto was southbound on Northwest Highway attempting to turn onto eastbound Palatine Road when it was hit by the DeBerg car travelling north on Northwest Highway.

William Obermiller

It also has served him as the former deputy prosecuting attorney for Lake County, Ind., and as a lawyer before the Illinois and Indiana courts, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, the U.S. Tax Court of Appeals and the U.S. Federal Court.

"Somehow, you get the gut feeling of what a kid's going to understand," Obermiller says. "Once the law has been met, then you close the law book and you open God's book."

HE ALSO AGREES with a proposal getting wide consideration throughout the Northwest suburbs these days: holding parents responsible for the vandalism of their children.

Parents must be involved, Obermiller says, and one way to get them involved is through the pocketbook.

"But," he adds, "it's tough that you have to legislate parental love and involvement."

He does have other suggestions to curb vandalism.

For example, he believes that publicly helps provide the embarrassment, and he advocates it for repeat offenders.

"I don't think anonymity is the answer," Obermiller says.

He also thinks neighborhood courts that can act quickly are important.

MEANWHILE, Obermiller thinks his philosophy has shown results in the Whiting area. He does get flack from some persons who are concerned that he is stepping on rights.

But, he says, he also is getting feedback from a number of those who have stood in his courtroom and received his unique sentences.

One person called recently to thank

Obermiller to speak here Wednesday

"The Spanking Judge," William J. Obermiller, 53, of Whiting, Ind., Wednesday will speak at Hoffman Estates High School, 1100 W. Higgins Rd.

Obermiller has appeared on national and Chicago area television programs, written articles for Readers' Digest, Guide Post, Lions International and Hoosier magazines and has given a number of lectures.

His appearance here will begin at 7:30 p.m.

him, he remembers. He'll never forget having to clean the beaches and it put him on the straight and narrow, he told the judge.

And Obermiller will never forget his sentence in 1962 that resulted in a spanking for a boy too big to spank.

"That night," he recalls, "I think I was acting more as a daddy."

Carter pardon won't lure evaders back

by PAUL GORES

For about 25 draft evaders from the Northwest suburbs who now live in Canada, Jimmy Carter's presidency will mean a chance to come home.

But most of them won't come home, said Jerry Olsen, staff coordinator of the Midwest Committee for Military Counseling. Their departure from the United States, spurred by the Vietnam war, probably will be permanent.

"Many have made commitments to a new society, families and obviously a new job," Olsen said. Olsen, whose group is in personal contact with many of the draft evaders, said "a full half" of the 4,000 now in exile already have changed their citizenship. He said "80 per cent won't come back."

Olsen's Chicago-based office has not received many calls from draft evaders wanting to know about Jimmy Carter's promise of blanket pardons.

CARTER'S PARDON would apply only to Selective Service violators who objected to the war, not to deserters or those convicted of military crimes. Those would be handled on a case-by-case basis.

Olsen said there are about 82 draft resisters from the Chicago area.

"They may get off without any problem if there's a real pardon," Olsen said. He anticipates the pardon in February or March.

The names of draft resisters are kept confidential by Olsen's office. U.S. attorneys and the FBI protect identities under the Privacy Act. But Olsen said most of the draft resisters who have returned are "well received."

"Most people now agree that the war in Vietnam was a very bad mistake," Olsen said. "At the very least, people will tolerate them (resisters)."

"MOST OF THE draft evaders were from the middle class — the suburbs," Olsen said. "The lower class people didn't have the options available to the middle class."

"Many of the poor didn't understand the war and just went along with what the government told them,"

Olsen said.

U.S. attorneys are still prosecuting cases and the FBI is still looking for resisters, Olsen said, contrary to a TV network report earlier this week. The report said investigators and prosecutors are waiting to see what Carter will do.

"That's because they (the networks) usually check with the large cities," Olsen said. "By and large the big cities are not particularly interested in draft cases. They usually just go out to his parent's house once a year and say 'Have you seen him around?'"

BUT SMALLER communities are still after draft evaders, Olsen said.

"If I tried to defend a guy in Gary, Ind., he'd have much less of a chance of having his case dismissed than in Chicago," Olsen said.

Olsen's counseling service for draft evaders, has helped many men to have their draft evasion cases dismissed.

Seniors point out transit problems

by LYNN ASINOF

The over-60 group wants wheels. They want to be able to get around town, to Chicago and to the airport. And they don't want to spend a lot of money.

The seniors already have subsidized taxi service in three Northwest suburbs, as well as special bus or minibus service in four townships.

But there are problems, as the seniors pointed out at an all-day seminar on transportation sponsored by Harper College.

TAKE THE CASE of Harold and Mildred Gulbransen, who moved to a senior citizens project in Elk Grove Village a year ago. While their township provides some minibus service to town, they say they can't make connections to get to Chicago.

"We're satisfied with everything except getting downtown," Mrs. Gulbransen said. "We feel like we're fenced in. All our friends live in Chicago."

Most transportation for seniors is provided by the townships and villages, which focus on getting the seniors to shopping centers and local downtown areas.

Only a few provide connections with the Chicago and North Western Ry. or the North Suburban Mass Transit District buses in Des Plaines.

"I guess the idea of the Regional Transportation Authority was to take care of these problems. But I think realistically we are not going to see these things in your lifetime or my (Continued on Page 10)

FOUR TOWNSHIPS in the Northwest suburbs now provide minibus service to senior citizens, enabling them to visit shopping centers and local downtown areas. Three towns subsidize senior citizens' taxi rides, but seniors still have trouble getting into Chicago and to the airport.

Fonte to seek election to 2nd term as trustee

Palatine Trustee Richard W. Fonte will seek the Republican Party's nomination to run for a second term next April.

Fonte, 31, ended weeks of silence on his reelection plans by announcing Saturday that he will seek a second four-year term on the village board. Fonte becomes the second incumbent to announce he will seek GOP support in the election. Trustee Robert J. Guss said last week he will seek the party's nomination for village president, a post being vacated by incumbent Republican Wendell E. Jones.

Both Fonte and Guss ran on the Republican slate with Jones four years ago.

THE PARTY CONVENTION will be Dec. 4 at the American Legion Hall, 122 W. Palatine Rd. The 118 delegates will nominate candidates for village president, village clerk and three trustee posts.

Trustee James L. Shaw, the third Republican incumbent on the village board, has not decided whether he will seek reelection. Shaw's decision is expected soon.

Trustee Fred H. Zajonc, who will not be up for reelection in April, has announced he will run for village president but will not appear before the convention.

In announcing his candidacy, Fonte said he will run on his record and if elected will work to adopt a zero-based budgeting system in the village "which requires every village program and expenditure to be justified each year and not be presumed as sacred."

"The only way to hold down expenditures is to vigilantly review programs on an individual basis," he said. "While I believe we have been successful in providing a program of tax relief to homeowners, we can and should attempt to implement a zero-based budget system to furnish further relief to the homeowner."

FORTE, CHAIRMAN of the administration, legislation and finance committee, said he considers his major accomplishments over the last four years as being author of Palatine's ethics ordinance, architect of the ordinance to ban secret land trusts in the village and backer of a policy requiring bids to be opened in public rather than in the village manager's office.

Fonte said if he fails to receive the party's support, he will not run as an (Continued on Page 5)

Helping people find 'it'

Crusade for Christ opens

by LYNN ASINOF

The billboards and bumper stickers say "I found it," but they don't tell you what "it" is.

For the past 10 days, Chicagoans have been kept wondering about the cryptic advertising which has appeared in newspapers, on billboards and car signs.

Today they will find out.

Today the massive advertising campaign for Christ enters its second stage. A message will be added to the billboards saying, "You can find it to, and the telephone number is 843-0600."

THOSE WHO call the number will be connected with a telephone center staffed by 100 volunteers who have been training since July. The volunteers will direct them to Christ.

"Each person who accepts Christ as their savior will be directed to a Bible study at a church, not necessarily to join that church, but to find out what the Bible tells them in living their lives," said Lorry Eberhart, a worker with the Here's Life Chicago office in Rolling Meadows.

The same campaign is now underway in 121 cities across the country, and this isn't the first time Christians have used billboards, newspapers, TV and radio to get this message across.

Mrs. Eberhart said the first campaign began in Atlanta two years ago under the name "Agape Atlanta." Campus Crusade for Christ picked up the idea and it was presented in 21 cities last spring.

THE CAMPAIGN is being supported by 350 to 400 churches in the Chicago area and is being funded by contributions. Organization began last summer.

The advertising will continue for two more weeks and will include a TV special from 8 to 9 p.m. Tuesday on Channel 44. The show will feature Dean Jones, Charles Colson and Carol Lawrence.

When the campaign is over, there will be a big praise and prayer rally. No date has been set.

"THE BASIC IDEA is to contact every home in the metropolitan area to give them an opportunity to know how they can have a personal relationship with Jesus Christ," Mrs. Eberhart said. "The ultimate goal is to change lives."

To assure the success of the campaign, people throughout the area have been offering continual prayers since August as part of an organized prayer chain. "There is continual prayer five days a week from 6 in the morning until midnight," Mrs. Eberhart said.

The campaign will run into the beginning of the holiday season.

WONDERING WHAT "IT" IS? This billboard on Northwest Highway just past the Arlington Heights village limits asks the question, and Here's Life, a religious crusade for Christ, is hoping to provide the answers.

Membership for blacks OK'd at Carter's church

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI)—The congregation of the Plains Baptist Church averted a personal and political crisis for Jimmy Carter Sunday by opening its membership to all persons — including blacks — "who want to worship Jesus Christ."

The vote, taken behind closed doors, cleared the way for a new attempt by the Rev. Clennon King, a black minister from Albany, Ga., to seek membership in the all-white church where Carter and his family worship. King said he would make his try next Sunday.

"I was proud of my church, God's church," Carter told reporters after the two hour, 45 minute meeting. "I'm completely satisfied with this church action, and I'm very proud of my church. I believe our church will now be unified."

ASKED IF he had influenced the decision, Carter said: "I was just one of the church members and they all know that."

One congregation member told a reporter there was no bitterness at the meeting.

The congregation voted 120 to 68 to abolish a 1965 rule barring "negroes and civil rights agitators" from membership. The assembly also overruled, by a 107-84 vote, a recommendation by the deacons that pastor Bruce Edwards be dismissed for opposing the rule.

Future applicants for church membership will be considered by a "watch care committee" under a new rule, adopted in a third vote, which opens the church to "all persons who want to worship Jesus Christ."

Carter, who supported all three votes, said the committee's actions will be limited to questioning applicants to determine "if their intent is sincere. There is an understanding it will not be based on racial considerations."

CARTER'S FAMILY voted against the antiblack rule in 1965.

Services were canceled Oct. 31 — two days before election day — when King first tried to enter the church. Deacons then voted to enforce the 1965 rule despite its embarrassing consequences for the congregation's most noted member.

After Sunday's vote was announced by Carter's cousin, Hugh Carter, King told reporters: "I'm pleased and satisfied. I'll be back next week with bells on."

He said he would continue to press his application for membership and, if accepted, would attend services regularly and seek to bring other blacks into the church.

King asked Hugh Carter whether the vote meant he would be admitted as a member.

"I can't tell you," Carter responded. "That will depend on two things — what the watch care committee recommends, and how the congregation votes."

ASKED IF THE vote to open the doors of the church vindicated him, King said: "It vindicates the church."

Harmony prevails at founding of Lutheran synod

by JOHN LAMPINEN

The founding convention of the English Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church took place in a mood of quiet harmony during the weekend.

As Harold DeVries, delegate from Faith Lutheran Church, Mundelein, put it, most of the turmoil that resulted in the split from the Missouri Synod is over.

"It's getting together and saying, 'Hey, we're here,'" he said of the convention at the Arlington Park Hilton, Arlington Heights.

"The issues are over," said the Rev. Carl F. Thrun of Trinity Lutheran Church in Rolling Meadows. "We're moving on in terms of mission and ministry."

THIRTY WAS one of 78 congregations from across the country meeting under a theme of "A New Song" after seven years of conflict over interpretations of the Bible within the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

There were references to the Missouri Synod that the Lutherans were leaving behind, but for the most part, they were references designed to serve as reminders for the delegations' talk of new freedom and increased involvement of the laity in church affairs.

"This day in this place we sing to the Lord a new song as the English Synod begins its new life in Christ," keynote speaker Dr. Martin F. Marty told the convention Friday. "Though members of a little flock within the little flock that is Christ's community on earth, we feel closer to the rest of the church today than ever before."

Saturday's featured speaker, Dr. Martin Kretzmann, tackled the question of the split directly.

"We are not leaving the Missouri Synod," he said. "It has ceased to be what it was meant to be."

"We are unworthy servants," he said. "We have only done what was necessary."

DISCUSSING HIS observations about the convention, The Rev. Thrun referred to a new sense of fellowship after the years of turmoil within the Missouri Synod.

"I feel for myself a great sense of relief that instead of all the in-fighting, we can really get on with the job that Christ meant us to do," he said.

The years of fighting among themselves instead of concentrating on spreading God's word, was a "great disgrace" among Christians, he said.

Echoing a view that dominated the convention, the Rev. Thrun said he sees the English Synod as being "more inclusive" in its dealings with other Christian organizations than was the Missouri Synod.

But he said he sees the newly formed synod as "transitional." DeVries said a continual issue within the church will be whether it should join forces with another Lutheran organization.

THE REV. THRUN said he didn't know if it would go that far.

"But at least, we want to be in fellowship with them," he said. "I hope it (the English Synod) doesn't become another super church."

The closest the convention came to fighting over issues was during unsuccessful attempts to amend the constitution adopted earlier by the synod's board of directors.

The most volatile debate occurred over a requirement in the constitution that the president, vice presidents and secretary be ministers.

The Rev. Thomas Strieter of Glen Ellyn took exception, saying the requirement "continues what I consider the heresy" of the Missouri Synod.

"One of the beautiful things that is going on here is that two-thirds of the people here are laypersons," he said. "Let's not exclude their involvement."

THE REV. ARLAN Brandt of Aurora said he isn't against striking the phrase but prefers to get the individual congregations involved in considering a possible amendment.

The second point of contention concerned the preamble, which outlined the English Synod's battles within the Missouri Synod.

"This preamble has the danger of setting up exclusivity," he said, adding that it might "set up barriers" to others who might want to affiliate with the synod.

He called for the preamble to be eliminated and replaced with a more positive statement of the synod's beliefs and goals.

For the amendments to have been enacted, the delegates would have had to have voted to direct the board to meet during the convention to make the amendments. After the first convention, power to make amendments passes from the board to subsequent annual conventions.

Both amendment proposals were defeated by voice votes after opponents stressed that congregations will be given a chance to discuss them during the coming year.

'Exiled' seminary chief gets ovation

by JOHN LAMPINEN

Quiet conversation penetrated the air as the Rev. John Tietjen stepped to the microphone.

There was no pause on Tietjen's part.

He began immediately into his short address, and soon the competing voices at the founding convention of the English Synod stilled.

"What a really moving personal experience this is for me," he said, jutting his right hand out in frequent, rapid gestures.

He is a thin graying man. He also had been the catalyst for the new branch of Lutheranism that met in Arlington Heights during the weekend.

THE CONFLICT between factions of the Missouri Synod had been brewing long before his suspension two years ago as president of Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., for questioning the literal interpretation of the Bible.

But the Rev. Tietjen's suspension brought the conflict to a head, with dissenting students and faculty members establishing a seminary-in-exile, called Seminex.

When four Missouri Synod district presidents were ousted earlier this year for ordaining Seminex graduates, formation of the English Synod by dissidents was all but taken for granted.

But as he spoke Saturday, the Rev. Tietjen issued no regrets over the split. He talked instead optimistically about the future.

"We think that there are exciting possibilities ahead for us all," he said.

HE TALKED of a "partnership" between Seminex and the newly formed synod, a partnership that he hopes will be functional as well as structural.

A few camera bulbs flashed, and the Rev. Tietjen continued, pointing out that the English Synod and other Lutheran church organizations alone will not absorb all of Seminex's graduates.

Some have told him, he said, gesturing with both hands now, that to meet the situation, Seminex should curb the number of students it graduates.

"We think that's the institutional way of solving what some may view as a problem," the Rev. Tietjen said.

HE SAID it is not Seminex's answer. Concepts of the ministry are being reevaluated, and ministers are doing other work, he said.

The pitch in his voice increased.

"It's wild to see what Seminex graduates are doing," he said, and referring to the Missouri Synod split, he added, "It never would have been so apart from this crisis."

His address completed, the Rev. Tietjen moved quickly to his seat on the convention floor.

There was a smattering of applause. Then one person stood as he cheered. Then another and another.

As the Rev. Tietjen got to his seat, all of the convention delegates were on their feet.

Building dept. hiring studied

Hiring of additional personnel for the village building department will be discussed this month when Palatine trustees review the 1976-77 budget.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said, "It appears we will have to add to the building department because when there is an increase in construction, there is naturally an increase in the work load."

In 1975, the board cut three positions from the building department when construction in the village dipped 40 per cent from 1974.

CONSTRUCTION so far this year, however, is on the upswing with the village headed for its best construction season in the past three years, according to building department figures released this week.

The value of new construction through October is more than $10.09 million, more than double the total for the first 10 months of 1975.

Jones gave no indication on how many may be hired for the department.

ment. Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig said four persons are working in the building department, a reduction of four from three years ago.

HARWIG SAID the biggest budget adjustment confronting officials is an increase of about $30,000 for insurance. Harwig said the increase can be paid, but with an approved salary hike for village crossing guards, and other possible considerations funds will run tight.

"We're doing very good in sales tax receipts which has helped us out," he said, but he added the board's recent decision to cut the village tax rate could create problems in the immediate future.

Trustee Richard W. Fonte, chairman of the administration, legislation and finance committee, said he is confident the village will remain in sound financial shape despite the unexpected and sizable increase in village insurance costs.

"Revenues are coming in high and the question is how to allocate the surplus," Fonte said. The trustee also said he hopes to include a discussion of creation of a capital improvements fund in the budget review session.

Fonte said the fund would provide an account to allocate surplus funds to be used for future capital improvements such as the separation of storm and sanitary sewers in the village.

A date for the budget review session has not been set.

Judge doesn't spare rod on spoiled kids

by JOHN LAMPINEN

There were six youngsters in the courtroom when the woman approached the bench.

She wanted to speak on behalf of her son, who was charged with vandalism. But when she started to speak, the boy interrupted.

Judge William J. Obermiller looked down from the bench of his Whiting, Ind., court.

"WHEN WAS THE last time your boy has been spanked?" he asked the woman.

She glanced toward her boy and explained that she is both mother and father to him.

"He's bigger than me," she said. Obermiller asked if the court could spank him. The woman replied that that would be fine with her.

IT'S BEEN A long time since that incident in 1962, but Obermiller, who will speak in Hoffman Estates Wednesday, still is nationally known as "the spanking judge."

"That was a landmark. I had several of them at that time," Obermiller recalls. "My theory is to make the kid remember what he did, and one way to make them remember is to embarrass them."

He was invited to speak in Hoffman Estates after Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter proposed that one way to curb vandalism would be to make offenders work off their crimes.

It has been an Obermiller philosophy for a number of years.

He was one of the first judges to order vandals to work. In Whiting, some have cleaned up the beaches. Many have been required to write 1,000 times that they were wrong. Lifting an idea from Mark Twain, he has even had youngsters wash the local library's fence.

"I SAID, 'HECK, I don't want your money,' he explains. "And jail, that's not the answer. They've got to remember the error of their ways."

He concedes that some of the punishment he hands out was never taught at the University of Notre Dame school of law.

But it's a common sense that has served the 53-year-old jurist well through five terms as judge of the city court in Whiting.

It also has served him as the former deputy prosecuting attorney for Lake County, Ind., and as a lawyer before the Illinois and Indiana courts, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, the U.S. Tax Court of Appeals and the U.S. Federal Court.

"Somehow, you get the gut feeling of what a kid's going to understand," Obermiller says. "Once the law has been met, then you close the law book and you open God's book."

HE ALSO AGREES with a proposal getting wide consideration throughout the Northwest suburbs these days: holding parents responsible for the vandalism of their children.

Parents must be involved, Obermiller says, and one way to get them involved is through the pocketbook.

"But," he adds, "it's tough that you have to legislate parental love and involvement."

He does have other suggestions to curb vandalism.

For example, he believes that publicity helps provide the embarrassment, and he advocates it for repeat offenders.

"I don't think anonymity is the answer," Obermiller says. He also thinks neighborhood courts that can act quickly are important.

"Most kids are going to step over the line once or twice," he points out. "We've got to come down hard when they do."

MEANWHILE, Obermiller thinks his philosophy has shown results in the Whiting area. He does get flack from some persons who are concerned that he is stepping on rights.

But, he says, he also is getting feedback from a number of those who have stood in his courtroom and received his unique sentences.

One person called recently to thank

Obermiller to speak here Wednesday

"The Spanking Judge," William J. Obermiller, 53, of Whiting, Ind., Wednesday will speak at Hoffman Estates High School, 1160 W. Higgins Rd.

Obermiller has appeared on national and Chicago area television programs, written articles for Readers' Digest, Guide Post, Lions International and Hoosier magazines and has given a number of lectures.

His appearance here will begin at 7:30 p.m.

him, he remembers. He'll never forget having to clean the beaches and it put him on the straight and narrow, he told the judge.

And Obermiller will never forget his sentence in 1962 that resulted in a spanking for a boy too big to spank.

"That night," he recalls, "I think I was acting more as a daddy."

Condition of man good after collision

An Arlington Heights man was in good condition Sunday at Northwest Community Hospital following a two-car collision Saturday in Palatine.

Ronald W. Sternberg, 22, of 1315 N. Pine Ave., received minor injuries when his car collided with one driven by 74-year-old Henrietta L. DeBerg, 410 W. Palatine Rd., Palatine, at the intersection of Palatine Road and Northwest Highway.

Police ticketed Sternberg for failure to yield the right of way while turning left. He is scheduled to appear at 9 a.m. Dec. 9 in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Police said the Sternberg auto was southbound on Northwest Highway attempting to turn onto eastbound Palatine Road when it was hit by the DeBerg car traveling north on Northwest Highway.

Carter pardon won't lure evaders back

by PAUL GORES

For about 25 draft evaders from the Northwest suburbs who now live in Canada, Jimmy Carter's presidency will mean a chance to come home.

But most of them won't come home, said Jerry Olsen, staff coordinator of the Midwest Committee for Military Counseling. Their departure from the United States, spurred by the Vietnam war, probably will be permanent.

"Many have made commitments to a new society, families and obviously a new job," Olsen said. Olsen, whose group is in personal contact with many of the draft evaders, said "a full half" of the 4,000 now in exile already have changed their citizenship. He said "80 per cent won't come back."

Olsen's Chicago-based office has not received many calls from draft evaders wanting to know about Jimmy Carter's promise of blanket pardons.

CARTER'S PARDON would apply only to Selective Service violators who objected to the war, not to deserters or those convicted of military crimes. Those would be handled on a case-by-case basis.

Olsen said there are about 82 draft resisters from the Chicago area.

"They may get off without any problem if there's a real pardon," Olsen said. He anticipates the pardon in February or March.

The names of draft resisters are kept confidential by Olsen's office. U.S. attorneys and the FBI protect identities under the Privacy Act.

But Olsen said most of the draft re-

sisters who have returned are "well received."

"Most people now agree that the war in Vietnam was a very bad mistake," Olsen said. "At the very least, people will tolerate them (resisters)."

"MOST OF THE draft evaders were from the middle class — the suburbs," Olsen said. "The lower class people didn't have the options available to the middle class."

"Many of the poor, didn't understand the war and just went along with what the government told them,"

Olsen said.

U.S. attorneys are still prosecuting cases and the FBI is still looking for resisters, Olsen said, contrary to a TV network report earlier this week. The report said investigators and prosecutors are waiting to see what Carter will do.

"That's because they (the networks) usually check with the large cities," Olsen said. "By and large the big cities are not particularly interested in draft cases. They usually just go out to his parent's house once a year and say 'Have you seen him around?'"

BUT SMALLER communities are still after draft evaders, Olsen said.

"If I tried to defend a guy in Gary, Ind., he'd have much less of a chance of having his case dismissed than in Chicago," Olsen said.

Olsen's counseling service for draft evaders, has helped many men to have their draft evasion cases dismissed.

"I haven't lost an argument to get

Seniors point out transit problems

by LYNN ASINOF

The over-60 group wants wheels. They want to be able to get around town, to Chicago and to the airport. And they don't want to spend a lot of money.

The seniors already have subsidized taxi service in three Northwest suburbs, as well as special bus or minibus service in four townships.

But there are problems, as the seniors pointed out at an all-day seminar on transportation sponsored by Harper College.

TAKE THE CASE of Harold and Mildred Gulbransen, who moved to a senior citizens project in Elk Grove Village a year ago. While their township provides some minibus service to town, they say they can't make connections to get to Chicago.

"We're satisfied with everything except getting downtown," Mrs. Gulbransen said. "We feel like we're fenced in. All our friends live in Chicago."

Most transportation for seniors is provided by the townships and villages, which focus on getting the seniors to shopping centers and local downtown areas.

Only a few provide connections with the Chicago and North Western Ry. or the North Suburban Mass Transit District buses in Des Plaines.

"I guess the idea of the Regional Transportation Authority was to take care of these problems. But I think realistically we are not going to see these things in your lifetime or my

FOUR TOWNSHIPS in the Northwest suburbs now provide minibus service to senior citizens, enabling them to visit shopping centers and local downtown areas. Three towns subsidize senior citizens' taxi rides, but seniors still have trouble getting into Chicago and to the airport.

Police patrolling S-curve are gunning for speeders

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

Perched in the St. Raymond School parking lot, his gun pointing out of the car window, he waits patiently to shoot at another unsuspecting motorist barreling through the Elmhurst Road S-curve.

As the cars and trucks round the narrow bend, he steadies his aim and squeezes the trigger. But there is no noise or smoke. Not even a bullet.

In fact, it all happens so quickly the victim is not aware he has been shot at.

The police without fail, are at the scene of the shooting immediately. And that's because the sniper is a Mount Prospect patrolman just doing another day's work.

HIS WEAPON is a speed gun — a common radar device used by law enforcement agencies to monitor motor vehicle speeds. Once the gun is fired at a target a two-digit numeral flashes on a tiny screen. If the figure exceeds the speed limit set by the state, the patrolman knows it's time to nab another hot rod.

The S-curve, that portion of Ill. Rte. 83 between Shabonee Trail to Milburn Avenue, probably is the most dangerous roadway in the village. And the Mount Prospect Police Dept. considers it a high priority location requiring frequent patrol and enforcement of the 25 m.p.h. speed limit.

There was one fatality on the S-curve in 1974. Twenty-seven accidents, including sideswipes and rear-end collisions were recorded there since January 1975. Police have issued 1,551 speeding tickets — 987 in 1975 and 564 in 1976 — on the curve.

"I hope the reduced number of tickets is due to the fact that the people know we're there," said Police Chief Ralph J. Doney. "We try to keep a constant approach to enforcement there because more accidents occur in that area than anywhere in the village. And they're usually very serious accidents. We don't hide. Our cars sit close to the intersections."

Doney blames poor engineering for the S-curve's unsafe condition. And village traffic engineer Mike Pekala agrees the road is unfit for normal traffic flow. "From an engineering point of view the roadway is too narrow to accommodate traffic," Pekala admitted. "The curved portions are not engineered properly as far as the elevation needed for easier negotiation of the turns."

PATROLMAN ANDY Toth, a frequent operator of the speed gun said he usually gives drivers the benefit of the doubt. "There's a lot of room for error on a speedometer," he said. Toth said he often gives motorists about 10 m.p.h. leeway.

"If you're one mile an hour over the posted limit, you're speeding," Toth said. "But it's really an officer's discretion."

The radar can monitor vehicles traveling in either direction and records speeds of cars up to 1,000 feet away.

Doney and Toth said most accidents

Helping people find 'it'

Crusade for Christ opens

by LYNN ASINOF

The billboards and bumper stickers say "I found it," but they don't tell you what "it" is.

For the past 10 days, Chicagoans have been kept wondering about the cryptic advertising which has appeared in newspapers, on billboards and car signs.

Today they will find out.

Today the massive advertising campaign for Christ enters its second stage. A message will be added to the billboards saying, "You can find it to, and the telephone number is 843-0600."

THOSE WHO call the number will be connected with a telephone center staffed by 100 volunteers who have been training since July. The volunteers will direct them to Christ.

"Each person who accepts Christ as their saviour will be directed to a Bible study at a church, not necessarily to join that church, but to find out what the Bible tells them in living their lives," said Lorry Eberhart, a worker with the Here's Life Chicago office in Rolling Meadows.

The same campaign is now underway in 121 cities across the country, and this isn't the first time Christians have used billboards, newspapers, TV and radio to get this message across.

Mrs. Eberhart said the first campaign began in Atlanta two years ago under the name "Agape Atlanta." Campus Crusade for Christ picked up the idea and it was presented in 21 cities last spring.

THE CAMPAIGN is being supported by 350 to 400 churches in the Chicago area and is being funded by contributions. Organization began last summer.

The advertising will continue for two more weeks and will include a TV special from 8 to 9 p.m. Tuesday on Channel 44. The show will feature Dean Jones, Charles Colson and Carol Lawrence.

When the campaign is over, there will be a big praise and prayer rally. No date has been set.

"THE BASIC IDEA is to contact every home in the metropolitan area to give them an opportunity to know how they can have a personal relationship with Jesus Christ," Mrs. Eberhart said. "The ultimate goal is to change lives."

To assure the success of the campaign, people throughout the area have been offering continual prayers since August as part of an organized prayer chain. "There is continual prayer five days a week from 6 in the morning until midnight," Mrs. Eberhart said.

The campaign will run into the beginning of the holiday season.

WONDERING WHAT "it" is? This billboard on Northwest Highway just past the Arlington Heights village limits asks the question, and Here's Life, a religious crusade for Christ, is hoping to provide the answers.

Membership for blacks OK'd at Carter's church

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI)—The congregation of the Plains Baptist Church averted a personal and political crisis for Jimmy Carter Sunday by opening its membership to all persons — including blacks — "who want to worship Jesus Christ."

The vote, taken behind closed doors, cleared the way for a new attempt by the Rev. Clennon King, a black minister from Albany, Ga., to seek membership in the all-white church where Carter and his family worship. King said he would make his try next Sunday.

"I was proud of my church, God's church," Carter told reporters after the two hour, 45 minute meeting. "I'm completely satisfied with this church action, and I'm very proud of my church. I believe our church will now be unified."

ASKED IF he had influenced the decision, Carter said: "I was just one of the church members and they all know that."

One congregation member told a reporter there was no bitterness at the meeting.

The congregation voted 120 to 66 to abolish a 1965 rule barring "negroes and civil rights agitators" from membership. The assembly also overruled, by a 107-94 vote, a recommendation by the deacons that pastor Bruce Edwards be dismissed for opposing the rule.

Future applicants for church membership will be considered by a "watch care committee" under a new rule, adopted in a third vote, which opens the church to "all persons who want to worship Jesus Christ."

Carter, who supported all three votes, said the committee's actions will be limited to questioning applicants to determine "if their intent is sincere. There is an understanding it will not be based on racial considerations."

CARTER'S FAMILY voted against the antiblack rule in 1965.

Services were canceled Oct. 31 — two days before election day — when King first tried to enter the church. Deacons then voted to enforce the 1965 rule despite its embarrassing consequences for the congregation's most noted member.

After Sunday's vote was announced by Carter's cousin, Hugh Carter, King told reporters: "I'm pleased and satisfied. I'll be back next week with bells on."

He said he would continue to press his application for membership and, if accepted, would attend services regularly and seek to bring other blacks into the church.

King asked Hugh Carter whether the vote meant he would be admitted as a member.

"I can't tell you," Carter responded. "That will depend on two things — what the watch care committee recommends, and how the congregation votes."

ASKED IF THE vote to open the doors of the church vindicated him, King said: "It vindicates the church."

Lectures on blind skiing

Program chairmen of local clubs and organizations will be interested in knowing that the American Blind Skiing Foundation, headquartered right here in Mount Prospect, is eager to tell its story. Members of the foundation's executive board and many blind skiers are available to speak to interested groups for a specified donation.

Also, the organization now has booster pins available to the public for a contribution of $1 or more. The attractive pins have crossed gold skis with red lettering against a snow white background — ideal to wear on ski sweaters or caps.

Speakers and pins are available from Sammy Skobel, founder of the blind ski group together with the local Lions Club. Call 253-4292.

By the way, George Moldenhauer, 104 N. Lancaster Ave., and Terry Lyman of Salt Lake City (formerly of Mount Prospect) are hiking the Appalachian Trail and have sponsors to earn funds for the organization. The boys started early in September on their 2,000 mile walk from Bangor, Maine to Atlanta, Ga. Contact Skobel to add to pledges already made.

Latest word from the young men two weeks ago indicates that they have already traveled 600-miles and that "These mountains are really rugged. We have had lots of snow."

EXPLORER POST 8 has a paper drive scheduled today, on the north side of Mount Prospect. Paper will be picked up at curbs in the area north of Central Road, east of Forest Avenue and west of River Road. For particularly large amounts of paper, call 253-0733.

Explorer Post 8 will have a paper drive on the second Saturday of every month in the future.

TWO MORE village residents have contributed a total of a gallon of blood in the Mount Prospect SureBlood Program, according to Norma Murauskis, volunteer director. There are now 25 "gallon donors" with the addition of Herbert H. Aspen, 311 S. Emerson St., and Arthur John Korn, 301 N. William St.

Freund writes health book

Edith Freund, former Herald Columnist, is coauthor of a new book, "Growing Up Healthy." Dr. Diego Redondo provided the technical and medical knowledge for the volume.

Mrs. Freund, 700 S. Main St., has written for several newspapers in recent years and has had numerous articles published in magazines and journals. Dr. Redondo is assistant professor of clinical pediatrics at Northwestern University. He has a private practice in Deerfield, Ill.

"Growing Up Healthy" is a 170-page paperback book selling for $4.95. The downtown Chicago Kroch's & Brentano's has the book and it can be ordered through the local K&B at Randhurst. The publisher is Great Lakes Living Press, Matteson, Ill.

The book covers many aspects of health and family management and is divided into sections based on age. It has a question-and-answer format. Topics include heredity and intelligence, homemade food for babies, pets, divorce, vegetarian diets, marijuana and alcohol, abortion and working mothers.

NEW MEMBERS of the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors were elected at the annual chamber dinner at Chez Paul restaurant last week. Newcomers are Lois Anderson, The Anderson Co.; Bud Baldwin, Equitable Life Assurance Society; Al DeVon, Illinois Bell Telephone Co.; Adele Jeschke, Mount Prospect Plaza Merchants Assn.; Ed Krakowski, Illinois Range Co.; Ron Mueller, Jack's Men's Shops; Robert Anderson, Anderson-Biermann Hardware Co.; George Nicolai, First Federal Savings & Loan Assn. of Chicago; Robert W. Schumann, Mount Prospect State Bank.

The chamber, supervisor of the local Bicentennial parade last July, presented certificates to members of the parade committee: Ben Trapani, Jack Keefe, Jeff Adams, Terry Frakes, Marylou O'Donnell, James Grier, Lynn Bennett and Sue Frans.

Special recognition also was accorded the E-Hart Girls for their float which won honors at the Illinois State Fair and in Mount Prospect.

Funds bid for Rob Roy studied

A plan to seek state and federal funds to purchase the Rob Roy Golf Course for recreational open space is being formulated by several Northwest suburbs and park districts.

John Gilligan, a member of the Wheeling Township Board, was named during the weekend to head a steering committee that will develop the plan.

One possibility suggested at a meeting of state, county and municipal officials Saturday would use the 190-acre golf course as site for a senior citizens' complex, golf course and other recreational facilities.

THE STEERING committee will meet Dec. 11 to put together details of a tentative proposal.

Prospect Heights Mayor Richard E. Wolf, who has led the fight to preserve the golf course, was optimistic about chances for the purchase.

"It'll get off the ground," he said. Centex Homes Corp. has been seeking county rezoning of the parcel at Wheeling Road and Euclid Avenue in unincorporated Wheeling Township to build 551 homes.

But representatives of Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights and Wheeling, tracts, the county board and county forest preserve district, Wheeling, the Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights and River Trails park districts, the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, the Illinois Dept. of Local Government Affairs, U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, as well as several state legislators met Saturday to consider ways of preserving the property.

"IT WAS A GOOD meeting, and I expect something to come out of it," Wolf said.

He said Wheeling Township likely will be the agency to apply for the state and federal funds.

While Centex officials have estimated the site would be worth $5.7 million if developed according to its plan, Wolf said the joint-governmental purchase would buy the property for $3 million, the fair market value of the land as it is presently zoned.

Definit plans for the property have not been determined, he said, but it was the "general consensus" of officials at Saturday's meeting that the land be preserved with a multuse concept rather than as a golf course only.

NIPC, A REGIONAL land and transportation consultant for the area that sponsored the meeting, has designated the golf course on its planning maps as first priority for open space.

Because of that, Wolf said, he is confident the agency, which reviews federal grant applications, would look on the purchase request "favorably."

"We are trying to do this as a regional effort and not just as a local community with a self-serving interest," he said.

'Figurehead' town clerk job obsolete: Goodman

Mount Prospect's Clerk Donald M. Goodman believes the part-time elective office he has had for the past eight years may be obsolete.

Although he enjoys the job and since 1969 has had relatively few problems running elections, Goodman admits the post in Mount Prospect is little more than a "figurehead."

Why elect a part-time clerk when there are three full-time village employees — whose salaries total about $27,500 — tending to all of Mount Prospect's official records? And why pay that clerk $100 a month just to call roll at village board meetings?

Not even Goodman, the village's official custodian of records, has the answers.

BUT HE BELIEVES that the function of a part-time elected village clerk needs to be reviewed by Mount Prospect officials. He also believes a referendum to change the position — to a full time or appointed job — be considered before or during April's municipal election.

Goodman's second term as the village's official record keeper expires in April. At this point he said he is uncertain about seeking reelection.

"It is very difficult for a part-time elected clerk to participate in the day-to-day activities of the clerk's office," Goodman said. Under the current system for example, the clerk does not write the village minutes — the very thing that prompted the need for municipal record keepers in earlier years. Instead, now the full-time deputy village clerk is Mount Prospect's recording secretary.

The primary advantage of an elected clerk, Goodman said, is that he is responsible to the electorate, not a governmental body, and can prevent election fraud. Coordinating elections is a fundamental responsibility of a clerk in municipalities.

"As it is now," Goodman explained, "I am responsible only to the voters who elected me. It is another check and balance. I run the equipment and machines for all of the elections. If the clerk was appointed (by governmental board), they could put pressure on him to do things their way."

Police gunning for speeders on S-curve

occur on the S-curve during early morning hours. "It's the guy traveling through after midnight, when the traffic is lighter, who increases his speed and loses control of his vehicle," Dooley said. "Road improvements are necessary to improve the speed restrictions and the number of accidents that happen there."

RESIDENTS in the S-curve vicinity have complained over the years of the dangerous situation. As a result of their concern for school children, pedestrians and motorists, the village next year will start a project to improve the S-curve problem.

Among improvements planned is the installation of a traffic light, the widening of traffic lanes and rebanking and repaving the street.

"Higher curbs have been suggested," Dooley said. "At least if you lose control, a high curb would roll the car back into the street. The street now is formed in a crest which causes the cars to swerve off the road onto lawns and into trees."

Handel's Messiah at church Dec. 20

St. Paul's Lutheran Church, 100 S. School St., Mount Prospect, is one of three Chicagoland churches that will host the Music of the Baroque Concert Series during Christmas week.

A professional Baroque ensemble, comprised of a 30-voice chorus and a 30-piece orchestra, will perform Handel's Messiah at 8 p.m. Dec. 20. It will be the only performance in the Northwest suburbs. The other two are scheduled in Chicago, Dec. 19, and Evanston, Dec. 21.

Tickets may be purchased in advance by mail through Music of the Baroque, 5458 S. Everett, Chicago, 60615 for any of the concerts or through the church for the Dec. 20 performance.

General admission is $8. Reserved seats are $7.50. Senior citizens and students with current identification will be admitted at the door for $4.
